

Swan Song For A Cygnet; Killer Pecked To Death

By A Star Reporter

The hopes of many in Winchester that the birth this fall of a cygnet (that's a baby swan) to the town's two rare black swans would mean a colony of the graceful birds were dashed recently.

A seagull swooped down one Saturday morning at Mill Pond, picked the cygnet up in its beak, dropped it in the water, then picked it up again and dropped it on the small island in the center of the pond and began its meager meal.

All the while the parents of the cygnet swam calmly nearby, undisturbed by their baby's cries and making no attempt to help their offspring.

But the next morning a seagull with a wing span of three feet was found lying on the island, pecked to death.

There are two theories why the parents made no attempt to help. First, that after a certain period of time (the cygnet was three weeks old when it was killed), birds abandon their young and have nothing further to do with them.

Second, that once a baby bird has been touched by another bird or animal (that includes humans) they similarly abandon it.

Whether or not the seagull that killed the cygnet remains a mystery. There apparently were no witnesses to the event.

But Herbert S. "Babe" Mullen, who helps care for the town's birds, believes it might have been, if only because the death of the seagull would have been just retribution.

There was a witness to the killing of the cygnet. Mrs. Philip F. Corbin Jr. of Roslindale had accompanied her husband to Winchester that morning. He was working on a building near the pond and she came with her children to feed the geese.

"We were ready to leave when I turned around to look. I saw a seagull holding the baby swan in its mouth. The swan creid out. There were no rocks or anything around to throw. Then the seagull dropped him in the water."

Mrs. Corbin wonders if the seagull dropped the cygnet into the water to clean it, because after that he dropped the baby swan on the island and began eating it.

Mrs. Corbin said that in the past when she and her family ever went near the baby, the parents would create a commotion. "It was really a frightening thing," she said of the event.

The parents cost $400 a pair, a gift to the town from the Rotary Club two years ago. Along with five geese, donated by local businesses, all seven of the birds are housed in new quarters for the winter in a cement-block "fowl house" at the town yards.

Outside the house is a fenced-in yard where the birds quack and squack, peck and play. The swans are separated from the geese because, Mullen says, they would fight.

The birds stay outside all day and are "chased in" at night. Inside the fowl house are two basins of electrically heated water for the birds to bathe in.

They eat 100 pounds of cracked corn a week and varied quantities of bread, masl, pellets and lettuce. Charles Sousa, another Park Department worker at the yard, shakes their hay up every day.

The birds are very sensitive to the approach of people and other animals. Even a chipmunk sets off their quacking. The whole time The Star reporter was in the vicinity they protested.

"Farms keep geese for watchdogs," Mullen said. "Finally, looking toward some nearby houses, he said, 'We'd better get out of here. The neighbors might complain.'"

Appeals Board Reaffirms Cambridge Street Apartments

The Board of Appeals has re-affirmed its decision to permit a developer to construct 176 low and middle income housing units in an area off Cambridge street.

In a 17-page decision, the Board of Appeals answered most of the arguments vocalized by neighbors opposed to the project at a hearing Dec. 7.

Though the decision states, "We were forcefully impressed with the intensity of the feelings of the many speakers," the board nevertheless wrote:

"This Board must obey the law. It does not have the authority by statute or otherwise to test the constitutionality of the law. The courts alone have that power.

"The bill of complaint brought against this board raises that issue. Coesive zoning, according to the legislature.

"This Board must obey the law. It does not have the authority by statute or otherwise to test the constitutionality of the law. The courts alone have that power.

"The bill of complaint brought against this board raises that issue. Coesive zoning, according to the legislature, requires provision for low income housing.

"If the town meeting won't make that provision, then the legislature has said it is to be done by means of the procedures established in Chapter 774. This legislation obviously files in the face of the popular vote.

"So the number of people in town who are opposed is not directly relevant. This board cannot simply say no permit will be issued because more people are against it than are for it."

Signed by Frederick D. Herberich, chairman, and Daniel T. Chane Jr. and Robert J. Hallisey, the other two members, the decision spoke to arguments on:

-Possible overcrowding of the schools: "None of those speaking on the subject dealt statistically with projections of the number of school-age children that would be expected to live in an apartment project of one-and-two-bedroom units, especially as compared to the number of school-age children who might live in the maximum number of single family houses that could be built on the site."

-Traffic: "We remain unconvinced that these apartments would create more of a traffic hazard than if the site were devoted to single family homes."

-No low and middle income housing is needed here because "there are 997 housing units in the town assessed for $10,000 or less." The decision states that the anti-snob zoning statute (Ch. 774) terms low and moderate income housing as housing subsidized by state or federal government agencies. "There are no such units in Winchester."

-Single family houses would produce more revenue than the apartments: "...it appears the necessary factual basis for those figures has not been established. Furthermore, we have serious doubts of the relevancy of this material under the statute."

-The remainder of the 85-acre site owned by Sarah Moss will be devoted to apartments:

This permit, the decision states, does not give the developer a license "nor does it establish a precedent" to build apartments on the remaining land.

The board should wait until the courts establish the constitutionality of Ch. 774. "The statute requires the rendering of a decision within 40 days of the termination of the public hearing, so this board could not postpone its decision."

-Water and sewer lines are inadequate: The board stated that the town Water and Sewer Board "is unable to report positively, owing to lack of funds to pay for engineering studies." Therefore the Appeals Board is requiring the developer to do the studies. In addition, "The grading, drainage and sewer lines must be so constructed and installed that there will be no excessive run-off of storm water onto land of any abutter nor onto Cambridge street nor any back-up of sewerage." "This condition has been included, along with six others, in the permit."

With the filing of this decision, a court suit brought by residents against the Appeals Board's original permit can go ahead. This case could be a landmark one in that Winchester is the only community in the state to have granted housing under Ch. 774.

The Appeals Board last March granted the permit to First Carriage Hill Associates. Residents sued in Middlesex Superior Court and the judge ordered the local board to reopen its hearing because all the required abutters had not been notified.

There are two other constitutional challenges to Ch. 774 pending. But in those cases, the communities are appealing decisions of the Massachusetts Department of Community Affairs in granting permits over the objection of town boards.

The Appeals Board decision also takes up the matter of the qualifications of the developers, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moss, who were involved "in an attempt to evict several families of low-income, Spanish speaking residents" from a building they own in Woburn.

Drugs Taken In Robbery

Winchester experienced its third major theft from a local business store and a second armed robbery within 12 days on Saturday afternoon when an upper Main st. pharmacy was robbed of a quantity of drugs by two youths wielding a gun.

Sergeant-Inspector Roland T. Roy prepared the police report. Two white males, estimated between 18 and 21 years-of-age, entered the Aberjona Drug Store, 888 Main st., at approximately 4:10 that afternoon and demanded drugs from the owner, James Palladino.

As they were purchasing a candy bar, one youth reportedly drew a gun, while the second brought what appeared to be a can of mace into view. After a demand for a drug called Deluden, the owner surrendered about 20 to 30 bottles of assorted drugs. The two then exited toward Canal st.

After the alarm was sounded Officers Charles T. Culhane, William J. Gannon and John E. Guarente responded with Sgt. Roy. This incident followed another alleged armed robbery which took place on Tuesday of last week at the Black Horse Bootery, Waterfield rd. In that instance the store was reportedly relieved of a skirt, blouse and $20 in cash by a man showing a revolver. Harry E. Nelson, 48, of Woburn was arrested and charged with armed robbery several hours after the event.

On Dec. 19 the larceny of $125 was reported at 1 or 2 Things, Mt. Vernon st. In that case two men in their early 20's made a pretense at buying two small items, "accidentally" dropped some change on the floor, and as the clerk bent over to retrieve the money, scooped the money out of the till of the open cash register and departed. No one has been arrested in that case.

Mother and father, Winchester's rare breed of black swans, now sit safely in their new winter quarters at the town yards. Town workers hope the couple will give birth to another baby in the spring.

Amico Leaving Board, Chapman Is Uncertain

The man who broke a 40-year tradition in Winchester by running for selectman for a second consecutive term will not run for a third.

Paul F. Amico, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said in an interview that "personal and family reasons" are at the base of his decision not to seek re-election. He has been a selectman six years.

He added as another factor: "I feel I should give other people a chance to be a selectman." Sherman W. Saltmarsh ran for selectman twice, but his terms were not consecutive.

Following Amico's break with tradition, Selectman John J. Sullivan ran for a second consecutive term. He is the only other selectman to have run for a second consecutive term. His term expires next year.

Winchester has five selectmen. Their terms are staggered. The other selectman whose term expires this year, William G. Chapman Jr., said Tuesday he has not yet decided whether to run for re-election. Chapman is serving his first term on the Board of Selectmen. Before this he was on the Planning Board for five years, four of them as chairman.

Chapman said that he has in the past supported the tradition of a selectman serving only one term. "Now it's more acceptable to serve two terms. I'm mulling it over in my mind and will decide in the next week or two." Chapman is a sales engineer.

Besides Amico, Chapman and Sullivan, the other members of the current board are Arthur E. Dunbar and Vito A. Giarrizzo. There is one announced candidate so far for Board of Selectmen. He is Mark A. Lombardi of 14 Ware rd., a member of the Finance Committee.

Another member of the Finance Committee, Lawrence T. Smith, the chairman, is considering running for the Board of Selectmen. He has made no announcement, however.

Two candidates for selectmen last year, Clara M. Hewis of 91 Swanton st. and William T. Ryerson of 10 Ardley rd., said they have not yet made up their minds whether they will run this year for the board.

Jan. 25 is the last day for candidates to take out nomination papers for the election on March 5.

William G. Chapman Jr.

Rep. Harrison Chadwick (R-Winchester) has filed bills for action this session to reorganize the MBTA, relieve property taxes and to amend the anti-snob zoning law.

The veteran lawmaker outlined recently during an interview at his Everett avenue home how his property tax-relief measures would work. The state would file the budgets for the MBTA, MDC and counties and the legislature would have to approve them. The state would, therefore, be paying directly for these agencies.

There would be no assessments to the towns and cities as at present. The money to pay for these budgets would, instead, come from several other sources.

Revenue sharing, savings from Gov. Sargent's reorganization and increased state revenue from corporate and personal taxes due to the "business upturn" were cited as the prime sources.

If these sources proved short of the $250 million needed to pay for the budgets of the MBTA, MDC and counties, a one-cent sales tax increase (to four percent) should be set, he said.

What are the chances of passage of these measures? "I think that something definitely will be done to bring relief in respect to the MBTA. There will definitely be a reorganization of county government. I also think there are going to be changes in the MDC. There is a good chance of partial fulfillment" (of the intent of his bills).

Chadwick's motive in seeking passage of these measures is relief for the property tax. "I have said repeatedly that the towns and cities should not be called on to pay the assessments for the MDC, MBTA and county government. The cities and towns have little to say how these agencies operate. The work they do should be considered as a branch of state government activities."

Chadwick proposes a total reorganization of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority. One of the prime movers behind reorganization of the old Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA, as it is still called), Chadwick calls the present MBTA bus system "atrocious"; the rapid transit system "good" and the commuter rail service poor.

His bill would transfer total operation of the MBTA to the Mass. Dept. of Transportation, which would continue the rapid transit program under present MBTA management and develop long-range plans for rail commuter service.

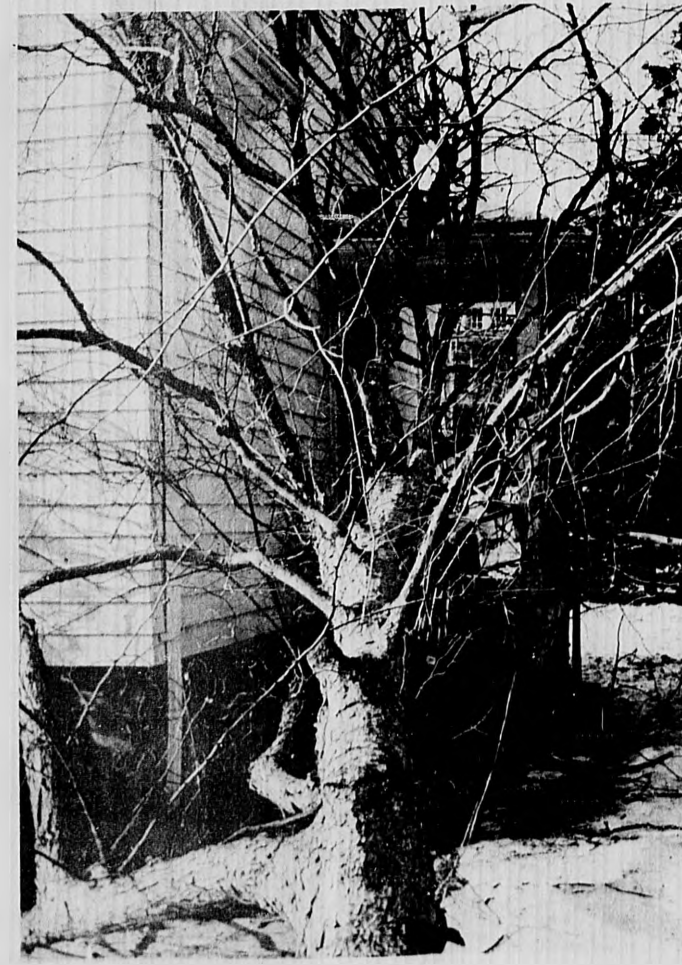

Eventually this rail service would be contracted, "as is being done in other cities." The state would pay the costs of both these systems, which he thinks can be financially self-sustaining.

Buses would be put under contract between the towns and cities.

For example, Winchester, Woburn, Stoneham and Arlington might decide they need bus services between their communities. These towns would contract with a private company, probably under subsidy, to provide such service.

Chadwick points out that now the MBTA bus lines run in competition with private lines.

Chapter 774 is also the target of Rep. Chadwick. He seeks to amend that 1969

Tree at 225 Forest st., home of Paul A. Senesi, came down in last weekend's storm when it became laden with ice. It damaged the side of the house and broke a window.

Memorial Offers Heart Screening, Childbirth, Stop-Smoking Courses

The New England Memorial Hospital, Stoneham, has planned three programs to be held in January. They include a childbirth education course, a heart screening program and stop-smoking sessions.

From Jan. 9 to Feb. 27 at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays the hospital will offer childbirth education classes designed to prepare expectant parents for the birth of their child. The 8-week class will be taught by a registered nurse with a BA degree and include as guest speakers a pediatrician and an obstetrician.

Instruction in breathing exercises and a modified Lamaze method for natural childbirth are to be given during the first hour each evening. The second hour will be spent discussing such topics as anatomy, physiology, intrauterine development, labor, delivery, anesthesia, nutrition, breast and formula feeding, postpartum care, care of the newborn, psychological implications of pregnancy and a tour of the obstetrical unit.

The January heart screening program is designed to screen individuals for factors predisposing to coronary heart disease and begins on Jan. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

A team of doctors and dietitians will present a series of three Thursday evening lectures explaining ways to help prevent the occurrence of a heart attack, stroke, diabetes and other related circulatory diseases. This program was recently approved by the executive committee in conjunction with Dr. Max J. Klainer, chief of medicine, and Dr. Felix Ades, chief of the cardiovascular division.

Beginning Jan. 14 for five days the hospital is offering a free stop-smoking clinic in the gymnasium. Kloss, director of the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking and a hospital physician.

A brief documentary film dealing with various facets of smoking will be shown at each session. A question and answer session will help participants realize that problems of smoking are universal and can be overcome.

Dr. John Gibson will speak on the Metropolitan Open Campus at the general meeting of the Winchester League of Women Voters on January 10. Mrs. Chester L. Dawes of 74 Wedgemere ave. will be the hostess for this meeting which begins at 9:30 a.m.

Dr. Gibson, a well-known educator, is director of the Lincoln Files Center at Tufts University. As chairman of a task force appointed by Mayor White, he has been active in the development of the flexible campus for the Boston schools. This concept of using and coordinating services which may be offered by universities and other institutions could be expanded to the metropolitan area if enough communities are interested.

The local League, which has for many years shown great interest in educational issues, voted by the May convention to study the Metropolitan Open Campus. Mrs. Robert Stelow, chairman of the study committee, invites Winchester residents who would like to learn about this new movement to attend the meeting on January 10.

Rep. Harrison Chadwick rolled to victory over Kenneth Trevett in the November general election.

Artifacts called humans. What have they to do with a Panama vacation? The fact is that such small gold or copper figures are often found in Pre-Columbian Indian graves. The figures at one time were probably meant as offerings for the dead, and represent a deity of some sort. The small statues were the focal point for much gold-greedy speculation at one time in Panama's history. You see, there is a lot to know about Panama besides the canal and a lot to enjoy.

On your next trip, make your travel plans through MC GRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn. These days it's hard to get a lot of vacation for a little money. Hard, but not impossible. Visit Central America where you can bask in the sun, explore a cool volcanic lake, even venture into the fabulous ruins of the ancient Mayan empire under the bluest skies you ever saw. Now isn't that refreshing? Call 935-0900. Open daily 9-5 Saturdays and evenings by appointment.

A Quiz For Those Who Love The Town

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The expression "To know it is to love it" comes to mind in connection with Winchester. If you love Winchester, check how well you know it in the following quiz:

1. Where near the center of town is there a building with a half-burned roof? When was the fire?
2. Where near the river is there a huge abandoned building with broken windows that could be a danger spot? Hint: It is less than a block away from an elementary school.
3. Where in the center of town is a building with a chimney that looks like it might fall off?
4. What property(s) are repeatedly referred to the Board of Health?

To love it is to know it; to know it is to see it.

Any and all town meeting members are urged to discuss these and other concerns in the town. The meeting is sponsored by the WEPA (Winchester Environmental Protection Association) and will be held promptly at 7:45 p.m., Feb. 7 at the Town Hall. It's important that you come.

What Has Become Of The Bluejays?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

May I enquire, sir, through the medium of your informative pages if any of your kind and generous readers can tell me what has become of all the bluejays lately?

I used to see them, winter or summer, in flocks of four or five raiding berry bushes or feeding stations at will, proclaiming their presence meanwhile to all the world by screaming at the top of their lungs their imperious war-cry, like an anvil struck with a sledge—the cry that Thoreau said was like "frozen sound."

For many years they nested in my matted spruce hedge, finding shelter there both summer and winter. Yet as I write this I feel sure that it has been several months now since I saw the last one.

Have they gone elsewhere? Am I less observant? or has something happened to think their ranks drastically, as it did to the little bluebirds?

Motorists Caught By Slick Streets In Many Accidents

Treacherous driving conditions Saturday afternoon caused motorists on Winchester streets to become involved in six accidents within a period of 90 minutes.

The first incident occurred at 12:45 p.m. at Cambridge and Wildwood sts. when an automobile operated by William H. Boylan of 9 Nassau dr. in a southerly direction on Cambridge came into contact with a car driven by Donald A. Hamilton of Arlington, moving north on Cambridge. Both vehicles were towed with damage to the front ends. Officer Charles T. Culhane was assisted by Officer John E. Guarente.

An hour later Officer Culhane reported to Lockeland rd. and Ridge st. where the front end of a car driven by Carl E. Rubino of Arlington, which had been traveling north on Ridge, had collided with the front end of an automobile operated by Eileen A. Cullity of Arlington, who was making a turn from Lockeland onto Ridge. Mrs. Cullity and her mother, also Eileen Cullity of Arlington, were transported to Winchester Hospital. Officers William J. Gannon and Guarente were also at the scene.

At 2:10 p.m. police were scattered between two locations, Cambridge st. and Forest st., where single-car accidents took place. According to Officer Guarente's report, Winfred S. Lee of 200 Swanton st. was moving southerly when he struck a utility pole in front of No. 36 Cambridge. Chan O. Lee and Christopher Lee were both taken to Winchester Hospital.

The automobile of Frances M. Desano of Wakefield was towed from in front of 257 Forest with extensive damage to the front end after it also hit a utility pole. She was transported to Winchester Hospital for treatment of facial cuts and possible head injury. Answering this call were Sergeant-Inspector Roland J. Roy and Officers Richard W. Beaton, Franklin P. R. Bartlett, Gannon and Joseph N. Perritano.

Five minutes later a rear-end collision was recorded in front of No. 23 Cambridge. Raymond A. Dipalma of Medford was traveling around the curve at this location when contact took place with a car proceeding behind him and driven by Charles J. Proctor of Arlington. Damages were to the front and rear ends, respectively. Officer Guarente responded.

The last accident in this series was noted at 2:18 by Officer Culhane when collision occurred between Edward Sullivan III of 16 West Chardon rd., traveling north on Grove st., and Doris Deveney of Medford, moving southerly. Both vehicles were towed. Cheryl Deveney was taken to the hospital.

Need 'Great'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Care this week announced an emergency appeal for funds to support our relief efforts in Nicaragua to aid the survivors of the devastating earthquake which struck the capital city of Managua on Christmas weekend.

Because we have been operating in Nicaragua for the past five years, Care American staff personnel were on the scene immediately and in the hours and days following the quake tons of vital food, utensils and medical assistance have been shipped in to strategic distribution centers outside the stricken area to aid the homeless survivors.

The full range of Care assistance in being mobilized and we will provide whatever type of assistance is requested for as long as it is needed. Care has already responded to requests from the president of Nicaragua and the U. S. ambassador to mount a massive emergency feeding program over the next three weeks.

The need is urgent and the need is great. We are asking all concerned New Englanders to support our vital efforts in Nicaragua. A donation in any amount may be sent to — Care-Nicaragua Earthquake Fund, Boston, 02116.

Another Parent Speaks Out On State Guidelines

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I read with dismay and distress Mr. Robert Anderson's letter to The Star, Dec. 21, concerning the new state guidelines on school Christmas observances.

I heartily disagree with Mr. Anderson's desire to see Christmas programs or observances discontinued in the Winchester public schools.

As a parent of the Lincoln School for the past 12 years, I feel qualified to say that we have seen at least 11 beautiful, inspirational, carefully thought out Christmas programs with every child in the school involved in the execution.

The music, the settings and the joy of the children participating have seemed to set the inspirational tone of our family's Christmas season. I am always overwhelmed at the family response to these memorable Christmas programs, as babies to grandmothers and grandfathers come together, perhaps the only time in the year — to see, to listen, to appreciate, to wonder.

It makes no difference how much talent or intelligence a child has; it is an esthetic time to work, play and sing together, to be inspired. Both children and parents respond uniquely to it.

May I add that as a Lincoln mother library volunteer, I am in the school every other Wednesday. As Christmas grew closer, I did not see the wheels of learning in academic areas slow down nor stop. Perhaps there was the excitement and joy of the anticipated Christmas program approaching but I still heard the teachers around me talking about reading, history projects due, science fairs, book reports, etc.

Our family loved and looked forward to this Christmas gift given to us by the school and our children. Speak out, oh parents, or we may lose our precious gift.

Vandalism Occurs In Break At House

Among breaking and enterings investigated by local police recently was the case of a Trinity rd. residence under construction where the theft was coupled with vandalism.

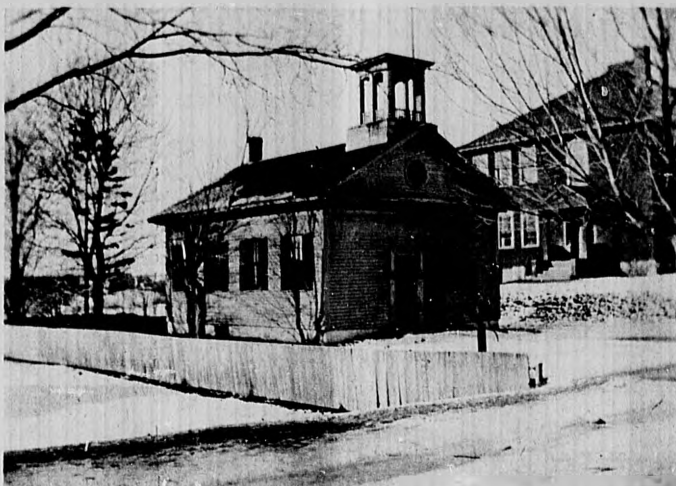

On Wednesday morning of last week Officer Thomas E. Faulkner reported to 17 Trinity rd. where workmen reported the loss of a skill saw, drill, tape, chalkline, punches, utility knife and screwdriver. A window had been broken and a small fire set at the front of the house had caused some damage to that part of the building. A green stain had been thrown on the side, a rear window scratched and damage done to the telephone.

The first day of the year brought complaints of two breaks at local residences. Officer Frank Tranchita went to the home of the David Chamberlain's, 16 Pine st. where access was gained by breaking the glass in a living room door. A television was known to be missing at that time.

At 7 Leyside rd., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hadochia, a stereo set and several check books could not be located. Entry was made by shattering the glass in a rear door and forcing the lock. The house had been ransacked.

At 7 a.m. on Tuesday the owner of the White Hen Pantry on Main st., James Collins, discovered that a rear door had been forced sometime during the night. At the time that Officer Theodore W. Yeanacopolis prepared his report, only a few cartons of cigarettes were known to have been taken. Officer Erwin W. Nurnberger assisted.

A Grove st. resident also reported the larceny of a snow blower, while other citizens complained of entries and attempts at entry to their automobiles.

According to the sign on the front of this building, it is the Washington School. The Winchester Historical Society is interested in learning about the site shown in this picture. If you know where it is, contact The Star office or Mrs. W. K. Ver Planck of the Society.

Apple Trees And Ditches -- One Led To The Other

By Fran Ver Planck
and Don Brown
Winchester Historical Commission

What do apple trees have to do with ditches?

The apple tree in question was first discovered by woodpeckers long before 1792. It was while surveying for a ditch that our "Pecker" apple was discovered by Samuel Thompson of Woburn. (Many Thompsons in Winchester are descended from this early family.) You would think that the apple would, therefore, be called the "Thompson Apple." And so it was, until it became known as the "Baldwin," after its most significant disseminator.

Since the Middlesex Canal, which went through Winchester, was the first long "ditch" or traction canal (horse drawn barge canal) in the United States we might say that any relationship of the apple to the ditch make this apple twice as important.

It was at Butters Row in Wilmington, where the Baldwin Apple Monument now stands, that it was first noted that singular esteem was held for this now famed apple tree by the woodpeckers of the region.

The destruction caused by their voracious attention aroused the curiosity and gustatory delight of Samuel Thompson. We will now defer to the Thompson Family History (property of the Winchester Historical Society) to complete this tale. From this account you can see that there would be no "Baldwin" apple without the "ditch."

"Samuel Thompson, Esq., in early life became interested in surveying, and for many years was engaged in making important surveys in Woburn and in many other towns far and near, including the Middlesex Canal.

"From his surveys, plans were made of Charlestown, Boston and vicinity, and also a part of Charlestown and Cambridge in 1794-1797. He was also greatly interested in agriculture, and early set out a large number of fruit trees. He and his brother, Sheriff Abijah, probably did more than all other men, in connection with their neighbor and friend, Col. Loammi Baldwin, to cultivate, make known, and spread abroad the apple known originally as the "pecker" but later the "Thompson" and for many years the "Baldwin" apple.

It was while surveying for the Middlesex Canal that he discovered the apple in a wild native tree, much injured by the woodpeckers, in the southwestern part of Wilmington; and from the numerous trees which he and his brother grafted near their homes, Col. Baldwin undoubtedly took, subsequently, the scions for his famous four acre orchard."

Col. Loammi Baldwin's "Baldwin Apple" orchard and house bordered the Middlesex Canal. There are plans to restore the house and Canal in North Woburn. Baldwin apple trees have been donated to enhance the grounds when the landscaping has been completed. This is being done by the Woburn Historical Commission and the Friends of the Baldwin Mansion.

Next article will describe restoration work planned by the state DPW and the Woburn Historical Commission of the Middlesex Canal.

Winchester Singing

The following article is reprinted from The Korea Times, published in Seoul, from the Dec. 24 edition. The writer is an employee of the Eighth U.S. Army and has lived in Seoul for five years. The MacDougall family lives at 11 Rangeley Ridge.

By Alan M. MacDougall

A small town in New England is perhaps the best place to spend Christmas because traditions die hard in New England. Even the appearance of a New England town is traditional, and my home town, although it has long since become a very large town in population, still retains the appearance of a small town.

The center of the town, Winchester, Massachusetts, is dominated by the white wooden Congregational Church, and below it is a block-square patch of green known as the Common. It was on this small piece of land that the first settlers grazed their cows. Now it is a well manicured garden with enough open space to serve as a meeting place for the town's teenagers.

Some years ago the Common was ransacked by some of the town's most public-spirited citizens and it is now a thing of beauty most of the year. The blossoms begin with dogwood in the spring and into late fall there are patches of color in the shrubbery.

There is one tree which does not bloom, however, but it has the place of honor in the center of the park. Long after the blossoms on the other trees have faded, this one tree comes into its glory for, as any child in Winchester knows, the tree in the center of the Common is the town Christmas tree.

Early in December workmen hang electric lights from the tree and it begins to glow. Other trees on the Common and elsewhere in the town are lighted but the one which draws the most attention is the Christmas tree. For it is beneath the branches of this tree that Winchester's most pleasant Christmas custom is reenacted year after year.

On the night before Christmas the people of the town, from the very young to the very old, gather to sing Christmas carols and to wish each other a merry Christmas. There is usually a small band made up of high school students, a vigorous conductor and perhaps a lady soloist to sing "O Holy Night" but for the most part the music is quite unprofessional. The highlight of the evening for the children is the singing of "Jingle Bells" because everyone gets to accompany the singing by ringing bells brought from home. Some of the younger children probably ring the sleigh bells which their fathers and mothers rang at similar gatherings under the same tree in years gone by.

Most of the adults get a little teary-eyed singing "Silent Night," but I like "Joy to the World," which is livelier and more fun to sing on a cold night. The carol singing lasts less than an hour but it is an experience that provides a lifetime of memories.

As I join my Korean friends in celebrating Christmas in Seoul, this year I will remember the nice people of Winchester singing beneath the town Christmas tree and will hope that someone there is thinking of me.

BOOK REVIEW

CARO: THE FATAL PASSION
by Henry Blyth

BYRON'S DAUGHTER
by Catherine Turvey

Two books closely concerned with the life of Lord Byron have been published simultaneously. For those who find the Regency period fascinating and would like to know more about the poet's association with Lady Caroline Lamb and with Augusta Leigh, they cannot do better than to read them in the order listed.

The style of CARO is more sensational than that of BYRON'S DAUGHTER, and Caroline's character seems to have been more dramatic than that of her rival for Byron's favors, his half-sister, Augusta. Mr. Blyth establishes Caroline's background for us and gives a startling picture of the morals and manners of the period. It sounds very much as if today's "sexual revolution" has been in progress since well before the 18th century began. It seemed that many titled ladies rushed to give their husbands an heir, then tumbled into as many beds as possible, having done their duty by their legal spouse, and doubtless feeling that what's sauce for the gander must also be sauce for the goose. To have been brought up in this atmosphere would have had a bad effect on a more stable character than Caroline's. It produced in her a tendency towards play-acting and romanticism.

"She was out of tune with her husband who was proving unromantic and materialistic. She needed a hero figure to invigorate her life and she found one in Childe Harold. More exciting still was the realization that here was no character of fiction. Childe Harold was autobiographical . . . She told Rogers that she must meet him and asked what Byron was like. 'He has a club foot and he bites his nails,' replied Rogers, who was somewhat irked by her enthusiasm. 'If he is as ugly as Aesop I must see him,' was her reply."

She launched herself into a passionate affair with Byron like an actress determined to play to the hilt a part specially written for her. When the play came to an end she was reluctant to abandon it and spoiled her own life and that of her husband, who did not come to his fulfillment as a political figure until after Caroline's death, when as prime minister he became the young Queen Victoria's beloved advisor.

While Byron's affair with Caroline Lamb was cooling down, his half-sister Augusta came into his life again. She was married to Captain Leigh, by whom she had several children. But the marriage was not a happy one because her husband was a gambler and a rake. Augusta succumbed to her half-brother's charms and in due course a daughter was born, named Elizabeth Medora Leigh, called Libby by the family.

Catherine Turvey tells the sad story of Libby's youth. Her elder sister by seven years, Georgiana, married Henry Trevanion, a distant cousin on the Byron side of the family. While Libby, then aged 14, was staying with them, Henry seduced her and, as her diary said, "I was ruined—and likely to become a mother by one I had ever disliked." She was taken to France and delivered of a son, which she was forced to give up for adoption.

No present-day "soap opera" could approach the vicissitudes which Libby suffered, only eventually finding love in the person of Jean-Louis Talleyer, whom she married after bearing him a son. Six days after her first wedding anniversary she died of smallpox. The "curse of the Byrons" seems to have been something more than a romantic phrase.

HOUSEBREAK

The Winchester Police Department was awarded a Federal grant of $28,250 in October of 1976 for the project "Comprehensive Attacks on Auto Theft and Burglary." In connection with this heightened focus on burglary, the Department will present "Housebreak," a column suggesting ways in which Winchester residents may assist these efforts against crime in weeks to come through the pages of The Star. Look for it.

Do not open any door, front or rear, of your home unless you know who is there, and upon retiring at night be certain that all doors and accessible windows are secured, especially at the basement level.

Engravers are available at the police station through the Homeowners Engraving Identification program so that you may etch any new purchases or gifts received during the Christmas season.

Tax Rate: Up Or The Same

The Finance Committee expects to make a public announcement "by mid-January" on Winchester's 1973 property tax rate—whether it stays the same or goes up.

"It looks like we'll fare better than other communities," chairman Lawrence Smith said. "But I wouldn't want to predict if it will remain the same or go up."

The town's tax rate is $61 at what comptroller James J. Costello says is "supposed to be 100 percent valuation."

The Finance Committee has received 27 of the town's 60 department budgets and goes over them as received. "Some cuts in the budgets have been made," FinCom chairman Smith said. "But these are subject to further review."

Besides the remaining budgets, the committee is waiting for the comptroller's figures on revenue sharing—more than expected—and for the comptroller and the Personnel Board to check the figures on the budgets that have been gone over.

Smith said the committee is concerned with figures on new programs and changes in departments' activities.

In a related matter, Smith said the committee will meet tonight in public session to go over the Water and Sewer Board's recent request for an emergency transfer of funds to pay $10,000 in debts. The board has run out of money.

Selectman John J. Sullivan has said these long unpaid debts could imperil the credit rating of the town. A townwide policy is supposed to prevent departments from spending money they don't have in their budgets.

Water-Sewer chairman Ernest A. Phillips recently told the selectmen the over-the-budget spending was required for needed work.

Chairman Smith said in a recent interview that FinCom wants "to do some probing as to the why of their overrun" but "would probably cover them (Water-Sewer) for the remainder of the year."

"We need some more information. We haven't refused to give them the money. It's just that the information to this point has been incomplete," he thought this information lack due to a misunderstanding. Tonight's session is to get that information.

Asked if FinCom would again this year come out in opposition to town employees' request for an increase in the town's share of contributory group life and health insurance, Smith said the committee has not yet adopted a policy.

An article in last year's town meeting sought to increase the town's 50 percent share; it was defeated. A similar article has been filed for the March meeting.

Smith said FinCom's opposition last year was not over increasing the town's share but in the method. FinCom last year felt such an increase should have come through collective bargaining—"in light of other collective bargaining policies"—rather than by statute.

Town Departments Are Kept Busy By Weekend Weather

The crew of the Winchester Highway Department was kept busy throughout the New Year's holiday weekend, initially combatting snow and ice until high winds and warmer temperatures on Monday shifted the problem to fallen tree limbs.

Superintendent of Streets Robert G. O'Brien recalls Saturday when salters and sanders were out clearing roadways that evening. This work was curtailed later that night in anticipation of higher temperatures on Sunday. When this did not occur, highway crews were dispatched again Sunday morning to combat the ice build-up with salt, especially around the churches. Work continued until 7 that night with plows scraping snow and slush from Winchester's streets.

The milder weather on Monday saved the town some money, O'Brien admits. The problem then became fallen tree limbs caused by high winds. Highway personnel devoted Monday and Tuesday to collecting this debris.

In several instances limbs brought down power lines, resulting in the loss of electricity at locations throughout town. Local police and firefighters responded to numerous such complaints, hampered by the fact that burglar alarms at several residences were also set off accidentally. Town personnel stood by at these locations to await the arrival of Edison emergency crews.

'Keep Postman On His Feet'

Winchester Postmaster Charles R. Hill is requesting assistance from the postal customer to reduce injuries to the postman caused by falls on icy stairs and sidewalks.

"Your cooperation in clearing, salting or sanding the walks, paths and stairways to your mail receptacle will be deeply appreciated."

"There is some question whether the building, which Mr. Moss said was in such poor condition that it must be razed, was allowed to deteriorate by the Mosses before they sold it a few years ago (taking back a mortgage which was recently foreclosed) or was allowed to deteriorate by the person to whom they sold it."

The decision says Ch. 774 allows limited dividend corporations "to build under Ch. 774 and to make a profit." "Under these circumstances, it does not seem proper for the Board of Appeals to inquire into the genuineness of the concern of the proposed developer for the housing needs of people with low and moderate incomes."

As for the argument that the Mass. Housing Finance Agency has rejected the Mosses application for financing, "We are not able to draw any inferences from this since that rejection may not be final and it appears MHFA regards the site favorably."

The board notes there will be a buffer zone between the apartments and the neighborhood and says the argument that property values in the area will decline was probably anticipated by the legislature (in passing Ch. 774). "We do not have sufficient information to say such a result is inevitable."

The board also notes that the Planning Board recommended that the land be zoned for garden apartments.

"Winchester now has garden apartment zone provisions in its zoning by-laws. This board has imposed conditions that very closely approximate the density, construction and other standards of that garden apartment zone. There is no assurance that the Housing Appeals Committee (of the Dept. of Community Affairs), to which Petitioner had a right of appeal if the permit had been denied or the imposed conditions were unworkable, would have imposed any restrictions or would have imposed conditions as strict as we have."

School Committee Transmits Budget To Finance Comm.

The Winchester School Committee emerged from a nearly three-hour long executive session Thursday night to approve the forwarding of its budget to the Finance Committee.

In other matters the Committee accepted the minutes of Dec. 11.

Reporting on a recent meeting with the Town's Recreation Committee was the School Committee's representative to that body, Robert T. Pritchard. Approval was given for use of the tennis courts at the new high school by the Recreation department and to the incorporation of $5000 in the school budget to cover employment of an attendant of the WMS gymnasium so that this facility may be used by residents.

Use of the gym by the public was granted on evenings when it is not required by the student body itself. The sum of $5000 will provide for an attendant for a period of 33 hours per week and will be placed in the school rentals budget. It was the feeling of the Committee that school facilities should be available to all residents of the town as much as possible.

Concerning the tennis courts, an area of discussion given further attention by the Recreation and Park Departments will be lighting at this location. Should it be decided to install such lighting as part of the school plant, the cost would again be borne by the School Department.

In dealing with personnel matters the resignation of Thomas L. Hughes as winter track coach at the high school was accepted and Thomas R. Kline elected in this extra-curricular post. The position of senior high school yearbook advisor was granted to Paul T. Mulloy.

Discussion of business matters brought about the award of contracts for various items of physical education equipment for secondary and elementary schools to the low bidders in each case. These are part of the 1972 budget.

Approval of the bid for a fire alarm system at the Mystic School was given to Moreland Electric Company of Arlington.

★ Chadwick

can cause the erection of high rise or other types of unwanted housing in any part of that community. It is vicious legislation and intolerable."

The long-time Winchester representative also seeks passage of two other bills, one to establish half-way houses at every state mental hospital and a constitutional amendment to insure a local aid fund.

Under his local aid fund legislation, the state would be prohibited from dipping its hand into the till of money to go back to the towns and cities. In recent years the fund has been empty because the state has used the money to pay for its own expenses.

Chadwick seeks to establish a regular input for this fund.

The half-way houses bill would require the state mental institutions to establish places where patients coming out and those potentially going in can receive counseling.

"They would be a dual purpose facility. Those persons on a verge of a breakdown would have the opportunity to withdraw from the pressures of society and could be spared the necessity of full hospital treatment."

The persons coming out, he said, would have a gradual chance to adjust to the pace of society. They would be in contact with a doctor in a "congenial and sympathetic atmosphere. Their chances of making it would be much better."

Chadwick said there are in Massachusetts half-way houses for drug addicts, convicts and alcoholics.

Ballet

"Little Matchgirl" Is Noonan's Christmas Play

The children of Noonan School were recently entertained by dance students from The Boston Conservatory of Music. An original Christmas ballet based on the fable, "The Little Matchgirl," was produced and choreographed by seniors Jennifer Bernacki, Robert Buntzen, Marie Liang and Tiny Paul. Twenty freshmen and sophomores, dressed in bright costumes, performed. At the conclusion of the program, the dancers visited each classroom speaking with the children and allowing them a close look at their costumes.

Dance majors at the Boston Conservatory of Music attend dance technique, theory and academic classes for four years, graduating with a bachelor of fine arts degree. The program is rigorous and intense, including daily dance technique classes in ballet and modern as well as advanced study in dance styles, music theory, pedagogy and composition.

As seniors, the latter is very important, for it is through this course that the students are able to experiment with their own talents on a large scale project, such as "The Little Matchgirl." Seniors have the full responsibility of arranging performances, costumes, staging and management. Mrs. Edward Haddad, Enrichment Program chairman of the Noonan School Parents Association, made the arrangements for this performance. Paula Caffrey, principal, stated that she felt that this was the most beautiful Christmas program presented at the school.

First Al-Ateen Meeting Monday On Alcoholism

The first meeting of Al-Ateen in Winchester will take place on Monday at the First Congregational Church in the Forum Room. Al-Ateen groups, throughout the nation, meet to learn about the disease of alcoholism, its effects on the family unit, and how to live with the problem in the society.

The group is open to young people from 11-19 years of age. Two adult members of Alcoholics Anonymous or Al-Anon will be present. The groups are run by the young people with the aid of an experienced Al-Ateen.

For more information contact Mrs. Emily Towstollor of 27 Elmwood ave.

Local Girl Seeks Support Of Town For Youth Center

Leslie Layne, a young female resident, wrote to the Winchester Selectmen recently asking for an opportunity to go before the board to discuss the possibility of establishing a youth center for Winchester students in ninth grade and above and including graduates.

Miss Layne maintains that there has been a need for a youth center for three or four years - since the closing of the Drop-In Center which was located on Winchester St.

"There is nothing to do in Winchester," she told The Star. "That's why so many of the town's youth just hang around and get high, doing nothing," she says.

Miss Layne and others who are making plans with her for a future youth facility envision a place that would be open Fridays and Saturdays where young people can enjoy music, dance, watch television, play ping pong, eat refreshments and "just enjoy themselves. This community needs a center and residents should understand this," she notes. They also have plans to engage musical groups for entertainment.

Miss Layne, who explains that she and her associates have no funds at present, seeks support of the town to help fund the youth center which would include having a policeman on duty for special functions. She's hoping, too, that a permit may be obtained to allow the center to remain open until midnight since older youth would not want to leave at 11 p.m.

A graduate of the Shaw Preparatory School in Boston, and now attending a computer processing school, Miss Layne says that one of the local churches has agreed to provide a facility for a center.

The Star contacted the Selectmen and were told that they have turned Miss Layne's letter over to the Recreation Department. They have not as yet received a response because the Recreation Dept. has not met since receipt of her letter.

Used Car Licenses, Chiefs' Pay Aired By Bd. Of Selectmen

The Winchester Board of Selectmen met briefly Tuesday night and withheld action on several matters, including a recommendation that a second-hand motor vehicle license be revoked.

This was on the application of Lafayette Motors, 1026 Main st., for renewal of its license to sell used cars. Chief Engineer (fire chief) I. Francis Amico in a letter to the board recommended the license be revoked.

He said Lafayette Motors is no longer at the address of their application and "he has heard that they are doing business from their homes on Canal or Water streets. They use their license to keep a set of dealer's plates for their own use."

"They are doing business from a location not zoned for business," the board voted to invite Lafayette's owners to discuss the issue with them.

One of Lafayette's owners, V. Michael Bradley, said in a telephone interview that the firm has never sold cars from homes. "We have never had dealer's plates," he also said.

Bradley went on that the firm sustained damages to its cars and "the Winchester police proved ineffective" in controlling the vandalism. "We had to fight to even get them to investigate."

He said Lafayette hasn't sold "any cars for six months" and that neither he nor his partner, John Drugash, has dealer's plates.

The board withheld action on renewal of another application. This was from Guy's Auto, 925 Main st. "Both the operator and the owner of this property have been very uncooperative with the Fire Department," said Amico in a letter to the board.

He listed a number of fire-safety measures the firm has "refused" to complete.

In other discussion, the board held off action on a request from Police Chief Edward F. Bowler that a crosswalk be moved and parking prohibited on one side of Canal street to "improve visibility" at the Noonan School, subject of protracted discussions over whether a school crossing guard is needed.

His letter contained other suggestions. At the recommendation of Selectman Arthur E. Dunbar, the board held the matter until Dunbar looks into it.

Fire and Police Chiefs pay also came under discussion, with comments from Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen Jr. that the Internal Revenue Service has no objection if the chiefs were placed in a pay unit with the men of their departments.

What this means is that the chiefs' pay could be pegged in relation to the pay of the men of their department. Under President Nixon's wage-price guidelines, difficulty arose over whether the legislature's passage of a bill setting chiefs' salaries at double that of patrolmen and firemen was legal.

The board approved the appointment of Bruce M. Thatcher to the Winchester Auxiliary Department.

School Committee Will Meet Monday In Sanborn House

The Winchester School Committee will convene this Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the High st. administrative offices in Sanborn House.

Items suggested for this agenda include a summary of the area communities utilizing the 40-minute period at the secondary level from WHS principal Vincent E. Larocco and a decision on the Lesley Summer School program.

Reports may be heard from Superintendent of Schools William C. MacDonald and from Harriet E. Nelson on the proposed child development courses for the 1973-1974 home economics curriculum.

Other matters, as well as business and personnel items, will be added to the agenda should they arise.

No Baby Yet

Winchester has had zero population growth in 1973. While that may be happy news to ecologists, to those sponsoring the annual first-baby-of-the-year contest it is frustrating.

Eleven area businesses are waiting to present to the Winchester parents of the first baby born in 1973 in Winchester Hospital free gifts. As of noon Wednesday, Winchester Hospital recorded four births—but none by Winchester parents.

Contrary to what was stated in the full-page advertisement in last week's Star announcing the contest, the winning baby must be born in Winchester Hospital and the parents must be Winchester residents.

Jaycees Pick Up Christmas Trees

For the tenth consecutive year the Winchester Jaycees will be out in force picking up discarded Christmas trees for dump disposal.

At 8 a.m., Jan. 6, trucks from the Park Department will fan out over the six precincts to begin the day-long operation. "As in the past, a token donation securely fastened to the tree will be welcomed," said a Jaycees spokesman. This year the money will be used for purchasing trees and shrubs to beautify unsightly areas. The Jaycees will make plantings at desired locations in the town coordinating with the Winchester Environmental Protection Association.

The Jaycees are asking residents to place their tree at the end of the front walk or driveway to make pickup easier. Chairman Don Goodell suggested homeowners wait "until the last moment," if possible, to attach their donation to the tree to discourage would be "tree pickers." Over 2,200 trees were "picked up" and "chipped up" last year.

Census To Show More Residents?

On New Year's day census takers began their annual rounds in Winchester and the results will probably show an increase in the town's population of 23,258.

"With new homes being built the population will have to go up some," said Town Clerk Elsie M. Nelson. "That whole area from Johnson road is all opened up" to new house construction, she said. She also cited the opening up of other areas, including the so-called Greek Streets section of town, on the Lexington side of Winchester near Cambridge street.

The census takers this week have been concentrating on those streets that are the most difficult to canvass in snow and ice. Precinct 4, for example, "gets pretty rough," Mrs. Nelson said. Precinct 4 is the Johnson road-Greek Streets area. Some days in January they may not be able to get out, Mrs. Nelson said. Thus the New Year's day start.

There are 13 poll takers, two for each precinct and one for apartments. They will complete their questioning in three weeks. Massachusetts law requires an annual listing of residents.

The census takers are persons the Town Clerk's office has used in the past. "It's good to use people from year to year because then the residents recognize them," Mrs. Nelson said.

"We would urge people where there is snow to please have a passage. And please cooperate with the census takers." She added that they carry identification cards.

Mites Down Newton, 8-6

The Winchester Youth Hockey Mites skated by Newton on Sunday 8 to 6. Co-captain Tony Celli led the way with four goals and an assist.

Co-captain Chris Parker started the scoring early when he stole a pass and came right down the slot to put it in the upper corner. Tony Celli was next as he broke down the right lane on a pass from Scotty Stillman and found the corner on the short side.

Chris Parker scored the third goal as Scotty Stillman set it up again with a feed through. Christ banged it home from 10 feet out in front.

Tony Celli on a pass from Mike Surabian on the left side scored the fourth goal when he caught the goalie going the wrong way. Jimmy Coppins assisted by Tony Celli scored late in the second period as he took a pass and scored from a jam out in front.

To start the third period Tony Celli stole a pass and flew down the alley catching the corner. Tommy Sullivan scored the winning goal as Billy Eaton passed out in front from the corner and Tommy put it home. The final goal came from Tony Celli again as he came down the slot and took a pass from Jimmy Coppins; "bang" it was 8 to 6.

John Koslowski, president of the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center, informs that the two youths earned the right to participate in the event through their fine performances in local tourneys.

According to Koslowski, the trip to Florida was arranged for the youths through the efforts of tennis professional Don Usher who is a resident professional at the Winchester Center. Usher is also escorting the young players and acting as their advisor during the tournament.

Five minutes later Greg Ames scored his second with some great team work by Mario Cutone and Dave Mallard to put Eulalian lions up 3-0. Somerville spoiled a shut out with less than a minute to play as Mario Piperrline scored on a scramble in front of the nets.

Eulalia's Bruins

More action saw the North Stars mounting first place, as they edged the Redwings in a battle for first place 3-2. The second goal by Dave Mallard provided the winning margin at 10:48 of the third period. Mike Cutone narrowed the margin to 3-2 at 8:10 to finish the scoring.

PRICING YOUR HOUSE RIGHT

The value of your house is not what you think it is - or what the buyer thinks it is. It is determined chiefly by the location, the neighborhood and the current market. An overpriced house sitting on the market for months becomes almost impossible to sell. So, first, you must get in line with the market. That means a realistic appraisal.

Nobody - but nobody - is more acutely aware of the current housing market than your local Realtor. A reputable Realtor can bring in his own appraisal expert or even a team of salesmen who will individually price your home and then reach a fair consensus. Or you can hire a qualified independent appraiser. You may be pleasantly surprised to find out that you were intending to price your house for less than its fair market value.

If possible, your price should include curtains, draperies, refrigerator, air-conditioners, dishwasher, built-ins. It's a better package deal and may hasten the sale.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Two Losses Halt Sachem Ice Surge

By John F. Parrell

The Winchester hockey team which rode high atop the Middlesex League during the Christmas holiday, dropped two games last week, the first to the Burlington Red Devils by 3-2 and the other to the Wakefield Warriors by 4-1.

These knocked them from a tie for first into a fourth place deadlock with Burlington. With a rugged stretch of four games lying just ahead, as Reading, Stoneham and Melrose come here before a trip to Woburn ends the first half, the Kelley men must rebound sharply if they are to stay in contention.

The first half of the Burlington game found the Sachems playing good hockey, as they built up a 2-0 lead on goals by Kevin Pronski and Charlie Egan. Play was fast as the Red Devils roared down the ice, but the Sachem defense was successful in protecting the two goal-lead.

Just about the midpoint of the period the action became more on the rugged side, with both teams handing out hard checks. At one point there were five separate penalties in five minutes, with the visitors getting three, and Winchester called for two.

However, the Sachems were hurt more by the penalties, since captain Peter McCafferty tallied for the Red Devils while the home forces were short handed. Meehan got the assist, but the goal was deflected off a Winchesterite, and Tony Guarente never had a chance.

Burlington drew even in the final minute as Flynn caged the disc with an assist for the Burlington captain. The visitors kept on pressing as the final period opened. The Sachems couldn't seem to clear their own zone. Finally, after nearly three minutes of concentrated attacking, McCafferty took a pass from Yeadon and from behind a screen of players, he slipped it into the Winchester goal.

The rest of the game found the Red Devils enjoying a wide territorial edge. Winchester's closest approach to a score was a long slap shot which goalie Pergamo lost sight of, only to have the puck stop dead on the ice just about an inch out of the corner of the cage.

It was an almost unbelievable turnaround for the Sachems, who had played the smooth skating visitors to a standstill over the first period and a half, only to have the game end on such an unfavorable note. Tony Guarente played perhaps his best game ever in the Winchester nets, but it went for naught, since the newcomers to the league emerged as the winners.

The Wakefield game found the fast skating Warriors breaking fast to register the first goal only nine seconds after the opening faceoff. Peter Whiting pushed the puck in after taking passes from John Crocker and George Roberto. They kept up their rushing and smooth passing, and Whiting and Crocker joined by Bruce Candy added a second goal at 7:52 of the opening session.

The Sachems were not playing the hockey of which they are capable, and Wakefield was still relentlessly on the attack. John Melanson scored after 7:13 of the second period, with Lee Sardella getting the assist. George Roberto poked in the final Warrior goal after 28 seconds elapsed before Kevin Pronski scored the Sachem goal on an assist from Kevin Pierce.

From that point on, the Winchester team steadied down and played better hockey. But it was too late, and Wakefield came out on top 4-1, to assume second place behind the highly favored Red Raiders of Melrose. So, the week saw the Winchesterites play three periods of good hockey, and three which were below par, but the net result was two costly defeats.

Coach Kelley is hoping for better things in the upcoming crucial games, and he has worked the boys hard to correct the mistakes which have proven so costly.

In spite of the fact that the new USA rink is just around the corner, the attendance at the games has not been up to expectations.

The scoring summaries:
BURLINGTON 3, WINCHESTER, 2
First period: WIN: Pronski, assist for O'Connell, 5:34.
Second period: WIN: Evans, assist for Brenton, 2:43; BUR: McCafferty, assist for Third period: BUR: McCafferty, assist for Yeadon, 2:43.

WAKEFIELD 4, WINCHESTER, 1

First period: WAK: Whiting, assists for Crocker and Roberto, 0:09; WAK: Whiting, assists for Crocker and Candy, 7:52.
Second period: WAK: Melanson, assist for Sardella, 7:13.
Third period: WAK: Roberto, unassisted, 0:28; WIN: Pronski, assist for Pierce, 0:28.

Local Witnesses To Hold Meeting

Jehovah's Witnesses in Winchester were advised this week that their next semi-annual circuit convention will be held in Lynn on Saturday and Sunday. Richard G. Wendt, presiding overseer of the local congregation, made the announcement at the groups' weekly Watchtower Bible Study. The Burlington Congregation will send 85 delegates to the religious gathering.

According to Wendt, the meeting will be held at the Lynn Vocational Technical Institute, beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday, and will conclude with a public discourse on Sunday on the subject, "Is This All There Is To Life?" The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society is the sponsor of the two-day event and will send F. R. Bartell from the Society's Brooklyn, N.Y., headquarters to act as chairman of the program and deliver the principal address. Besides Bartell, Charles Steele, circuit overseer and local witnesses in the area will participate on the program, which will include discussions, interviews, demonstrations and talks, said Wendt.

The meetings are scheduled every six months as a means to analyze the ministry work of the 23 congregations in the circuit and to make plans for improving their Bible educational work. One of the highlights, Wendt advised, would be a meeting of the elders from the 23 congregations, scheduled for Sunday morning with the District Overseer, F. R. Bartell.

The total attendance expected is 3000 and all sessions are free to all interested persons.

Third Honor

Sergt. Feeney's Award Cites 'Extreme Bravery'

Since a commendation from the Metropolitan District Commission and a subsequent appointment to sergeant with the Revere MDC police, Richard J. Feeney of 39 Nelson st. has been primarily a desk man. But the night of November 14 of last year during a New England wind and rain storm, Sergt. Feeney was "on the street" and his actions that night earned him more honors.

At the award ceremony on November 29 at which four other MDC officers were recognized he received the highest award presented by that force a certificate of commendation. The citation pointed to extreme bravery and extraordinary police work "in a courageous attempt to rescue a man from drowning by plunging into raging surf at Lynn Beach during a severe storm on November 14, 1972, at great personal risk." MDC Commissioner John W. Sears made the presentation.

The sergeant advises that the key word in the selection of recipients for this award is "extraordinary," though he does not see his own actions in such a light due to his position as head of special services for all MDC police underwater recovery and bomb disposal work.

Feeney remembers the night of November 14. He was on duty in a car when the call came through. A 14-year-old had approached the railing at Lynn Beach along the walkway and been swept over the barrier by the surf. A second young man, 25, his teacher, had jumped in to save him.

As police first arrived the student was holding onto the railing, while the man held onto the boy. The youth caught a blanket thrown to him by police and was pulled to safety, but the man lost his grip and was swept back into the sea. When Sergeant Feeney reached the scene he could still catch glimpses of the man in the surf beyond. He leapt into the water and made attempts to pull the 25-year-old back to shore, but was not able.

Also cited in this incident was Patrolman Richard A. Nazarro of Medford.

The more frequent form of honor conjured up by the Commission is a letter of commendation which is placed into an officer's personal record. But Feeney, a native and lifelong resident of Winchester, has received the certificates three times.

The two previous citations came on October 31, 1967, for his investigation leading to narcotics arrests, a case in which a fellow officer was killed, and in 1963 for his attempts to save a woman from a fire in Winchester. The 1963 certificate was jointly awarded by the State legislature and bears the signature of Secretary of State Kevin H. White.

Sergt. Feeney, who is looking forward to being a lieutenant, was named a sergeant in August of 1967. And while experience and commendations count, it is one's score on the formal examination which has most weight. Competition for ranking positions within MDC police districts is shared by hundreds of men and finalists come down to a handful who can boast scores close to 100 and varying by only hundredths of a percent.

To over five years in the Revere district, Feeney can add 12 with the MDC at Wellington Circle. There are seven districts in the State. With more than 700 men in his present district, the sergeant bears the responsibility for more than 100 officers on any given night.

His latest position brought mainly administrative duties and a desk. But Feeney describes himself as "active" and recalls his work with the State district attorney's offices and in homicide, narcotics, detective and plainclothes duties. As current head of special services for bomb disposal and underwater recovery work, which primarily involves the procurement of evidence, the sergeant is occasionally called away from this Boston-based agency to areas of trouble throughout the State.

Together with the standard schools which MDC officers must attend, he is a graduate of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Harmful Drugs, Bomb Disposal and Hazardous Devises, International Police Chiefs Association Bomb Scene Control Officers and Connecticut State Police Academy's Bomb Disposal schools.

Feeney, who was born and educated in this town and whose parents came from Ireland, served with the US Navy during World War II, followed by services with the United Nations forces in Palestine during that Arab-Israeli up-rising. During this time he was connected with the first Palestinian mediation team which met in Sweden, affording him an opportunity to stay at the Swedish royal palace.

Between 1950 and 1955 he worked as a member of the crash crew dealing in rescue work and firefighting at Logan International Airport in Boston. In 1955 he joined the Metropolitan District Commission police.

Sergt. Feeney and his wife Anne have nine children ranging from 4 to 22 years of age, only two of which are girls. His oldest, a member of the US Navy, was recently married.

While remembering a time when "you used to recognize everybody in town," he helps to maintain his acquaintance with Winchester through St. Mary's Parish and the local Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legions.

Police Superintendent Laurence T. Carpenter (right) also participated in the November ceremonies.

Mulch Pit: 'With Every Solution, Another Problem'

"Excavations" at Wildwood Cemetery that have aroused a group of residents to complain to the Board of Selectmen are actually the operation of a mulch pit to create earth.

Cemetery Commissioner Sherman R. Josephson said leaves, grass and trimmings are dumped in the hole and covered in accordance with an agreement between the Cemetery Commission and the Board of Selectmen (acting for the Highway department).

The vegetation is picked up at the town dump and brought to the cemetery under the supervision of the Highway Department. Some residents of Ardley place and Ardley road claim refuse is mixed in with the vegetation.

The result of this "substantial amount of refuse" is that "odors emanating from the mulch-refuse mixture have at times been unbearable," the residents wrote in a petition. Edward R. Haddad of 19 Ardley rd. is the first signer, with seven others.

The odors are the result of the leaves being periodically turned over, said Josephson.

The residents also complain: "For six months, noisy, heavy construction equipment has been operating daily within yards of our property."

Josephson says that town equipment is used to dig the mulch pits and to dump the trimmings and a bulldozer used in the operation. He believes the crux of the neighborhood complaints is over the noise from the equipment.

"In my opinion, they are probably getting sick and tired of the noise. And the activity does create noise. It's part of the problem of where to put the leaves in town."

"If we burn them you get the ecologists after you. Parts of the cemetery need good solid fill—which this is." He said ash from the town incinerator is also dumped in the mulch pit and this is good in creating fill.

Josephson summed up the situation: "With every solution you create another problem."

Another resident of the area, who refused to let The Star use his name, was asked the cause of the odors. "You can guess as well as I can," he said. "Stuff is hauled from the dump."

He was generally favorable to the operation, but thought it might need more supervision. "People sometimes worry things beyond what they are." He said the mulch pit creates earth in four years and the town would not be making good use of this opportunity if it didn't operate the pit.

Five Taking Out Selectmen Papers

Reports this week that four more persons will run for selectmen brings to five the number of candidates who may be vying for the two seats up for grabs this year on the board.

Selectman William G. Chapman Jr. indicated Monday he would seek reelection for a second term.

The other seat that will be contested is that of Paul F. Amico, the chairman of the board, who will not seek a third term.

Announcements of candidacy were made this week by Emidio DiLoreto of 93 Thornberry rd., a Winchester attorney; Eugene B. Rotondi of 224 Forest st., a contractor who ran against Chapman three years ago; and Lawrence T. Smith of 4 Meadowcroft rd., chairman of the Finance Committee.

The fifth candidate, Mark A. Lombardi of 14 Ware rd., food store owner, announced his candidacy three weeks ago. Chapman has made no formal announcement.

Town Meeting Moderator Raymond J.

Kenney said Tuesday he will seek reelection. He has no announced opposition. He ran unopposed last year for the position vacated by Harrison Chadwick.

Candidates have until Jan. 25 to obtain nomination papers. Town meeting members seeking reelection have until Jan. 22 to notify the town clerk. New town meeting candidates have until Jan. 25 to obtain nomination papers.

All nomination papers are required to be submitted Jan. 29.

Other persons who have taken out papers for election are: Assessor (one three-year vacancy), Werner A. Carlson of 14 Bigelow ave. and Sumner M. Beal Jr. of 30 Hollywood rd.; Library Trustees (two three-year vacancies), Dudley B. Samoiloff of 3 Grove st., Richard F. Murdock of 12 Edgehill rd. and James W. Blackham Jr. of 33 Canterbury rd.;

Library Trustee (one one-year vacancy), Alice D. Butare of 75 Bacon st.; Winchester

Housing Authority (one five-year vacancy), John L. Doherty of 137 Highland ave.; Park Commission (one three-year vacancy), William T. Ryerson of 10 Ardley rd.

Positions for which no candidates have yet taken out papers are: Assessor (one one-year vacancy), Board of Health (one three-year vacancy), Cemetery Commission (one five-year vacancy), Cemetery Commission (one one-year vacancy), Commissioner of Trust Funds (one three-year vacancy).

Also, Constable (one three-year vacancy), Planning Board (one five-year vacancy), School Committee (two three-year vacancies), Water and Sewer Board (one three-year vacancy).

All persons who take out papers may not submit them.

Speculation that Clara M. Lewis of 91 Swanton st. might run for selectman was stopped this week when she unequivocally said she would not enter that contest.

Injured

Police put Stephen Macko, 10, of 30 Wildwood st. on a stretcher to take him to Winchester Hospital Tuesday at 5:10 for treatment of leg injured while skating at Winter Pond. He received a fractured leg, which was put in a cast. He was released.

The current chairman of Winchester's Finance Committee has announced that he is a candidate for the Board of Selectmen.

Lawrence T. Smith, an accountant and specialist in financial management, lives with his wife, Vera, and three children at 4 Meadowcroft rd.

Emidio DiLoreto of 93 Thornberry rd. has announced his candidacy for the office of selectman. The candidate is a practicing attorney with an office at 1 Mt. Vernon st.

He is married to Dr. Antonette E. DiLoreto, chairman of the business and office education department at Arlington High School. He has two children: Elizabeth, a junior at Wellesley College, and Michael, a senior at Manter Hall School.

He has been in the construction building field for many years, at one time supervising 35 persons. Rotondi & Sons of Winchester continues in operation by the candidate's four sons.

He has personally been in contact with all types of building construction—lands, industrial, water, sewer, roads and building and masonry construction.

He has been a real estate broker for 10 years.

A town meeting member for more than 33 years from Precinct 1, he has been chairman of the Public Works Study Committee, publicity chairman for junior and senior high schools and has been active in civic drives.

He is a member of the Sons of Italy and has held "all offices from venerable down." He is a member of the Knights of Columbus Council 210, Aberjona Civic Association, past member of the Christopher Columbus as recording and financial secretary.

He is a graduate of Wentworth Institute and Northeastern University with a bachelor of law degree.

Thomas Was A Week Late But Wins The Baby Contest

Thomas W. Shattuck was a week later than his expected arrival, but he still won Winchester's first baby of 1973 contest. He was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Shattuck (Patricia D. Baldwin) of 9 Stone ave. on Monday, Jan. 8, at Winchester Hospital.

The nine-pound, 21-inch boy was born at 11:05 a.m. with Dr. John C. Goring attending. The Shattucks have another son, James, who was born in Winchester Hospital on May 8, 1970 weighing 10½ pounds.

Mrs. Shattuck took this opportunity to express her appreciation at what she feels has been exceptionally good treatment by the medical staff at Winchester Hospital on both occasions.

"This is great fun, better than an exemption," she repeated twice regarding the estimated arrival of their newest son on taxes as opposed to winning the contest.

The boy, who is healthy and boasts the auburn hair of his father, will bear a middle name of Wynne (or Winn), the spelling has not yet been determined, in recognition of an aunt Winnifred in New York. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Shattuck of Hardwick, Vt., are presently visiting in this town, taking care of Jimmy and preparing for Thomas.

Shattuck is executive vice president of the Smaller Businesses Association of New England, a job which takes him to Washington, D. C., once a month and occasionally on lesser jaunts through New England. The couple have been residing on Stone ave. for two years. Mrs. Shattuck comes from New York and her husband from Vermont. Mrs. Shattuck regards Winchester as an "ideal community" in which to raise children and looks forward to enrolling the boys in the school system.

"We had been joking about having the first baby before, but then I read the article in The Star last Wednesday saying that they hadn't had a first baby yet." Now Mrs. Shattuck is thanking the merchants of Winchester who sponsored this contest for their generosity. Gifts given to the baby by these businesses will include a photographic portrait from Delia Alonso, Photographer; accessory from El-Jay Showrooms of Medford; $20 check from the Fitzgerald Fuel Company, Inc., christening cake from Helen's Pastry Shoppe, Arlington; case of formula and assortment of baby needs from McCormack's Apothecary; appropriate gift from Topsy Turvy; subscription from The Winchester Star; and 10 silver dollars from each of the sponsoring banks, Winchester Co-operative, Winchester National, Winchester Savings and Winchester Trust Company Banks.

The first baby actually born in the Winchester Hospital this year, but to out-of-town residents, occurred on January 1 at 7:04 a.m. to Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Khachadorian (Priscilla) of Wakefield.

One of those proposals may come from the Planning Board--to rezone an area in Winchester Center to permit construction of apartments. Schaeffer said it would be a high density district. The board hasn't decided where this area would be or to what height the buildings would rise.

The board has rejected any combination zoning, such as is being center businesses favoring apartment-business mix.

The reason for this rejection, said Schaeffer, is that the board's consultants have studied mixed areas, such as the Prudential Center, and has found them to be more appropriate for large urban areas.

Other zoning requests may come from Bonnell Ford to relocate on Cambridge street and from the Conservation Commission for flood plain zoning areas.

Specific requests such as these would be acted on after the town has adopted the townwide bylaw establishing zoning districts. The only new district would be in the center, where apartments are proposed.

The selectmen were cool to calling a special meeting because it might overlap the annual meeting, which begins March 15. At least 37 articles will be acted on. The selectmen held off action on Schaeffer's request until the Planning Board submits more details on the proposed bylaw.

Schaeffer said one of the reasons the Planning Board is proposing that the town act first on general zoning is "to avoid controversy and let the town act unemotionally. Two years ago when we tried to get the new (zoning) map we specified changes from one zone to another." A special meeting rejected the proposal under a barrage of criticism.

Planning Bd. Is Proposing New Zoning

Winchester's Planning Board asked the Board of Selectmen this week to call a special town meeting prior to the annual March town meeting to act on a proposed townwide zoning bylaw.

"We felt a zoning bylaw is a big complicated matter best handled in a separate meeting," Planning Board chairman Otto E. Schaeffer Jr. told The Star.

Schaeffer said the new bylaw would keep all land as it is now zoned in the same zones except for Winchester Center. The difference would be in new building regulations incorporated in the proposed bylaw.

The proposal would ask the town to enact a law "that will have some better controls over what can or cannot be done in specific areas." Schaeffer hopes specific proposals for rezoning would come during the annual meeting.

Court Cases

Trevett Loses; Gives Up

The courts last week rejected Kenneth P. Trevett's bid to declare the November representative race invalid and the 25-year-old challenger to Rep. Harrison Chadwick said the fight is over—for now.

Judges in Middlesex and Suffolk Superior Courts saw no reason to declare a new election and refused to unseat the incumbent.

"While three Superior Court judges have ruled that they do not have jurisdiction in this election dispute, they all suggested that there was much legal merit to our case as did many other lawyers and court officials we consulted," said Trevett in a statement.

Commented Chadwick: "I thought the judges handled their duty as they saw fit. There was no reason for them to do otherwise. They had precedents over the years in cases of close election. Both judges followed these precedents."

Trevett attacked recent "rumors" in Winchester attempting to put the qualifications of his lawyers in a poor light. "There are some people who disagreed with my decision to ask the courts to rule on the validity of this election."

"I respect their disagreement. It was a difficult decision for me to make. But I do not respect those people who indulged in baseless and vicious attacks on my legal advisors."

Those charges smacked of the inane and incorrect rumors circulated during the campaign that I had been fired from my job at the State House.

"Politics is said to be a dirty business. It is clear that politicians are not the only people who soil the occupation."

Chadwick immediately removed himself from any connection with what Trevett charged. "I know nothing about it," he said. "I have made no criticism of his attorney at any time. I assumed he was advising his client in what he thought was his client's best interests.

"No rumors have emanated from me or anyone closely connected to me."

Trevett is refusing to take his election challenge to the next and last legal step—the House of Representatives. "I am most reluctant to bring to a political forum a case which so clearly involves important, but vague, points of law. Legal precedent should not be established by party vote."

If Trevett had taken his challenge to the House, he would have had to file a petition. If accepted, the House Speaker would have had to set up a special committee on elections to interview all the parties in the case and then the full House would vote on the committee's report.

Trevett said of that course: "There was a great need for definitive judicial interpretation in this area of law and I strongly feel that the judges were unnecessarily timid about involving themselves in the case. It is my intention to file legislation next year to clearly specify that election disputes belong in the courts and not the legislature."

Trevett also said he is "strongly considering" running against Chadwick in 1974. This was his second attempt to unseat the 69-year-old incumbent who has been in the House 26 years.

In 1970 Trevett lost by 714 votes. In the November election he lost by 27 initially. A recount narrowed that to 20 votes.

During the recount, envelopes that contained absentee ballots were found by Trevett's lawyers to lack certain technical requirements. Because the envelopes are separated from the secret absentee ballots, there was no way of knowing which candidate those 46 voters had supported.

Thus Trevett sought to have a new election.

He was the only candidate in the September Democratic primary for representative, as was Chadwick the only Republican candidate.

Trevett said he intends to remain active in Winchester. "For those who have assisted me during this long campaign, I have only my continuing thanks to offer. I hope to continue their confidence in me by remaining active in town affairs. Far from being disappointed or disillusioned, I remain more than ever interested in continuing my career in public service."

Court May Delay Trial On Housing

Trial on a court suit on the granting of a permit for construction of apartments on Cambridge street may be delayed by two other suits.

Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen Jr. said this week he is waiting for a new motion for trial date but "it's my guess the Superior Court would rather wait until the Supreme Court decides the cases on Hanover and Concord."

He thought the Supreme Court might make a decision in the Hanover and Concord cases in a month or so. In those cases, the towns are appealing decisions of the Massachusetts Department of Community Affairs' housing appeals committee.

This committee over-rode those communities' rejection of permits for construction of low and middle income housing under Chapter 77A, the anti-snob zoning legislation.

The difference between those cases and the Winchester case is this: Winchester has approved of low and middle income housing under Ch. 77A, the only community in Massachusetts to have done so. A group of residents is appealing the decision of the Board of Appeals, which granted the permit to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moss's firm, First Carriage Hill Associates.

Counsel Mullen said he would guess that the state Supreme Court would rule in favor of the constitutionality of Ch. 77A, though the court "might impose some restrictions and conditions."

He said the court will have to decide whether it's constitutional for the legislature to impose its will on the communities. "That's the great issue. Some feel a community cannot zone out a certain class of people."

"Others feel, 'It's our community, if we want to zone out a certain class of people, why not?'" He cited the case of a small midwest community which zoned out everything but residential. The court, he said, declared that zoning illegal.

The action by Winchester residents was

Much Ado About Nothing: The Board Of Selectmen All Talk But No Action

By a Reporter for The Star

The Board of Selectmen met for more than four hours Monday but took little action on anything. The resignation of the civil defense director, more talk and no action on the Noonan School traffic problem, discussion of erection of a dog pound and many other subjects were considered by the Selectmen, but nothing done about them.

John T. Blanchard said he was resigning from his part-time civil defense post because he doesn't have the time to "donate eight to 10 hours a week." The board may look into a possible replacement.

After months of negotiation among the selectmen, police, Noonan teachers and parents and School Department personnel, the board again procrastinated on doing something about the school's requests for a crossing guard.

Selectman Arthur Dunbar said he has gone over the area in the last week, talked to residents and teachers and concurs with the police safety office that parking should be prohibited on the side of Canal street opposite the school, the street should be made on way between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. and a crosswalk moved.

Selectman John J. Sullivan motioned to finally approve this measure but it was tabled at the request of Chairman Paul Amico "to get at the safety officer's thoughts."

As for the request from Dog Officer Domenico Molea for erection of a dog pound, the selectmen don't really know what to do. Molea has requested an 18-month budget of $25,343 which includes his salary, $2,000 for a pound and an unstipulated amount for a dog vehicle.

He suggests the pound be put near the incinerator. There were several jokes expressed about this location. He also suggests the town purchase a van to transport the dogs he catches to the pound. He now uses his personal car to take impounded dogs to out-of-town kennels (or keeps them at his home).

The selectmen's executive secretary, Edward Donnelly, said Molea can't put more than one dog in his car at a time "because they start fighting."

As a result, the man who is supposed to be enforcing the town's leash law can't pick up all the canines he should. "If we're going to enforce the leash law..." Donnelly began, but didn't finish.

Selectman Vito "Gerry" Giarrizzo thought aloud: "I think it's unreasonable we have a dog officer and a leash law but no vehicle."

In the eventual end of the discussion, Chairman Amico moved to ask Officer Molea to appear before them "to justify" his increased budget, which remains unapproved.

In other inaction, the board discussed the application for renewal of a used car license from John Drugash Jr. and V. Michael Bradley, discussed last week when Fire Chief I. Francis Amico recommended by letter that the license be revoked.

This week Drugash, Bradley, their lawyer and Amico were on hand. The fire chief this week had considerably softened his approach.

But the board took the matter "under advisement," awaiting "documentation of the landlord."

Another request for used car renewal, from Guy's Auto, was granted a 120-day conditional approval providing the owners comply with certain alleged fire hazards.

The board heard from several residents of Cross street about the relocation of a street light pole. Mrs. Carmella Luongo said it hinders her approach to her driveway. Her next door neighbor, though, doesn't want it too close to his property. In the end, the board agreed with the representative of the Boston Edison Co., who was attending this meeting specifically to discuss this one pole, that the best thing would be to wait until spring and place a stake on the spot of the potential site to see if it's acceptable.

There was also no action on a petition from the town's retired school teachers that the town accept a state statute increasing and adding benefits to town employees.

The increase: life insurance, from the present $1,000 to $2,000; the addition: $2,000 for accidental dismemberment. Cost to town per year: $1,400. Inaction: Wait until town comptroller gets comparative figures from other towns.

There was considerable discussion on how to go about accepting a gift of free land to the town forest from Richard Parkhurst. The problem: $464.25 in legal fees and other related expenses.

Eventually, Chairman Amico requested Selectman Giarrizzo, a former member of the Finance Committee, to drop downstairs to the FinCom meeting room and ask them how they felt. Half an hour later the selectman returned and reported FinCom went along with the item "but not without great discussion." The board voted it.

Town Comptroller James Costello found an attentive board in his suggestion that "monitoring" controls be placed on the financial budgets of departments under the selectmen's control.

But after 30 minutes or so of discussion the selectmen decided to do nothing yet. They want Costello to "come up with something" within a week.

The Planning Board met with the selectmen for an hour or so. Chairman Otto Schaefer asking the selectmen to give him some idea on how the Planning Board should move regarding a townwide zoning bylaw and what specifics they want on rezoning certain areas. But no selectman would commit himself. Instead, they asked Schaefer's committee to come back to them with the specifics. Then they might act.

★ Permit

brought in Superior Court after the Board of Appeals originally granted the permit for 176 apartment units on Cambridge street, across from Pond street.

Trial has been delayed because the court ordered the local Appeals Board to continue its hearing to allow additional residents to be heard. That hearing took place in early December.

The Appeals Board last week issued its decision reaffirming the original permit. Copies of the decision went to the town clerk and Superior Court. The decision essentially supported the original one—that Ch. 774 requires the board to grant the permit because Winchester does not meet the statute's minimum requirement of low and middle income housing.

Jaycees Pick Up 1,200 Trees, $50

The Winchester Jaycees last Saturday picked up more than 1,200 Christmas trees in seven hours, using six trucks from the town's Park and Highway departments.

The trees were hauled to the town dump off Swanton street where they are being chipped up into minute pieces for use by the town in making earth.

"There were noticeably fewer trees this year, probably due to the town's picking up limbs and branches from the recent ice storm and thoughtfully picking up Christmas trees at the same time," said Jaycees chairman Don Goodell.

"This worthwhile project would not be possible without the cooperation of the Park and Highway departments," he added.

"Their drivers were terrific. We also thank the wonderful people who donated nearly $50. This money will be used to plant trees and shrubs in areas of the town where a little landscaping will improve looks."

The Jaycees will coordinate with the Winchester Environmental Protection Association in this project.

Young Republicans To Help Nicaragua

Andy Twomey is the newly-elected president of the Winchester Young Republican Club. Other new officers are Rob Leppner, vice president; and Ted Shasta, treasurer.

At the club's recent meeting at the home of former vice president Tom Lombardo, officers discussed ways in which the Young Republicans may better serve the community. They voted that the club would sponsor a benefit with funds going to Nicaraguan relief due to the recent earthquake. The benefit will bring forth prize tickets for two to a home game of the Boston Bruins after Jan. 31.

For information on this project to help those in Managua, Nicaragua, contact Andy Twomey of 10 Prospect st., Rob Leppner of 11 Bonad rd., or Ted Shasta of 54 Grove st.

$1 million Rug of Civilization

Time and quality are two of the most important words at Koko Boodakian and Sons. Serving as a symbol of these ideals is the prized "Rug of Civilization" which is part of the private Boodakian collection.

One hundred years of labor by the world's most skillful artisans stand behind this priceless piece which experts have judged as one of the greatest rugs in history.

Designed by an inspired genius it was completed in the honor of Sultan Ahmed Kajar of Persia in 1909. Woven into the rug are the figures of more than 165 great figures from world civilization including Christ, Moses, Confucius, Socrates, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Columbus, Omar Khayyam, and Napoleon.

The rug also bears the inscription "Long live the great and magnanimous of the world; may they reign forever."

Now part of the private collection of Koko Boodakian and Sons Inc. of Winchester, this symbol of perfection in carpeting serves as an inspiration and constant reminder of Koko Boodakian and Sons' ideals.

'Studies Show Salt Increases Accidents'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Levels of salt contamination in drinking water supplies are increasing all across the state. This increasingly dangerous pollution must be controlled by reducing the amount of salt spread on roads for snow and ice.

These are the findings of the legislative commission on road salt, headed by Sen. MacKenzie of Burlington.

"Add Salt to Taste" by H. H. McConnell and J. Lewis, "Environment," Nov. 1972, discusses some aspects of ground, river and drinking water contamination. For instance, once salt has gone into the soil, removing the source of contamination cannot immediately stop salt pollution. The salt in the soil continues to move into the water over many years.

Woburn's water supply from Horn Pond has the second highest level of salt contamination for surface water supplies in the state. (The highest is on Martha's Vineyard.) What does that have to do with Winchester? Our water comes from the Quabbin Reservoir, where the level of chloride is rising but still low. Part of the Horn Pond watershed lies in Winchester, taking runoff from our streets where we use more salt per mile than any other town in Massachusetts. How do Woburn residents on low-salt diets for heart disease, high blood pressure or pregnancy feel about Winchester's efforts to pollute their water?

Our highway Department operates on the "bare pavement" policy promoted by the Salt Institute, the major industrial group lobbying for deicing salts. In fact, we use more salt than the Salt Institute recommends.

The emotion-charged issue of highway safety is difficult to analyze objectively, but statistics have not shown the number of accidents to be reduced by salting. Even the Salt Institute has no numbers showing that salt reduces accidents. The few studies that have been done show that more accidents happen on salted than on unsalted streets. The safety issue may be blinding us to more threatening environmental and health issues.

The point is—salt is a poison. It is not an inert substance. We have some responsibility to stop pouring salt into our neighbors' drinking water.

Vote For Peace

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

There's a current maxim which I believe expresses the essence of one's responsibility in a free and democratic society: "If you're not part of the solution you're part of the problem."

Unfortunately, with regard to the Indochina war, the majority have opted for passive neutrality or, at best, they are "against the war" and have faith that President Nixon knows the best road to peace. Regardless of one's idea of the "solution," I wonder if the people of this country, and particularly quiet Winchester, feel uncomfortable that the murderous bombing of North Vietnam is being carried out in their name?

Will history ever justify the use of such brutal violence as a means to attaining the elusive "lasting peace?"

The feeling of powerlessness to alter significantly the course of the war is the sad tale of the antiwar movement, and is caused in large part by the presidential arrogation of Congress' exclusive constitutional power to declare war.

Therefore, the apathy of Congress in the face of the mushrooming executive branch has resulted in a decade of war conducted by the commander in chief. Hopefully, the current bombing will be the straw that breaks the camel's back for Congress seems finally to be gaining the necessary strength to assert its constitutional responsibility.

But can Congress overcome the President's argument that the November election was a mandate for ending the war on his terms? Since it has become perfectly clear that the President seeks victory rather than peace, we have a responsibility, now more than ever, to decide where we stand and then make our views known to our representatives in Congress.

Tonight at 8 p.m., "The Advocates" on Channel 2 will offer you an excellent opportunity to watch a substantive debate on the crucial question facing Congress: "Should Congress act to cut off funds for the war in Indochina?" The moderator will ask you to vote "yes" or "no" at the end of the program and to mail your opinion on a postcard to "The Advocates," Box 1973, Boston, 02134. On behalf of the Winchester Peace Association, I urge you to participate, and vote for peace.

Board Of Appeals Meeting 'A Farce'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is my opinion that the meeting of the Board of Appeals on Dec. 7 for the permit to build apartments on Cambridge street was a big farce.

Many strong objections and new facts were presented to the Board of Appeals against the building of these apartments which could have reversed its decision of the permit granted Mr. Moss last winter. The three-member board showed its stubborn attitude in holding to its decision made at the last meeting by the board members' remarks after good and strong objections made by the abutters of the abutters were stated.

They also gave the impression to the people that they were obligated to grant Mr. Moss this permit again.

The law, Chapter 77A, respects the area chosen for such apartments and does so by making rules to notify the abutters and the abutters of the abutters to voice their opinions of its location. The injustice done by the Appeals Board is that it did not listen to the abutters of the abutters in this area, who voted 100 percent against the apartments.

What is the purpose of this meeting where the abutters of the abutters have no influence? The judgment of the Board of Appeals was: "So the number of people in town who are opposed is not directly relevant. This board cannot simply say no permit will be issued because more people are against it than are for it." There must be something wrong with the law or the Board of Appeals' decision or both if the abutters of the abutters' opinion has no say in the matter.

If the Board of Appeals feels so strongly that this town needs low to moderate housing, it should leave this job for the Planning Board to decide where they should be built. I feel that the Board of Appeals doesn't have the power to grant a permit for such housing on land zoned for single-family residence under strong objections by the abutters of the abutters.

It appears that the Board of Appeals chose to hold fast to its first decision on this permit rather than changing its mind and admitting its mistake. It looks like the statement quoted by Mr. Moss in The Winchester Star on Dec. 7 did its job when he said, "They can't reverse themselves. They would look stupid."

This letter is to bring out the wrong done to us by the Board of Appeals and to arouse the people of this and other towns that our rights are slowly being taken away from us by poorly written laws such as Chapter 77A. Maurice J. DiBlasi

Reader Asks What Is The Real Issue?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Is the 18-month real estate tax the real issue? Or—is paying real estate tax bills twice a year the real issue? Fiscal year Jan. 1 or July 1 is not important.

Tax bill for Jan. 1, 1973 to June 30, 1973 could be sent out May 1, 1973. This would change fiscal year to July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974.

Tax bill for July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974 could be sent out May 1, 1974. This would still be R.E. tax payment once per year.

For 1973 the town would receive six month's taxes paid six months—sooner because of May 1 billing instead of Nov. 1.

The real truth is—to quote—"Under the new law—"

"On May 1st, 1974 a six month payment will be due, and"

"a six month payment will be due each Nov. 1st"

"and May 1st thereafter."

Real estate tax paid every six months for six months taxes. Is the real estate tax constitutional?

Doesn't real estate tax take away "the right to own property?"

Stubborn Yankee Persistence Crucial To Middlesex Canal

By Fran VerPlanck
Winchester Historical Society

Construction of the Middlesex Canal began at Medford Bridge on Sept. 10, 1794. We can credit Loammi Baldwin of Woburn for his stubborn Yankee persistence and genius for knowing how to proceed, enabling use of picks, shovels, wheelbarrows and gunpowder for blasting to start on the digging of this most important inland canal.

Soon afterwards, digging started in Winchester (then called So. Woburn) on its part of the 27½-mile-long canal from Charlestown to Lowell. No other American canal could begin to meet the short-time schedule for completion that the Middlesex Canal did. Ten years later it became a useful artery of commerce into central New England from 1803-1853.

This column previously told how Samuel Thompson made the original Middlesex Canal survey, discovering the Baldwin apple in the process. Not revealed then was that this survey was done with only a compass in hand. It was fortunate indeed for the canal builders of America that William Weston, an Englishman long immersed in the intricacies of locks on the English system of canals, was invited to America to ply his services. He brought with him the English-made wye level, a delicate instrument still used by engineers today to measure differences in elevations. The wye level cradles a telescope with alignment cross hairs and a leveling bubble on a pair of Y supports which are mounted on a tripod. This wye level also included a compass.

Although Colonial America had many short canals serviced by hand poled scows, towpath canals were primarily in Europe. America had none. At the time of the Middlesex Canal, America's first completed towpath (traction) canal, 30 other towpath regional canals were then in their planning stages. Only a handful of these plans got off the ground.

That the Middlesex Canal was completed first (1803) can be attributed to the fact that Weston brought his wife over from England. According to "Middlesex Canal, 1793-1860" by Christopher Roberts (Harvard University Press, 1938): Mrs. Weston enjoyed Philadelphia but her curiosity to see Boston turned into a must. While seeking out Weston's services in Philadelphia Loammi Baldwin wrote home: "Mrs. Weston has expressed more than once a passionate desire of visiting Boston and has frequently told me that she longed to be acquainted with Ladies and Gentlemen of that metropolis. She observed that all the English Gentlemen enjoyed themselves better in Boston than any place on the continent."

I dare say that in my important business you will think this a trifling circumstance to report to you, however, after all that our friends have done, I declare that almost my only hope of securing Mr. Weston's assistance in season rests on this circumstance."

Finally Baldwin's agreement to assist Weston to build a bridge over the Delaware River and his success in persuading Weston to take a leave of absence from his various projects brought Weston and his wye level to Boston and Mrs. Weston.

It is believed that the important wye level was first used to any great extent here in America. It played havoc with Thompson's had compass calculations—41 feet off in elevation within a distance of six miles.

Thus did the wye level, the curiosity of a woman and a bit of Yankee persistence from the foresighted Col. Loammi Baldwin of Woburn become crucial factors in not only making the Middlesex Canal an important artery of commerce in New England but also a first in the engineering annals of America.

Story Of Little Red Riding Hood Updated

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Once upon a time there lived a little girl called Red Riding Hood. One day her mother asked her to take a basket of fruit to her grandmother, who had been ill and lived alone in the forest.

It happened that a wolf was lurking in the bushes and overheard the conversation. He decided to take a short cut to the grandmother's house and get the goodies for himself.

The wolf killed and ate the grandmother then dressed in her nightgown and jumped into bed to await the little girl. When she arrived, he made several nasty suggestions and then tried to grab her.

But by this time the child was very frightened and ran screaming from the cottage. A woodcutter working nearby heard her cries and rushed to the rescue. He killed the wolf with his axe, thereby saving Red Riding Hood's life. All the townspeople hurried to the scene and proclaimed the woodcutter a hero.

But at the inquest, several facts emerged: (1) The wolf had never been advised of his rights,

(2) The woodcutter had made no warning swings before striking the fatal blow, (3) The civil liberties union stressed the point that, although the act of eating grandma was in bad taste, the wolf was only "doing his thing" and thus didn't deserve the death penalty.

(4) The SDS contended that the killing of the grandmother should be considered self-defense since she was over 30 and therefore could not be taken seriously because the wolf was only trying to make love, not war.

On the basis of these considerations, it was

Selectmen Sponsor Article On Aging

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

An error was discovered in the article reporting the sponsorship of the Town Warrant for the establishment of a council on the aging. Actually, the sponsorship is by the Board of Selectmen.

Dr. Leonard M. Rich

decided there was no valid basis for charges against the wolf. Moreover, the woodcutter was indicted for unaggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Several nights later the woodcutter's cottage was burned to the ground.

One year from the date of "The Incident at Grandma's" her cottage was made a shrine for the wolf who had died and died there. All the village officials spoke at the dedication. But it was Red Riding Hood who gave the most touching tribute.

She said that, while she had been selfishly grateful for the woodcutter's intervention, she realized in retrospect that he had overreacted. As she knelt and placed a wreath in honor of the brave wolf, there wasn't a dry eye in the whole forest.

What About Sport For Jr. High Girls?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to point out to the Winchester residents that there are girls living in this town too. There are so many activities for boys, but what about the girls from age 7 to 14?

Boys have Winchester youth hockey, Winchester youth soccer, Pop Warner football, Pee Wee football, Little League baseball, Cap league baseball, and the girls are completely left out.

Last year the recreation department started a softball league. I would like to see more of this done in other sports. Girls can kick, hit and throw a ball, and hit a puck—so, what's the problem?

The Junior High's have basketball, football and hockey for the boys. The girls only have intermural.

Why can't Winchester have sport programs for girls on the junior high level also?

Wouldn't it be nice if someone started an athletic program for girls, maybe using the new high school facilities on Saturday or Sundays. We would be utilizing the facility and, for a change, the girls of Winchester would have meaningful activities to participate in also.

Movement To Ignore Ban On Prayers And Christmas Guidelines

By Bill Kirtz
State House Correspondent

Even though the U.S. Constitution forbids it, school prayer proponents claim a seven-to-one ratio of support as they argue that Massachusetts children should be able to worship before classes start each day.

Mrs. Rita Warren of Brockton, who triggered the successful drive to let state voters air their views on the controversial issue in Nov. 7 balloting, believes there's nothing illegal about voluntary school prayer.

Walter H. Mayo 3rd, an assistant attorney general, notes that even voluntary school prayer is banned under the First Amendment. He cites the Supreme Judicial Court's 1971 ruling in a case against the small Massachusetts town of Leyden.

But Mrs. Warren notes that the year before the Leyden decision, the Massachusetts legislature passed and Gov. John Volpe approved a bill allowing the voluntary worship.

She believes school districts here ought to "go ahead and pray, and if the federal government wants to stop it let the attorney general go to Washington for the state of Massachusetts."

In the south, she asserts, many states ignore the school prayer ruling by holding worship services before classes start.

"There hasn't been enough publicity here about that," she feels, nor about the legislature's 1970 action and the overwhelming pro-prayer vote recorded by Massachusetts residents in the November balloting.

Mrs. Warren is also concerned about state Board of Education guidelines which warn schools against displaying religious objects or symbols or playing religious music.

She feels this "ban on Santa Claus" insults children of all religions.

"Before you know it," she adds, "you won't be able to talk about God in America." The guidelines were drawn up by a 22-member task force and okayed by the education board to prevent confusion and embarrassment during holidays—especially Christmas.

(In Winchester, the schools were advised to follow the state guidelines as closely as possible, resulting in elimination of nativity scenes from school ceremonies and other secularizations of school observances. Criticism of the policy was swift and nearly unanimous against the guidelines.)

But while the guidelines mention Thomas Jefferson's demand for "a wall of separation between Church and State" and a 1946 U.S. Supreme Court ruling against promotion of any one religion, Mrs. Warren cites the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of worship.

"We don't intend to have atheists stop us from believing," says the woman who led a Boston demonstration last week against the guidelines. And state Rep. Raymond Flynn says he'll file a bill to ban the education board from setting such guidelines.

Acting Education Commissioner Thomas J. Curtin has stressed that the guidelines are just that, and that local school systems can interpret them as they wish.

Mrs. Warren, though, fears that they'll harden into law if people of all faiths don't protest.

"I'm fighting for children of all religions, to preserve their own beliefs. There'll be Nativity scenes all over the state at Christmas-time. Are they going to cause any Jewish children to convert? The whole argument is ridiculous. The guidelines just cause prejudice."

Appeals Criticized

EDITOR OF THE STAR:
To the Board of Appeals - Re: Permit for Apartments

It is unbelievable that you have disregarded pertinent facts and reasonable arguments in opposition to a developer using Chapter 774 to selfishly serve his own purposes. You have dismissed all information including the denial of MHFA funding and the qualification of the builder as irrelevant.

The courts, however, apparently felt it important enough that all abutters have an opportunity to voice their opinion when they remanded this case back to your board for another public hearing. Incidentally, those remarks concerning the Boston and Maine Railroad, if they were abutters, were beneath the intellect and dignity of your board, highly irrelevant, and hardly belong in a report concerning a matter as important as this to the town.

You continually stress that you are responsible only to the law. Well, it is my opinion that the entire language of that law must then be considered, and your board held accountable. A very important portion to Chapter 774 reads as follows: "The Board of Appeals, in making its decision on said application shall take into consideration the recommendations of the local boards and shall have the authority to use the testimony of consultants." Every town board has been against this particular development for various reasons including the Planning Board. At no time have you taken these factors into account in reaching your decision.

Concerned citizens have been reasonable and responsible in their arguments. Town meeting members and Mrs. John Sullivan, selectman, were earnest in their appeal to you. Disregarding all, you have failed your town when you rendered a decision that will be detrimental to that area and exploit our poor townspeople. This matter will return to the courts and we urge your continuing interest and help in bringing about a reversal of this proposal.

Bad Sportsmanship
Charged To Trevett

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your paper arrives at this far-flung out-post somewhat late, and so I do not know whether Mr. Trevett decided to push his court fight to have the absentee ballots in last November's election thrown out.

But I would like to put forth my opinion that his public statements that he was considering such action constitute one of the most disgusting examples of bad sportsmanship that I have heard of in many a year.

It is regrettable that mistakes were made in handling the ballot envelopes for the absentee ballots, but to challenge those votes is to deprive me and the other absentee voters of our franchise.

What the town clerk did with my ballot has little meaning to me. The way I voted does and I resent someone trying, for his own narrow self interest, to deprive me of that vote.

It is clear to me, as it must be to most of the other voters of Winchester, that the majority, narrow though it might have been, voted to reelect Mr. Chadwick and that the majority does not wish to employ Mr. Trevett as its representative.

The fact is that Mr. Chadwick was my choice because in my years of growing up in Winchester I had come to admire him. There are few people who can be represented by a man that they admire. If Mr. Trevett forces himself on us by invalidating my ballot, my emotion will be quite the opposite toward him.

selectmen's meeting also discussed its proposals for underground lighting in subdivisions and regulations of signs.

The board wants all wiring underground in subdivisions at the developers' expense, a proposal supported by the selectmen.

Schaefer said the board has been stymied in its efforts because Boston Edison hasn't made clear what the difference in cost between below and above ground wiring would be. But he said it seems above ground cost $40 a light and below, $60.

The board will get cost estimates on what the price will be per street before the selectmen will act.

The Planning Board is still undecided whether sign control should be through a bylaw, which requires a majority vote of town meeting, or by zoning, which requires a two-thirds vote.

Schaefer is concerned that the entire zoning bylaw might be rejected if enough town meeting members object to the sign proposal.

Another proposal is on the height of fences and hedges at intersections. He said the board's consultant favors a maximum height of 2½ feet, also favored by the police chief.

The requirement would apply to "troublesome" intersections.

Property taken in breaking and enterings at local residences during the past week has materialized in several ways.

In a break at 7 Ledyard rd., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Radocechia, discovered on Dec. 31 a stolen set and several check books were taken. Last Friday an attempt to cash one of the checks was made at the Harvard Trust Company.

According to the police report of Officer John A. Oliver, assisted by Officer William H. O'Neil, a rear door window was broken and the lock forced. Ransacking took place.

Officer Thomas E. Faulkner investigated an incident on Jan. 1 in apartment G of the Wedgewood Apartments, 60 Lake st. Drawers were found open in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart. Custodian Joe McCarthy had noticed the broken glass which allowed the door to be unlocked. No ransacking had occurred.

Entries at two South Gateway homes were studied over the weekend. Ransacking had taken place in each case. Forcing of a rear window and a rear door, respectively, allowed the intruder(s) access. Footprints in the snow between the two locations were noted.

Two fur coats and pieces of a silver serving set taken from the Santa Antonuccio's house, 17 South Gateway were found in the back yard of 16 South Gateway.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR of the Winchester National Bank recently was Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr., owner of Saltmarsh Insurance Agency, 751 Main st. A former selectman, Saltmarsh lives at 154 Mt. Vernon st.

AMAH! AND THE NIGHT VISITORS was the Christmas-time production of Adventures in Music (AIM) in area communities. This scene shows wisemen (from left) Raymond Thomas, Luther Endstadt and Ernest Triplett. Joan Curtis and Edward Kelley, the mother and Amahl, will appear in AIM's Feb. 6 production of Britten's "Little Sweep" at McCall Auditorium, the first time Winchester will have hosted one of these productions of Newton Wayland.

Britten's 'Little Sweep' Due Feb. 6

Newton Wayland's hour-long adaptation of Benjamin Britten's "Little Sweep" will be presented in McCall Auditorium Feb. 6 at 1:30. The opera is written specifically for children, and will take place on an early release afternoon.

Children planning to attend the February concert will learn, through their music teachers, short segments of the opera in order to be able to participate as a chorus from the audience. The instruction will take place on another released afternoon at McCall auditorium, January 23.

Wayland has directed the successful Adventures in Music concerts with young audiences in mind. This season has seen a U.N. Day celebration and a performance of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" to a full house.

In the past, the concerts have been held in Arlington and Lexington.

Tickets for the performance will be obtained through the individual schools' music teachers.

Further ticket information may be obtained by contacting the school enrichment chairman or by calling Mrs. Andrew Nichols, ticket chairman.

Readers Remember Washington School

By Fran VerPlanck

We wish to thank everyone who responded to the historical pictures we have published in the Winchester Star. Last week's picture of the original Washington School and its much larger successor to the right hand side of the picture evoked fond memories for many of our citizens, although few so far could remember the small structure with the old water pump outside used as a school, which the sign above the door attests it was. (One needs a magnifying glass to read the sign.)

According to Dr. Henry Benson, who attended the larger school, the area near the school was a truly integrated neighborhood. It was known in the Henry and Irving street area as Checkerboard Square because of the equal division of whites and blacks. The black population came mostly from the Brooks Estate after they freed their slaves. (The large Brooks Estate was on Grove street in Winchester and Medford.)

The Brooks family were benevolent slave holders. We have been told their estate served as the local headquarters for the underground railroad in the Civil War era.

The picture was found in a group of pictures dated 1850. It must have been shortly thereafter that the old school was remodeled into the New Hope Baptist Church to serve the new population. Rev. Rich was followed by Rev. Smith in his ministry there.

Colored windows from the old Methodist Episcopal Church were sold to enhance the religious atmosphere of the New Hope Baptist Church. Many years of service by ministers to the New Hope congregation were helped along by the generosity of the Richard Parkhurst family.

Dr. Benson remembers swinging on the birches just up the street on Kenwin avenue before it was cut through to the hospital.

Mrs. Donald (Sellers) Wilkins, whose husband has served 13 years as sexton to the Episcopal Church, had her picture taken in front of her school (the larger school structure now torn down). She has promised to share this Washington School picture with the Historical Society.

Fire Chief I. Francis Amico also remembers the old Washington School at Cross and Washington streets. He went to school in the larger wooden structure to the right and rear in the picture.

Though Chief Amico doesn't remember the smaller wooden structure at the left, he remembers quite well the other building. He started going to school there in 1921, when he attended the fifth grade. He was 11 years of age. "That dates me," he said.

The present Washington School (the third) is on Highland avenue. The first and second Washington Schools (in the picture) abutted Leonard's Field.

Amico remembers when Leonard's Field was a farm and his father rented land during World War 2 to grow potatoes, beans and other vegetables. Amico says the hill there used to extend 30 to 40 feet into the field but was cut back when Leonard's Field was rebuilt.

Dorothy Lord, an employee of The Star, also went to the Washington School (the second Washington School). She says electric trolleys used to run up Washington street to Stoneham.

Pasquale "Pat" Maffeo of 93 Swanton st. says the little building in the picture was torn down around 1925. "There's a little private road in back of it named after one of the teachers," he said. Collamore street it's called.

Picture of the first and second Washington Schools printed in last week's Star elicited response from readers who remember the buildings at Cross and Washington streets. The first school (at the front of the picture) was built in 1851 and torn down in 1925, readers say. The second school is at left.

To be considered for publication in The Winchester Star, all news copy should be submitted by Friday, noon whenever possible and definitely no later than Monday noon. Copy should be written on one side of the page only, double spaced and typed, if possible.

St. Mary's Still Tops; 100 Wins

St. Mary's hockey team defeated St. Catherine's, Norwood, and St. Agatha's, Milton, by identical 3 to 1 scores to remain undefeated and take over sole possession of first place in the CYO Hockey League.

The wins were the fifth and sixth of the current season and the 97th and 98th—against 32 losses and 16 ties—for the team since its founding in 1960.

St. Mary's grabbed a quick lead over previously undefeated Norwood on Don Allard's goal at 19 seconds of the opening period. St. Mary's controlled play for the remainder of the period but St. Catherine's came back to tie the score with only 26 seconds left in the second period.

Bill McLean put St. Mary's back in front with the game winning goal at 8:13 of the third period, Gerard Kivney assisting. It was McLean's third goal in as many games.

Mark Milley provided the last St. Mary's goal when he slid a 90-foot shot into the net with the Norwood goalkeeper on the bench in favor of a sixth attacker.

Another quick first period goal—this one by Don Allard at only 14 seconds—gave St. Mary's the early lead over third-place Milton in last Sunday's game.

Milton came back 24 seconds later to tie the score but St. Mary's went back out in front 2 to 1 on Kevin O'Neill's goal with Allard and Richard Jacobs assisting.

Jacobs added an insurance goal at 6:06 of the final period on a high hard shot into the upper right hand corner.

The wins clinched a Class A playoff berth for St. Mary's. This will be the 12th consecutive year the team has qualified for the Class A playoffs. St. Mary's is the defending Class A champion.

The Winchester team will face fourth-place Walpole at noon Saturday at Boston College.

Wakefield Track Trounces Sachems

It was strictly no contest when the Winchester tracksters collided with Wakefield as the Warriors scored almost at will to pile up a 61-25 advantage recently. Led by their superstar Fahey, who took first in the high jump, second in the hurdles and ran an amazing 2:17.9 in the 1,000 yard run, the winners took eight out of the nine first places.

However, it was Kevin Crowley, a sophomore, who sped to a league and cage shattering mark of 9:29.5 in the two mile, who really stole the show. When Wally Swanson of Belmont set the old mark of 9:36.3 just a year ago it was predicted that the record would stand for a long time.

Just how much more Crowley can lower it in the next two years remains to be seen. He beat his teammates Wicher and Hanson by more than a full minute, and no Sachem was even within hailing distance.

Glenn Wright took Winchester's only first place with a 49 foot 91-8 in. performance. Tip Macdonald and Chip Roche took the other two places to give the Sachems a sweep. The Warriors swept the hurdles, 600 and mile events as well as the two mile.

Keith Randleman took second and Keith Leonard third for Winchester in the dash. Pete Rigney was a close third in the 300 and Charlie Tatarian ran a good race to trail Fahey in the 1,000. But it was not enough to cope with the Warrior runner's effort. The Sachem relay quartet took their race when the Warrior group was disqualified.

The summary:

Mites Defeat Waltham, 7-3

The Mites of Winchester Youth Hockey continued their winning ways with a 7 to 3 win over Waltham on Sunday.

Tom Sullivan had a three-goal hat trick and was the leading scorer, followed by co-captain Tony Celli, who scored twice and had two assists.

Five goals were scored in the first period with co-captain Chris Parker starting things early as he converted a pass from Tony Celli. It was a quick blast from the left side that caught their upper corner. Tom Sullivan was set up for the second goal by Mike McCarthy as he fired from the point past a screened goalie.

Number three came from the right side when Tom Sullivan "let go" with a bullet into the lower corner with the assist going to Tony Celli. The next two goals were accounted for by Tony Celli once flying "down the slot" on the left side on a pass from Tom Mahoney and then combining out in front with Chris Parker to beat a surprised goalie with a bombshell in the left corner.

In the third period Alan McCarthy scored a short handed goal when he took a pass from Tom Sullivan and scored from a crowd out in front. Tom Sullivan closed the scoring as he got number seven for the locals unassisted following a steal in the left lane.

Comment from a club spokesman: "Hands like this beautifully balanced one, each side having exactly half the high-card points, East-West with the long diamond suit and North-South the long heart one, provide a fine setting for tug-of-war bidding."

"Of course it helps to have a major suit; 4H N-S, that is, game has a good chance, as does 4D E-W, not game, which means East-West should sacrifice at 5D. A venturesome North-South, however, may take a chance at 5H."

"Assuming a 5H bid by South, consider the defense by East-West. The diamond Ace by West is a normal lead, but what next?"

Looking at dummy's spade suit, West should sense danger of North's running a second suit and start cashing tricks, leading his ace of clubs and shifting to a spade after the two of clubs from East.

"Looking at all the cards, it's easy to see that North-South should have difficulty making 5H with three missing aces, but deciding when to cash tricks and when to hold off isn't easy."

"A very imaginative defense, however, by West, after a normal preemptive 3D bid by East, is to underlead the diamond ace, get a club lead back, ducked to North's Queen, then when East takes his spade ace, he can lead a club, and East-West take one diamond, two clubs and the ace of spades to set 4H. It's easy when you see all the hands!"

Coach Vandy French's Sachem quintet dropped a hard fought game to the Wakefield Warriors last Friday night by 72-58.

As a result of this the Winchester team dropped from a first place tie with the Stoneham Spartans into a three-way deadlock with Wakefield and Melrose for the runner up berth. They have two games this week with defending champion Lexington, and well coached and capable Watertown.

Both of these are at home and should go a long way toward determining final placing in the Middlesex League. The hard running and scrappy Sachem team could be a surprise to these formidable opponents. The local team certainly treats its followers to an interesting type of basketball.

Their other game last week was with a terribly unglit group representing the Belmont Marauders. The visitors showed very little ability either in the floor game or in shooting. The final score was 60-33, and it could well have been much higher if the Winchester team played the game of which it is capable.

As is so often the case when one team outclasses the other, the better team plays down to the level of its opponents. Belmont was able to score in double figures only in the third session, when they chalked up 10 points to go with two seven-point periods and a nine point.

The Belmont team lost the ball at least a dozen times by long heaves and poor dribbling without a Sachem closer than five feet away. To make matters worse, the officials had a bad night, and as one authority (a multiple Tech Tourney winner) stated, "This game set basketball back 40 years." It seems dubious that the hapless Marauders will win even one game this year. Lexington pummeled them on Friday night by 96-35.

Mike Heffernan led the Winchester scorers with 13 points. Co-captains John Heffernan and Peter Wakefield each notched an even dozen. The result was never in doubt, but after a commanding half-time margin of 33-16, Winchester fell off in the third period to be outscored by 10-8. However, they rebounded with 19 in the final session, largely due to the foul shots which the Belmont team gave them as they tried in vain to halt the Sachem attack.

The junior varsity team of Coach Paul

Mulloy continued its winning ways by a 62-53 triumph over the Belmont quintet. The Sachem defense did much to keep the Marauders at bay, especially on their out of bounds plays. The superiority of the Winchester team from the foul line proved to be the exact margin of victory as both teams tallied a total of 22 field goals. The winners went into a semi-stall during the final minutes to preserve their lead until the final whistle.

Several of the Sachems were unavailable for the game due to illness and Mark Chalas, Steve Waite, and "Bundles" Lindmark did not dress.

The game with the Warriors was much closer than the score would indicate. The home team jumped to a 21-17 lead in a free scoring first period. Sandy Bigelow played his best offensive game of the year, but got into early foul trouble, forcing the local mentor to substitute Nate Bittings, who has not been playing a great deal with the varsity team. He did a highly acceptable job, and with added experience he will be very useful to the team. Nate registered six points and worked hard to control the boards against the rangy Wakefield team.

During the second period the home team forged an 11-point edge over the Sachems and, try as they would, the Winchesterites could not ever get really close during the final two periods. In the third session they moved to within six points of the Warriors, but the latter drew away again. Battling hard in the fourth period they were within eight with four minutes of action left. Wheatley ran into foul troubles as the home team went on to a handy 72-58 victory.

The story of the game is told in the statistics, which showed the Warriors making good on a fantastic 63 percent of their shots, while the ice cold Sachems netted only 38 percent. Winchester outshot the winners by getting 16 more floor shots by their speed and aggressiveness, but the Warriors forced them into taking poorer shots by their tight defensive play. It was a good game all the way, and when the Wakefield team comes here for the return game, don't be surprised if the Winchesterites turn the tables.

CENTRAL HUMIDIFICATION FOR HOT WATER AND STEAM HEATED HOMES

-Only one 6"x14" Register- required in Living Quarters

BY Al LaPointe

Central humidification for the house with a forced warm air heating system is often easy to install. But in the case of hot water or steam heating systems, without ductwork, it is necessary to install a distribution system from the humidifier.

Many think this means an elaborate and costly system of ductwork all over the house; but it's less complicated than that. The humidifier can be installed in the basement and a small pipe run from the humidifier which connects to a small 6" x 14" register that supplies moisture for the living quarters.

A portable humidifier, and there are many prices in the $100. and up range.

must be filled with water by hand and exposed to view in the living quarters. With central humidification, the humidifier is hidden in the basement and is automatically fed with water. A humidistat provides control from the living quarters.

Many portables need an electric heating element (and added electrical cost) to vaporize the water. Others lack a method to flush the lime residue left in water after the vaporization process takes place. The lime remains as a powder that is sprayed around the area.

The humidifier which we recommend for central humidification, filters the lime out and carries it to a drain. With its total capacity, it can supply needed moisture for all living quarters; without the headaches found in other types.

Many homeowners who bought cheaper and poorly installed humidifiers have found that the method of central humidification, coupled with expert installation techniques, is the best form of home humidification. It can normally be installed in the warm air heated home for as little as $245. and can be engineered to the home with hot water or steam heat for as little as $375.00. You may also choose from other types and price ranges for every style of home.

Winchester Man Directs Euripides' 'The Trojan Women'

Euripides' tragedy "The Trojan Women" will be presented by the drama department of Tufts University at the Arena Theater on the Tufts campus on January 17-20. Performances are open to the public. The director, Peter Arnott of 6 Herrick St., has written several books on the staging of Greek drama but this is the first tragedy that he has directed since joining the Tufts faculty. He is a professor there. Christopher Arnott, a sixth-grader at Mystic school, will play the part of Astyanax, the boy who is sacrificed in the course of the play.

ARE DAMAGES TAX DEDUCTIBLE?

As a homeowner, expenses from damage or improvements may affect your income taxes. For instance: damage to your house from, say, fire or windstorm may be partially deductible as a casualty loss. After subtracting insurance compensation, deduct $100 for each accident and the remainder can be claimed as a tax deduction.

Improvements, such as a porch, garage, finished basement and so on cannot be deducted. However, they can be added to the cost of the house when figuring profit on the sale. So, keep good records of such expenses. Try to preserve cancelled checks and receipted bills. They will help substantiate the figures if necessary.

I'm just scratching the surface here. If this situation applies to you, I suggest you contact your nearest Internal Revenue Office for a copy of their pamphlet No. 930 "Tax Information on Deductions for Homeowners." It may save you some money.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Witnesses Return From Convention

Jehovah's Witnesses in the area returned this week from their two-day Circuit Convention in Lynn with the information that the group's house-to-house ministry has resulted in a 5.7-percent increase in ministers during 1972.

In commenting on the report, Richard G. Wendt, presiding overseer of the local congregation, said that during 1972, 163,123 persons were baptized. "These are adults or young persons who are old enough to understand Bible principles and doctrine. All these individuals completed an exhaustive six month Bible study program and final review of Bible teachings before they are sponsored as ministers in our home Bible education work."

According to Wendt, 114 persons were baptized in Lynn at the Vocational Technical Institute pool following the baptismal discourse last Sunday. Included were several persons from the area.

Frank R. Bartell, district overseer for the group's governing body in Brooklyn, N.Y., was the principal speaker for the two-day event. He reviewed the societies work in 207 countries during past year as well as a detailed look at the activity of the 23 congregations in Massachusetts Circuit 4.

Wendt commented on the main discourse held on Sunday, attended by 3001 persons, entitled, "Is This Life All There Is?" He said, "Sensing a lack of meaning to their lives, many people have long clung to hope of life beyond death, believing in the doctrines based on immortality of the soul, the good going to heaven, Nirvana and transmigration."

"The Holy Bible shatters all such teachings. The Bible assures us that Jehovah God can and will resurrect the dead to life on this cleansed earth. The resurrection is a fundamental means of accomplishing God's will as he was purposed in His inspired Word, life eternal with perfect health. Such a life would have lasting meaning. Such a hope is held out to all and enjoyed by Jehovah's Christian Witnesses."

Local meetings are planned for this week at the kingdom hall.

Ecumenical Assn. Asks King Sunday Cite ABC Program

The Winchester Ecumenical Association has requested that local churches commemorate Dr. Martin Luther King by devoting some part of their Sunday service this Sunday, Martin Luther King Sunday, to the Winchester "A Better Chance" program.

A Better Chance is a nationwide, non-profit, educational organization which seeks to place educationally disadvantaged students in a more competitive high school environment.

Winchester has has 10 ABC students attending its high school since the fall of 1971. The students live together with a resident director, his family and tutors at the ABC house, 2 Dix St.

Chanukah programs, an international dinner and a lecture-discussion series on Yiddish literature. The group also sponsors an Israel dance group for girls ages 8-12 and participates in a Hebrew education program for elementary age students.

For further information on the activities of the group or for reservations for the wine and cheese evening call Mrs. McClintock, 12 Norwood St.

Winton Club Tryouts: Coffee, Tea, Key Of C

By Mrs. Robert Armstrong

Coffee, tea and the key of C seemed to be the order of things at Winchester Town Hall recently when the tryouts for the Winton Club's 1973 cabaret show "What's Happening?" took place.

The response and support from Winchester and surrounding towns was just what every talent chairman hopes and maybe prays for.

All the aspiring hoofers and singers were eager to learn and be professional in their approach, but were enthusiastic as first timers, which some of them were.

The directors of the show, Bob and Dot Canessa, demonstrated routines, sketched the show verbally and then gathered everyone into the opening number, songs and dance acts. "Just to get the feel of the action."

They gave all the chorus lines a break while they auditioned solos, group numbers, along with new comedy routines. People who perform are such a great audience when others are performing, the evening was a miniature evening at the theatre.

Mrs. Carol Vincent, chairman, and Mrs. Lane McGovern, talent chairman, reported late this week that all the numbers in the show are cast, rehearsals are scheduled and posted. Now it is a matter of practice, learning and those costume fittings.

There are two specialty groups of men in this show, principals of elementary schools and staff doctors of the Winchester Hospital. It is a great opportunity for Winchester children to root for their favorite principal on Tuesday night, Jan. 30.

This performance night is especially geared for children. It starts at 7:30 and is over by 9:30. This gives an opportunity for children of performers and backstage workers to see what has taken up their parents' time—but also how their parents are contributing to a community effort, the support of the Winchester Hospital.

The medical staff of the Winchester Hospital is enthusiastic. Their choreography is a doctor's lounge secret; however, they are proving that their prescription of exercise is a healthy thing to practice as well as preach. Join the crowd, form a party and come to Town Hall the week that winds up January and then throws February at us.

You will recognize your friends, neighbors, physicians and teachers and have that once a year opportunity to appreciate all their talents.

Pinky Samoiloff Doubles Winner

Mrs. Al (Pinky) Samoiloff of 8 Lockland rd. was winner of last Saturday's mixed-up doubles tennis tournament held at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center.

Pinky earned enough points, under the exacting Vass system of scoring, to emerge as winner among the 19 other women participants. In recognition of her distinction, she was presented with an inscribed trophy.

Commenting on the playing performance of Mrs. Samoiloff, John Koslowski, president of the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center, stated that she demonstrated an ability to handle the swift shots of the men who opposed her and also showed that she could effect forcing ground shots and winning volleys of her own making.

All in all, added Koslowski, Mrs. Samoiloff combined a reluctance to make errors with point winning shots of her own to compile the needed score for earning winner's honors.

Mrs. Samoiloff's winning of the first tournament of the 1973 indoor season further contributes to the mastery that Winchester players are imposing on these events. To date most of the tournaments have been won by Winchester residents although tourney participants come from highly regarded tennis communities like Arlington, Belmont, Lexington and Chelmsford.

Koslowski adds that competition in this type of tournament will continue every Saturday evening during the indoor tennis season and he states that similar events will take place at the Charles River Indoor Tennis and Health Club in Newton, also managed by the company represented by John Koslowski.

Clergy Seeking Families To Lodge Youths From Court

The clergy of the Winchester Ecumenical Association are asking their parishioners to support and participate in a relief home program, a project which has had success in the Brockton area.

The Woburn District Court needs families in its district to provide voluntary temporary lodging for adolescents who have come to the attention of the court. These are teenagers who are unable to return home but who do not need to be confined at the Youth Service Board's detention facilities.

The length of stay could be one or two nights for immediate relief of tension in the youth's home or up to seven days while the youth awaits trial. The relief family will be advised of the proposed length of stay. The youth may or may not be a resident of Winchester. There is no monetary reimbursement for room and board.

Participating families will not be utilized if probation officers have any doubts as to the youth's probable behavior during this period. The probation officer will be at the family's immediate call if any problem or question arises.

A more in depth explanation and instruction will be provided by the probation staff for interested families. Any family considering participation in this program may contact, Rev. George Easton, Rev. Jurgen Liles, or Rev. Henry Marquardt.

Snow Confuses Dogs--Molea

By Kay Cardin

It could be said a dog officer leads a "dog's life!" For instance, Winchester dog officer Dominic Molea receives an average of 36 complaints a week plus calls from people seeking advice or searching for their lost dog.

Last week 17 dogs were picked up, of which Officer Molea located the owners of 15, often requiring considerable detective work. Mr. Molea works seven days a week.

He checks the schools every morning and afternoon. He also spends two or three hours several times a week at the police station at night, checking calls and doing paper work in connection with dog control.

One big cause of many canine problems are female dogs in heat. Officer Molea reports. Most veterinarians agree it is best to have a female dog not only spayed, but spayed before she comes into her first heat, unless the owner plans on breeding and raising purebred puppies.

Molea urges local residents who have not already done so to license their dogs immediately. Anyone not complying with the state law relating to dogs is liable for legal action.

This is the season when dogs without tags are most likely to get lost. The snow confuses animals and they often are unable to find their way home. Lost at the moment and hopefully awaiting his owner is a small brown and white male collie type, picked up on Mayflower road. Mr. Molea can be reached at 729-7990 or 5530.

WEPA To Hear Of Waste Disposal

The Winchester Environmental Protection Association will meet Jan. 24 at 7:45 p.m. in the Board of Health Room at the Town Hall. The meeting was previously scheduled for Jan. 17.

Guest speaker will be Vartkes Karaian, chairman of the Solid Waste Disposal Study Committee. Karaian will report on what the committee has done and its plans for the future.

Peace Committee Condemns Bombing

The Winchester Peace Committee met last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael S. Strah, 473 Washington st., and spent considerable time discussing why the Paris peace negotiations broke down in late December.

Several people reported that public opinion in general seems to be that the negotiations failed because the North Vietnamese reneged on a tentative agreement. However, the Peace Committee believes that this opinion is erroneous. After reviewing information from a variety of sources, the members of the committee agreed that President Nixon is now trying to change the agreement which Mr. Kissinger announced on Oct. 26.

That agreement provided that the two existing administrations in South Vietnam—Thieu's regime and the Provisional Revolutionary Government—would remain in place and share in determining the political future of South Vietnam. Since then, however, Mr. Kissinger has maintained that the agreement provided for the Saigon government to be the sole legitimate authority in the south. This is a major difference which represents what the fighting has been about for the last 10 years, says the committee.

The members of the committee unanimously agreed that regardless of the reasons for breaking off the peace talks, the unprecedented heavy bombing of North Vietnam, and particularly of civilian targets, was totally unjustified.

In discussing specific actions in which the group might participate, committee members agreed to write their Congressmen urging them to support the Vietnam Withdrawal Act of 1973, sponsored in the Senate by Sen. George McGovern, which will provide for the immediate cutoff of funds for the war, and H.R. 179 in the House, sponsored by Rep. Delens of California, which will provide for the withdrawal of all military personnel from Indochina.

The committee will meet next Thursday at 7:45 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Strah to complete planning for peace activities around the time of the presidential inauguration.

Bloodmobile To St. Mary's

Next Tuesday is the date the Bloodmobile will be at St. Mary's School Hall. The parish is seeking to cover the blood needs of its parishioners and their immediate families for one year.

To receive such coverage, 25 percent of the parish families must donate one pint a year. Non-parishioners may donate on Jan. 16 also. By doing so they will insure coverage for their immediate families for a year.

The need for blood is great. All healthy adults between the ages of 18 and 65, weighing 110 pounds or over, may donate. Baby sitters will be available from 1:45-4:30. The bloodmobile runs from 2-7 p.m.

Raises Due For All, Long Contracts

Police, Fire Near Settlements

The Board of Selectmen has reached tentative collective bargaining agreement with the police, fire and town employees and unofficial reports indicate raises for all and 27-month contracts.

The Town Employees Association (TEA), representing 82 workers, is reportedly ready to sign a contract giving them a five percent hike for the next 15 months and 4.5 percent for the following year.

The police have reportedly agreed to a 2.5 percent raise for the first year and a 2.5 boost for the second. The seemingly lower police increase is offset by a longevity clause which gives each man $300 for every five years' service. There is a $1,200 limit, however.

The firefighters have reportedly agreed to terms similar to the TEA.

Beginning firefighters and patrolmen now earn $8,800 the first year, $9,165 the second and $9,550 for the third, the maximum. The new contract would increase those figures.

Oil Shortage; 'Please Lower Your Thermostat'

Dwindling heating oil supplies are leaving some local oil distributors short of home heating fuel and causing them to request homeowners to cut down on oil consumption. While most of the local distributors surveyed felt they have enough oil to meet immediate demand, several said they cannot take on any new customers.

A spokesman for one local dealer said, "We expect to have our supply cut this week and if so we will have to tell our customers they will have to cut down."

One of the large suppliers of home heating oil, Metropolitan Petroleum Co. of Mass., described the situation as "a terrible shortage" and urged residents to conserve oil wherever possible.

"Lower thermostats and don't waste heat," said John Griffin, company executive vice-president. He said home temperatures of 75 to 80 degrees are unnecessary. He said it's more economical to maintain a house at a constant temperature—say 65 degrees—than to turn the thermostat low at night and up in the morning, which "uses just as much fuel." Metropolitan, which supplies the Town of Winchester with No. 2 fuel, reports enough on hand "to take care of you for a while." Griffin said part of the problem is that there is not enough storage space in Boston Harbor.

One spokesman for a large area distributor, who asked not to be identified, said: "I feel right now a lot of dealers are going to run out of oil."

One local dealer said they purchase their own fuel and "we don't anticipate any problem at all. We have our own storage in town."

The company that supplies the town with Nos. 4, 5 and 6 oil—the heavier fuel used in buildings such as schools—expects to keep its contracts all winter.

Paul Lowder, sales heating manager for Union Petroleum Co., said that while "all fuel oils are in demand" No. 2 is much more in demand. He does have sufficient supplies to supply Winchester and all our customers at the present time.

The reasons for the current No. 2 shortage are the oil import quota, which restricts imports of foreign-produced No. 2 oil into New England to 45,000 barrels a day; last August's price freeze, which froze the price of No. 2 oil at its summer-low price of 7 cents a gallon and led major refineries to produce the more expensive gasoline, causing a shortage; air pollution standards, which prevent some large companies from using Nos. 5 and 6 oils; and the large consumption of gasoline by new cars.

TEA workers are paid at an hourly rate. Temporary employees could be as low as $2 an hour. Laborers make $3.72, truck drivers $3.98, incinerator workers around $4 and bulldozer operators and tree climbers $4.25.

The selectmen announced at their meeting this week they also reached tentative agreement with the Organized Clerical Association as well. As with the police, fire and TEA agreements, they refused to release any salary figures.

Acting Chairman John J. Sullivan told The Star the reason for the secrecy is the board wants the contracts in writing and signed before announcing the figures so there won't be any misunderstandings "over what is and what isn't."

The Star's salary figures were obtained unofficially and could change if there are additional negotiations.

The School Committee, which last fall reached agreement with the teachers, is near the end of its bargaining sessions with other employees. Coaches' salaries are reportedly one of the last items to be settled.

Selectman Sullivan announced at the board meeting that agreements have been reached with all the other-unorganized-employees under the board's jurisdiction. Their contracts cover 15 months.

Details on all agreements may be available next week, he said. This is the first year since collective bargaining with municipal employees that agreements will have been reached 60 days prior to town meeting.

The board has a rule that if agreement is not reached within those 60 days, then the appropriation for the new contract is put off until a special town meeting. This happened twice with the firefighters.

Sullivan said the board has had 13 bargaining sessions with TEA, one session lasting until 2 a.m., in order to meet the board's Jan. 5 (60-day) deadline.

The selectmen acted on another salary matter this week—state-set salary minimums for police and fire chiefs. This 1971 legislation setting the salaries of all Massachusetts police and fire chiefs at double that of the lowest paid firefighters and patrolmen was delayed because of President Nixon's wage freeze.

Acting Chairman Sullivan said the board "vigorously opposed" this legislation forcing communities to pay funds without state aid. "We consider it a violation of local rule."

Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen advised the board that with the lifting of Nixon's freezes, the town must begin to pay the chiefs the new rates. The new figures put each chief at $18,100, a $2,492 increase. There will be an additional increase when the new contracts with the police and firefighters go into effect.

Money was still a third topic of the board Monday. Town Treasurer Marguerite Troop requested permission to borrow $200,000 in bond anticipation notes to meet expenses in renovating the old high school into a junior high school.

She said $194,000 will have been spent in renovations by the end of February. Though the town meeting approved $450,000 for the sale of bonds, there have been delays in getting those bonds, not expected to be sold

Peace Group Gets Response At Dump

A group of Winchester Peace Committee members demonstrated at the town dump Saturday against the bombing of North Vietnam, handing out anti-war leaflets and talking with residents.

"By and large the reception was very positive," said Michael Strah, committee coordinator. "Almost everyone took the literature we offered and made encouraging comments."

Rev. Strah, minister of Second Congregational Church, said one man was so pleased he went home and came back with coffee for the 15 Peace Committee members.

He said out of the couple of hundred residents the 15 committee members met between 10 a.m. and noon, there were "half a dozen angry responses. Strah said the police came by twice to tell them to move on.

The first time, according to Strah, a squad car came. He told the officers Chief Edward F. Bowler told them as long as they were on public property and not obstructing traffic they could stay.

The second time plainclothesmen came and told them they couldn't distribute literature and "the station doesn't want you here." Strah told them the same thing and the police left.

The local peace group plans to participate in a rally for peace sponsored by the Indochina Peace Campaign in Boston tomorrow.

The group plans to join other such groups at Boston Common at 11:30 a.m. and march to Government Center, where several speakers plan to talk, beginning at 12:30 at City Hall Plaza.

Members of the Winchester Peace Committee demonstrate at the town dump Saturday against the bombing of North Vietnam. They report a mostly positive reception from the couple

Only Two So Far Take Out Papers For Seats On School Committee

School Committeeman Stephen Parkhurst this week took out papers for re-election and the other member whose term is up this year, Lane McGovern, said he would not seek a second term.

Only one other person has taken out papers for School Committee. He is Vincent Galvin of 45 Calumet rd., unsuccessful candidate for Congress in last November's congressional race.

McGovern said he is not seeking reelection because of "the tremendous amount of time involved" in being on the committee. "Unless you are prepared to make the committee your number one extra-curricular activity, you shouldn't go on."

McGovern said he is going to be doing work for a committee of the Boston Bar Association and this coupled with his legal work will prevent him from spending the great amount of needed time on committee work.

"I enjoyed being on the committee," he said. "I'm proud and pleased to have done it." Will he consider running in the future? "I might. I wouldn't rule it out."

McGovern said he informed the other committee members recently that he wouldn't be a candidate "so they could find someone else." The School Committee races in recent years have had a paucity of candidates.

A member of the sub-committee which worked on the protracted teachers' contract negotiations, McGovern said, "There were a lot of meetings; there's no question of it." But he said his decision not to run was not due only to collective bargaining.

Persons who wish to be candidates for School Committee and other town offices have until Jan. 25 to take out papers from the town clerk. Fifty certified signatures are required on a candidate's papers.

The following is the town clerk's list of persons who have taken out papers so far:

Selectmen (two vacancies): William G. Chapman Jr., incumbent; Emidio DiLoreto of 93 Thornberry rd., Eugene B. Rotondi of 224 Forest st., Lawrence T. Smith, Finance Committee chairman; and Mark A. Lombardi of 14 Ware rd.

Town Meeting Moderator (one vacancy):

Raymond J. Kenney, incumbent;

Assessor (one three-year vacancy): Werner A. Carlson of 15 Bigelow ave., Sumner M. Beal Jr., an appointee filling an unexpired term; and Ralph C. Powers, 3 Meriden rd.

Assessor (one one-year vacancy): George L. Andersen, 28 Mayflower rd.

Board of Health (one three-year vacancy): Vartkes K. Karalan, incumbent;

Cemetery Commission (one five-year vacancy): Ralph W. Hatch, incumbent and John W. Lane 3rd of 2 Myrtle st.

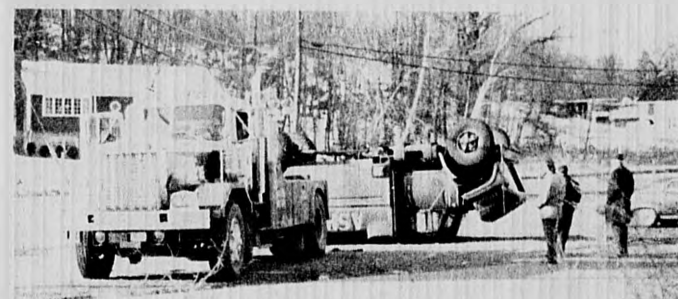

Cemetery Commission (one one-year vacancy): Bradford J. Johnson of 16 Ardley pl. and J. Frank Holland of 8 Stowell rd.

Commissioner of Trust Funds (one three-year vacancy): William R. Moriarty of 6 Priscilla ln. and Harris Richardson Jr., incumbent.

Spinney Hopes ID Cards Will Stop Fights, Booze

Identification cards for high school students in an effort to eliminate fights and drinking at town-sponsored dances is one project the Recreation Department is working on.

Recreation director Donald L. Spinney said there have been "a few problems" in connection with the dances, stopped now because the old high school is being converted into a junior high school.

Cause of the problems have been Woburn and junior high school teenagers crashing the dances, he said, and lack of supervision in the female restrooms. "One dance was cancelled because of junior high school fights."

The Recreation Committee is working on the possibility of using school traffic warden supervisors in the female restrooms. "Some sort of control is needed," Spinney said.

He prefers to use the old high school for the dances because the gymnasium is bigger.

As for the town's ice skating program, Spinney said his department plans to flood Manchester Field shortly for skating. There is skating now at Leonard and McDonald Fields, he said.

The field behind the Knights of Columbus hall is not used for skating any longer, he said, because it is bowl-shaped and the sun melts the ice quickly. Manchester Field is more suitable, he said, because the wind sweeps it, contributing to the chill factor.

Spinney also outlined for The Star the many programs the Recreation Department conducts for the elderly and youth. Six hundred elderly participate in various activities from theater trips to monthly luncheons.

He said 5,000 children in town attend 27 programs, including 400 every Saturday from 1-4 in arts and crafts at the new high school. There is a 12-team street hockey league indoors at the Lynch Junior High School from 1-5 Saturdays.

Other schools used for various activities are Muraco, McCall and the new high school. "The people in this town like to get their money's worth by using school buildings," he said.

Spinney answered criticism about the stopping of the badminton program by saying that it resumed last week at the new high school. He would like to see badminton stay there rather than move back to the old high school because the new one has eight courts as compared to four at the old.

The reason badminton was interrupted, he said, was because there was a break between Recreation Department seasons and the department has to wait until the School Department sets up its own recreation programs before planning theirs.

Spinney defended the Recreation Committee's withdrawal of an article at last year's annual town meeting to appropriate $25,000 for the Concern Committee to run a youth center. "I can't talk for them," Spinney said of the Recreation Committee. But he didn't like the location, the Parish of the Epiphany on Church street.

He said there would have been no way of controlling youths from going up to the church. "If the stained glass windows were broken, the town would be liable." He added that there was damage to the church and pot smoking going on when a coffee shop for youths was run there.

Spinney has been director six years. When he came here his annual budget was $1,500, he points out. Now it is $90,000.

Spinney would like to see one community center in town where all groups could meet in their own rooms. He figures it would cost $27,000 to refurbish the Lincoln School—due to be phased out as a school building—into such a center.

School Budget Of $10 Million Being Argued

The new 18-month school budget proposed by the School Committee at $10,634,535—is undergoing its annual struggle between the School and Finance Committees.

The total budget is composed of three accounts: personal services at $9,136,833, other expenses at $1,407,464 and capital outlay at $90,238. Separate budgets belonging to the School Department include the cafeteria, $150,463, athletic, $167,183 and school rentals, $25,748.

The Finance Committee has expressed hope that some matters could be postponed and that in the cases of state legislated programs, waivers might be sought. These areas apparently touch special education, audio-visual equipment and programs, maintenance of school buildings and grounds, cost of elementary school lunches and supervisors and athletic equipment.

According to Assistant Superintendent for Administrative Services William F. Clark the personal services account is based upon estimated sums for school department personnel groups which have not completed negotiations at the time that the budget is prepared. As in other town budgets, the personal services account does not include negotiated salary adjustments for school secretaries and custodians. These items appear in the Personnel Board's budget and will be fed back into the school budget upon approval by the Annual Town Meeting.

In figuring the new 18-month budget which will cover the period Jan. 1, 1973 to July 1, 1974 "you can't just add 50 percent" Clark advises. "Because the operation of the schools fluctuates greatly, it is almost necessary to look at each item separately for its individual problems."

Regarding any budget alterations since the original was submitted to the Finance Committee, the administrator notes that he has received "no direction as to any changes which have been made" in the accounts

Goodwill Fashion Parade At Crawford Church Jan. 25

A Goodwill fashion parade featuring historic styles from the early 1800's to the present will highlight the Jan. 25th meeting of the United Methodist Women at Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church in Winchester. The Goodwill auxiliary to Morgan Memorial will present its travelling style show at Crawford Memorial, Dix and Church streets at 8 p.m.

Mrs. William Platzoeder is program chairwoman of UMW. Other officers include Mrs. E. Leonard Woods, president; Mrs. Donald Wilkins, secretary; and Mrs. David Dettinger, treasurer.

The Goodwill fashion parade, which is a way to raise funds for handicapped workers, traces clothing styles from the conservative 1880's to the gay 90's, through the roaring 20's and up to the soaring 70's. Most of the styles presented in the show will not be found in the stores of today. There will be dresses of silk and satin, velvet and lace, highlaced boots and chapeaus trimmed with ostrich plumes. Another highlight is the display of 1880 corsets, chemises and petticoats. The show began with women exclusively as models, but now some of the husbands have been worked into the performance to display old-fashioned swim suits and nightshirts.

Fernald School Seeks Furniture

The Walter E. Fernald School for the retarded in Waltham is sponsoring an all-out furniture drive in order to provide the children of Farrell Hall with a more homelike living environment.

The 26 children residing in Farrell Hall are divided into nine small living groups, in which the staff is trying to create a normal family atmosphere. The children range in age from 8 years to 15 years. The goal of the drive is to provide comfortable, attractive furnishings for the children.

The staff feels that the more pleasant the environment within the institution, the more easily these children will be able to adapt to life outside the Fernald School.

To achieve this goal the school relies on donations of usable household articles such as sofas, chairs, bureaus, record players, televisions, refrigerators, and toys. Trucks will be supplied to pick up donations all day this Saturday and next.

Several Breaks Hit Businesses, Local Residences

Local police have been kept busy recently by a number of breaking and enterings, particularly this weekend when six incidents at both Winchester residences and businesses were reported.

On Monday morning of last week Officer John E. Guarente discovered another entry at O'Neill's Pharmacy, 294 Washington st. An unknown amount of drugs and a cash bag were missing according to the report. Access was apparently gained to the adjacent building, the Donut Kitchen, 292 Washington by an undetermined method, then two cinder blocks in the basement of 292 were removed to allow entry to the drug store.

A stereo set and a television were taken from 66 Arlington st., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Abbott later that week. The front door had been kicked in, alarm wires cut and a transformer pulled from the wall.

At 32 Garfield rd., the home of the Bernard E. Jackson's, the rear door was found kicked in by Officer Richard J. Anselmo shortly after midnight Saturday. All rooms had been ransacked. It was unknown at that time what was missing.

A "near search" of the Philip E. Richardson's house, 14 York rd., had been conducted it was noted in the report of Officer Erwin W. Nurnberger Jr. on Sunday. Two color televisions were known to have been stolen at that time. Access was gained by removing a storm window, prying the window up and snapping the lock.

The attendant at the Tulsa Service Station, Main st. discovered that 20.6 gallons of gasoline valued at $7.37 had been stolen from the station when he took a pump reading that Saturday morning. The front door glass on the station had been broken, but no access gained to this building. Officer Theodore W. Yeanaopolis was sent to the scene.

The intruder (s) at the Winchester Carton Corporation, 50 Cross st., apparently entered this building through a window and then proceeded to the adjacent structure, Brown Screw Machine Products, 40 Cross st. by a connecting door.

According to the reports of Officer David K. Richardson, who investigated the sites Monday morning, ransacking had occurred at the carton company, including coin machines, and doors and cabinets forced. Items taken from here were left in the office at 40 Cross where ransacking had also taken place.

At the start of the weekend a break at the residence of the John L. Carroll's, 19 Tufts rd. was investigated by Officer Anselmo. A medicine cabinet in the bathroom was found open, but it was not known at that time what, if anything, was missing. An inside rear door had been pried open.

Four power mowers were taken from a summer house at the rear of 350 Highland ave. it was discovered by the owner, Dr. William F. Hickey Jr. Entry was made through an unlocked door.

On Abortion

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

So-called woman's rights groups in America, it seems to me, are conspiring against human life as they push for broader abortion laws. They claim to be elevating women when, in reality, they are degrading the female sex. If they can convince women on a large scale that motherhood is something to shun, even to the point of murdering their own offspring, womanhood, and mankind as well, is on the downward path.

How much lower on the scale of man's inhumanity to man can we go than murdering helpless innocents who can't fight for their right to live?

'Headline Created False Impression'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a friend, neighbor and supporter of Ken Trevett, I very much resent The Star's headline announcing his decision not to pursue further the possibility of a new election for state representative.

Not only the headline—"Trevett Loses; Gives Up"—but much of the article that follows leaves the erroneous impression that the courts invalidated his claim that enough errors were made in the last election to warrant a new one.

This was simply not the case. And Mr. Chadwick was mistaken in his quoted statement that the courts did in fact make a decision on the basis of established legal precedents. On the contrary, the courts found no such precedents within the Commonwealth. And though they had the opportunity to define clearly the ambiguous laws regarding absentee ballots, they chose instead to allow the case to be settled in the state legislature.

Had the legislature been allowed to make a decision, it would, I believe, have vindicated Ken's claim and called for a new election. Ken believed, however, that such a decision might be regarded as a partisan political move. And it is for that reason that he did not bring his case to the State House.

Though some of us who were—and remain—his supporters might have hoped that Ken would decide otherwise, we respect the choice he made—a choice that demonstrated his courage, integrity and decent regard for the opinions of Winchester's citizens.

In this respect Ken Trevett did not lose. And so far as his dedication to Winchester and public service is concerned, I am sure he has not given up.

'Original Washington School Still Stands'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I have enjoyed the recent notes of historic interest in your paper and should like to comment further—and perhaps help clarify matters regarding the two Washington School buildings.

The little one-room structure with its ornate cupola was built in 1850, almost simultaneously with the incorporation of the infant Town of Winchester.

This first Washington School with its outdoor water pump, privies and twin front doors with originally a fence between each door running from entry to street (one door for girls, one for boys) served the primary grades of Winchester Highlands very acceptably by standards of the day.

In the 1890's a more commodious "New Washington School" was built just west of the earlier school farther down Cross street, and would be used just 30 years.

Due to a burgeoning population, extensive school construction in the early 1920's was to result in our present Lincoln, Noonan, Wyman, Mystic and Washington Schools, which replaced all but three or four wooden schoolhouses in the town. One stands yet, serving happily as a dwelling house on the southerly side of Bacon street just below Symmes Corner.

Another (our 1850 Washington School) stands in much altered form as the New Hope Baptist Church.

The schoolhouse was sold by the town to this devout organization in the early 1920's and the parishioners invested a good deal of time and money in their conversion of the structure.

As one walks past today one can recognize the original roofline, cornice details and proportions of the early school though additions to the front and rear have effected a great change, as has the stucco and stone exterior and larger window openings.

"New Washington School" next door was pulled down in 1925, accompanied perhaps by the collective groans of its transplanted student body as they trudged up the long hill towards yet another Washington School—then brand new, now the one which after 50 years still serves the young people of "The Highlands" so well.

Contaminated Milk

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Recently we purchased some milk from a local dairy store which shall remain nameless. I will only say that I checked the containers to see if they were filled this time. The milk was not sour, but it was contaminated with a strong, pungent, unpleasant taste. A second newly purchased container was identical. Unfortunately, this contamination was not discovered until three hours after our infant daughter had consumed two bottles of it.

We called the store immediately. They knew nothing about it, offered us our money back, locked up and went home. We called the dairy. A concerned night watchman said he would notify the proper people immediately and someone would call us right back. The dejected watchman later said we would have to call again tomorrow. Tomorrow!

The poison center advised us it was too late to induce vomiting, but to watch for symptoms of poisoning. At the end of a sleepless night we knew that the contaminant was not dangerous enough nor strong enough to do visible damage to our child. But what of the other children? Could they get their money back?

The plant manager was not in when we phoned in the morning, but would return our call in a few hours. He never did. I wondered if the poor man drank some of his own milk. The state Milk Control Agency informed us they only controlled prices.

The Winchester Board of Health Milk (as they are listed in the phone directory) decided to have the milk analyzed. They never did. They asked the store manager, and he said there were no other complaints. (Asking him is a little like asking a clergyman if he patronizes a brothel.) The Winboofm (as they are sometimes known) then decided that it can't be a serious problem. Besides, they're always having problems with the big milk companies, but 'taint nothing to worry 'bout. Why one time some discolored milk just turned out to be dirty bottles that had some old chocolate milk in them. Shucks, 'taint nothing.

And what of my contaminated milk? Its chemistry is confined to my refrigerator if ANYONE is interested. So drink and be merry, for tomorrow nothing happens.

Committee Prepares For Town Historical Survey

By Don Brown
Winchester Historical Committee

At the most recent meeting of the Winchester Historical Committee the proposed program for organizing a survey of the entire town was introduced and discussed. Receiving the approval of the committee, it is here outlined for the information of all residents, particularly those who may be approached during the course of this most important inventory of historic resources.

The Massachusetts Historical Commission is preparing a statewide preservation plan, and is going so against the deadline of the National Bicentennial Celebration in 1976. In order to complete such a plan in time to begin meaningful implementation, all survey work pertaining to existing or surviving areas, structures or monuments must be recorded on prepared survey forms. Upon this rests the future eligibility of the town for receiving federal and state financial assistance on or before the 30th of June, 1973. The time remaining for such work is consequently very short.

Examples of the three categories would be: for area—the right of way of the Old Middlesex Canal (1793-1853); for structure—the Town Hall, late 19th C. Richardsonian style; and for monuments—the site of the first house (at Converse place and Main st. in the town center). In completing this description

Board's Decision:

'17 Pages Of Pap'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Thoughts of total challenge to the recent Appeals Board landmark give-away for an apartment project in the last sizeable single residence district in town must be suppressed temporarily even though suspicions of illegality, evidence of dual standards, inability-refusal to comprehend honest arguments, and a demonstrated excess of egoism could provide some interesting subject matter.

Let the board's 17 page of pap stand as a documentary to the lack of credibility at the very roots of historic New England government. Immediate concentration will be on basic health and tax issues for the town, and health issues for those bordering the Mystic Lakes and their discharge to the sea.

Despite childhood definitions, five pounds of stuff will not fit in a one-pound bag. The Cambridge st. sewer trunk serves admirably during nominal conditions, but with heavy rains it won't accept the Wildwood st. discharge and the excess sewage is pumped into an adjacent drainage system which empties in Mystic Lake. This strongly suggests the existing Cambridge st. trunk is marginal at best.

Bear in mind the 1969 Moss saturation estimate of 140 single dwellings when you consider the present proposal for 176 apartment units on less than 15 percent of this land. For comparison, the entire northwest corner of Winchester bounded by Cambridge st., Wildwood st. Johnson rd. and the towns of Lexington and Woburn presently contains some 330 housing units.

A wise and prudent man would have fears that a better than 50 percent "overnight" increase in housing units in this sector might adversely affect a suspiciously marginal sewer system, but not Winchester's triumvirate. They blithely issue dictums and plod on with the rationalization that the town is protected by their "Condition Number Seven."

This "condition" protects no one, least of all the town. It merely requires the Moss interests to install sewer and drainage systems adequate to the proposed 176 unit project. More properly, petitioner should have been required to take into consideration the eventual development of the better than 100 acres of virgin land in this area.

Evidence exists that the town has required a developer to consider adjacent areas during sewer line design if there is possibility a portion of the line being designed might serve as a connector from said adjacent area to the town sewer trunk.

As for requiring the petitioner to be responsible for insuring no back up of sewerage, I'm sure Mr. Moss is well aware the stipulation is entirely meaningless and unenforceable if the culprit is an inadequate trunk on Cambridge street. It is not inconceivable the Moss effluence, by entering the trunk someplace upstream from Wildwood st., could capture the trunk so to speak, and, in the extreme, aggravate to the point of permanence a situation now occurring only during periods of heavy rain.

Is the board oblivious to the consequence of its action, or is it indirectly committing town funds for a new sewer line on Cambridge st.? Last week's description of the hearing as a "Farce" was charitable.

of the work to be done and those who will do it. It is important to remember that almost all of the significant Revolutionary and Pre-Revolutionary structures and monuments in the town have been lost.

In the main these losses are the result of our not caring, of errors of omission by various town administrations and out of ignorance. The Winchester Historical Committee has organized itself to meet the emergency of the state deadline for inventory. We realize that such a committee cannot, of itself, create a sense of caring within.

We are also very aware of the questionable impact we may have on the town's administration on matters pertaining to the town's historical resources (based on the record of the recent past); but we do hope to contribute to the effort towards filling the information gap. We ought to know what we

1. 1640-1775 as Charlestown, Waterfield, South Woburn in the colonial period.
2. 1775-1800 as South Woburn, the young republic period.
3. 1800-1853 as South Woburn, the Middlesex Canal period.
4. 1854-1876 as Winchester, the industrial revolution period.
5. 1876-1920 as Winchester, the growth of railroad suburbs.
6. 1920 to present as Winchester, the prologue to the present.

The teams organized to undertake the survey are primarily made up of interested members of the Historical Committee, their associated volunteer architectural advisors and other resource people of the town who wish to contribute their time to this important task. Wherever possible, survey work assignments have been associated with home location.

owner's permission Try to avoid trespassing. Owner's consent must be obtained if the surveyor steps onto private property in order to take a photograph. If photographs made from public property are in the public domain.

general photograph Take at least one photograph of each structure recorded. This photograph should show as much of the building as possible. (A photograph taken at an angle will show two sides of a building.) Be sure to get the whole building in your viewfinder.

BOOK REVIEW

BY Ann M. Anderson

IN SEARCH OF THE DREAM PEOPLE by Richard Noone

This true story has all the makings of a first class mystery thriller. Unfortunately it is written in a rather unexciting, matter-of-fact style. However, there is sufficient suspense in the subject itself to keep the reader from abandoning the book.

It deals with Pat Noone, a young British scientist who vanished into the Malay jungle during World War II when the Japanese overran the peninsula. Several other white men in that area had done the same thing, and after the surrender in 1945 some of them reappeared, having successfully evaded the enemy for three and a half years. But Noone was not among these.

The author is the younger brother of Pat Noone. He felt that if anybody had a chance to survive the Malay jungle it was Pat due to his experience and his close and friendly relationship with the native tribes. He decided to find out what had happened to him.

Pat Noone, although still in his early thirties, was a well known and outstanding anthropologist. He had become interested in the aborigines in the remote Malayan jungles and was the first to make a study of a group called the Temiar whose existence until then was only conjecture. They lived in a Utopian condition on the almost inaccessible hills of Malaya.

Noone was accepted among them and given his own bamboo hut overlooking a river. His existence sounds delightful. He breathed the fresh mountain air, swam in the clear cold water, and spent his days observing the customs of his hosts who were most friendly and cooperative.

Temiar society is like an extensive family. Groups of blood relatives with their spouses live in a communal longhouse, each with his own cooking fire and cleared plot for cultivation. In common they have an hereditary area of land in which all hunt, fish, and gather wild fruits and grain. Together they share the work of farming and harvesting. But each one receives, not in proportion to the amount of labor, but according to need.

Marriage is simple. When a young man is ready to take a bride he visits nearby groups, sleeping with a young woman who takes his fancy. She in turn may have several lovers. When a final decision is made, a bride price is arranged and the young couple take over a vacant cubicle in the longhouse. There is no ceremony. Ties between a man and woman are rarely severed although each may take a temporary bedmate. A younger brother will often sleep with his sister-in-law and visitors are allowed sexual privileges. It is bad form to show jealousy.

The most intriguing custom that Noone reported was the ability of the Temiar to manipulate their own dreams. A dream was a spiritual experience just as real and important as anything that happened during waking hours. Children were taught early to remember and discuss their dreams and were given advice on dealing with them. They were so important to the tribe that decisions were seldom made without some member having had a course of action pointed out to him in his sleep.

Pat Noone had become an accepted, even revered member of Temiar society. His brother's investigations among them led to the discovery of Pat's beautiful native wife, of treachery on the part of a blood brother, of communist intrigue, and finally of a murder of passion. It seems that some of the Temiar were not fully in accord with Utopian principles.

HOUSEBREAK

The Winchester Police Department was awarded a Federal grant of $28,250 in October of 1970 for the project "Comprehensive Attacks on Auto Theft and Burglary." In connection with this heightened focus on burglary, the Department will present "Housebreak," a column suggesting ways in which Winchester residents may assist these efforts against crime in weeks to come through the pages of The Star. Look for it.

Beware of so-called "inspectors" who will examine your home without charge to determine the safety of the furnace, roof, etc. If you do require any of these services, consult a reputable dealer, and then consult two other reputable dealers for proper evaluation of your problem.

Clergy Are 'Sickened,
Outraged Distressed
By Savage Bombing'

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As citizens of Winchester we are writing to protest our country's continued involvement in the war in Southeast Asia.

Like most Americans, we were heartened when, on Oct. 26, Henry Kissinger announced that "peace is at hand." But we are shocked at what has happened between Oct. 26 and the end of 1972. Instead of seeing the triumph of peace and good will, we have witnessed violence, death and apparent deception.

We are distressed by the unprecendently savage bombing attacks by American planes against the civilian populations of Hanoi and Haiphong. We are sickened by the massive destruction of hospitals, schools and homes, documented by American observers, and we are outraged by the refusal of our government to acknowledge attacks on civilian targets. Moreover, we do not understand why the bombing was resumed if, as Mr. Kissinger announced on Dec. 16, the peace agreements were 99 percent completed.

Finally, we are deeply concerned about the way our continued involvement in this war is affecting the moral sensibilities of our people. Are we becoming, in stark contrast to our national heritage, a people more devoted to war and violence than to life and liberty? We believe that the moral price we are paying for America's continuing support of this war is a decreasing concern for the human person and the acceptance of the idea that some lives are worth less than other lives.

Therefore, we call upon President Nixon to sign immediately the nine-point peace agreement negotiated in October which would end American involvement in the war and enable the exchange of prisoners.

Further, we call upon the Congress of the United States to reclaim its rightful role in ending the war. To this end we urge all citizens of Winchester to write their senators and representatives and encourage them to (1) vote to cut off appropriations for the war, and (2) to persuade other members of the Congress to vote the same way. We also urge the citizens of Winchester to write their friends in other states and ask them to urge their congressmen to vote to cut off appropriations for the war.

We must have peace now.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wonder whether the townspeople of Winchester are fully aware of what a superb hospital they have in their town.

During the past year I have been a patient at the Phillips House of the Massachusetts General and the Peter Bent Brigham Hospitals in Boston and the London Clinic and the Exeter-Nuffield Clinic in England.

My mother has been a patient at the Winchester Hospital and the continuing care unit of the Winchester Hospital, where she is presently a patient.

In terms of nursing care, administration, cleanliness, the members of the doctoral staff, the food, the general staff of the hospital and the unity of purpose, harmony and intense dedication of the entire staff of the hospital, it occurs to me that the four hospitals I mentioned above have much to learn from the Winchester Hospital.

I can't begin adequately to express my appreciation to the hospital and its staff for making the Winchester Hospital the extraordinarily fine hospital it is.

Little League Asks
For Volunteers Now

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

An open letter from Winchester Little League —

The 1973 Winchester Little League season will be upon us before you know it and your Little League organization is deep into its planning. We hope at least the male members of your family are planning to work and play with us.

The boys come out in droves, and we love it; the parents stay away "en masse," and we hate it!

Little League needs umpires, coaches and women's auxiliary volunteers. Won't you sign up now for one of these activities?

The more umpires who volunteer, the fewer games each will need to work—and we will train you.

With two coaches on each team, the boys will benefit with more instruction.

With more ladies to help operate the refreshment stands, the fewer times they will be called upon for this service.

We urge you parents of Little Leaguers and Senior Leaguers, past, present and future, to call the Winchester Little League, Inc., president tonight, or write him a letter offering your services.

Let's cooperate for a highly successful 22nd year of consecutive operation of baseball for boys under Little League.

The Winchester Voter

(The "Winchester Voter" is a series written by the League of Women Voters to acquaint readers with town voting practices and issues.)

TOWN ELECTION: The town election will take place this year on Monday, March 5. If you are not yet registered and you wish to vote in this election, you must be enrolled by Feb. 13.

VOTING: Voting in government elections is your right and privilege as a citizen. However to be able to vote, you must register with the proper officials. The registration of voters is a sensible precaution to prevent an individual from voting more than once in the same election.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURE IN WINCHESTER:

1. If you are 18 years old or over, you may register at the town clerk's office in the Town Hall, open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

2. Extended evening and weekend registration hours just prior to the close of election are announced in The Star.

3. Registration closes 31 days prior to each state or national election. It closes 20 days before town or special elections. The cut-off dates for registration allow the town clerk to prepare up-to-date voting lists.

4. To register as a voter you need to satisfy local registration officials that you have established a permanent residence in the town. By a ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court and by the 1972 law enacted by the state legislature, all durational requirements for "residency" or "domicile" have been eliminated. In other words it is no longer necessary to have a prior residence of six months or a year to be eligible to vote.

5. You need to register only once in Winchester to be able to vote in all elections as long as you are a resident.

6. If you are foreign born, you must bring to the town clerk proof of your citizenship.

INFORMATION FOR 18-YEAR-OLDS AND COLLEGE STUDENTS:

1. If you are a student living in Winchester, you may register if you are 18 years old or more. In this year of 1973, you may register if your 18th birthday comes before or on March 5.

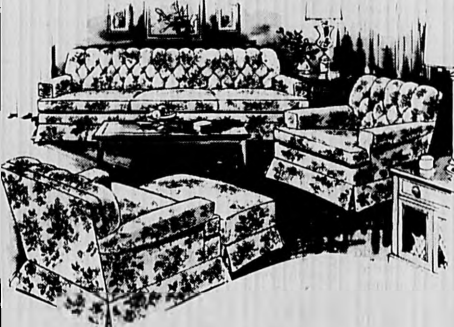

2. If you are a college student and wish to vote in the town or city where you are attending, you must satisfy local election officers that the dormitory room or apartment occupied is in actuality your domicile for voting purposes.

3. According to the ruling of the attorney general, final determination of "residence" within the meaning of "voting residence" is in the jurisdiction of the boards of registrars and election commissioners of each city and town of the Commonwealth.

INFORMATION AVAILABLE FROM LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS:

1. This organization is non-partisan. One of its primary purposes is to promote participation in government by active and informed citizens. For further information about registration to vote, you may call the chairman of the League's Voters' Service Committee, Mrs. Robert Oppenheimer, 67 Thornberry rd.

2. In the next issue of the "Voter" there will be a discussion of absentee ballot.

Library Is No Longer Only Place To Read, Get Books

By Pauline Dishmon

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles describing the Winchester Public Library — its history, facilities, goals, outreach programs, material and staff.

The Winchester Public Library is currently hosting a six-session course Wednesday mornings at 10 on "Managing For Family Satisfaction." The course, presented by the Middlesex County Extension Service, is led by Mary Ellen Lavenberg, home economist, who is showing participants how to examine family goals, direction and control of available resources, and will continue through Feb. 14.

This is part of a continuing thrust to provide educational and recreational programs through Winchester Public Library. Last October, Ann Smith, reference librarian, led a course offered as part of the school department's adult education program and called "Libraries — Everything You Always Wanted To Know But Didn't Ask."

And late last year Mrs. Lucy Thoma of the Child Study Association of Massachusetts led six discussions on the changing role of marriage, problems of newcomers to a community and other topics of interest to those in the group.

Other special features have been programs on Christmas gift books, gravestone rubbings, sewing, alternative lifestyles, and preserving and canning. These programs have met with varying degrees of participation by Winchester residents.

Outreach

The idea of a library being only a place to go to read or to check out a book for a week or two is no longer true. "A good library does a great deal outside the building," says Mrs. Leila-Jane Roberts, head librarian, who describes her involvement in the Outreach Leadership Network training program this past year as being the greatest single influence on the library administration and example of outreach.

Federally funded, OLN was set up to give training in techniques of designing and implementing action programs and to encourage communication among librarians on a New England-wide basis.

Last spring Mrs. Roberts attended a four-day institute for 26 Massachusetts librarians. She was involved in an action plan for joint effort between the school department and the public library to provide cooperative plans for library instruction at the elementary school level.

Later in August she attended a three-day institute at Durham, N.H., where she met with 31 other librarians selected from the four previous state and regional institutes for a leadership training program.

"As the name (OLN) suggests, the concept of outreach means that libraries are not confined to thinking only in terms of service to those who find their way into the building, but should be involved in a n effective manner with the total community," Mrs. Roberts says.

As administrator of the Winchester Public Library and one involved in OLN she is attempting to involve her entire staff in planning and evaluating ways to spend time and money, and to share ideas and results of programs with other libraries, also working in a similar manner. "Reaching out to the community is not new, but the idea of developing a network of communication throughout New England is," she notes.

Mrs. Roberts is proud and pleased with her staff, which includes Ann M. Anderson, assistant head librarian; Phyllis E. Twitshell, children's librarian; taking the place of Deborah Crowe, who resigned; Katrine C. Laban, young adults' librarian; Elva L. Nelson, catalog librarian; and Ann M. Smith, reference librarian.

Other full-time paid professional staff members include Harriette S. Graves, professional library assistant; Mary F. Dewar, senior library assistant; Helen L. McKillop, senior library assistant; Gall M. Constantine, secretary; Patricia Ann Cullen, library assistant; Virginia H. Goring, library assistant; Mary E. Doherty, library aide; and custodians Howard E. Molloy and Louis J. Russo.

Part-time paid employees are Patricia Ann Corf, Paula J. Eustis, Heidi A. Hakel, Enid G. Houlding, Marie E. Kennedy, Martha W. Ladd, Frank Langone, Frances M. Reeves, Jeanette W. Robinson, Mary Jean Seaburg, Keri N. Smith and Janet J. Spencer.

Mrs. Roberts, who came to the Winchester library as a junior clerk in 1957 and was promoted to head librarian in 1967, considers "communication as well as cooperation essential" if taxpayers are to get their money's worth.

School Programs

She points to Superintendent of Schools William C. MacDonald as one who has been "most cooperative" in getting library information and books to young students.

She considers "A Tour of the Winchester Public Library" as one of the most significant programs for young people because it helps fourth grade pupils look at the library as a "treasure house."

Through a two-part tape-slide presentation, all of the town's fourth graders are given a view-tour of the library and later are bussed to the library through transportation provided by the school department. Children are given card catalog instruction so they will know how to find books they are seeking.

In her report to the trustees, Mrs. Roberts speaks of her professional staff meeting with Mrs. Betsey Williams, high school librarian. "We visited one of the subject areas to see the flexible teaching arrangements; toured the audio-visual laboratory where students were preparing a video-tape; and studied the resources available in the school library. This was valuable both from the standpoint of communication and as a means for the public library staff to understand the world of the present-day high school students," the report says.

She discussed with Supt. MacDonald the possibility of the public library sharing a pre-professional librarian with the school department in an effort to provide full-time library assistance for all of the town's elementary school libraries which are manned by volunteer parents, many of whom have taken library science courses.

While it was agreed that this arrangement would be valuable, school budget funds for such an experiment were not available at a time when a vacancy made public library funds available, reports Mrs. Roberts.

Reports from different committees working on school problems have been placed in a special section of the library's reference room and are available to the public, she adds.

Adult Education Courses Beginning

The Winchester adult education program for the winter term begins Jan. 29 with courses offered Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and on three afternoons, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 1 to 3:30.

Courses will be at the high school except for one course scheduled for McCall Junior High Tuesday evenings.

Several new courses will be offered this term: Monday, introduction to television and arts and crafts workshop;

Tuesday, antiques, general woodworking, tennis for intermediates and golf for beginners and intermediates.

Tuesday afternoon, crewel embroidery - advanced;

Wednesday, oil and acrylic painting.

In addition, many of the courses will continue in conversational Spanish and Italian, bridge, sewing and tailoring, Yoga, rug braiding, knitting and crewel will continue. Also, there will be physical fitness classes for men and women, tennis for beginners and an investment course.

Brochures describing all courses and giving information on cost and registration will be available at the high school, public library and some stores during the week of Jan. 15. Additional information can be obtained from the coordinators office at the high school in person or by phone.

Town Hall Ablaze With Rehearsals For Winton Club

Winchester Town Hall is a blaze of lights these frosty evenings as rehearsals for the 1973 Winton Club production of "What's Happening?" are being held.

Mrs. Carol Vincent, Mrs. John Harrison and their general committee are there each week night to check nightly lists, remind dancers of starting times, and round up the singing groups.

Mrs. Gustav Kaufman and Mrs. George Rivinius are there also, measuring and pinning costumes, marking them with the names of the performers and checking their lists. It isn't only children who wiggle when being fitted, just watch the chorus lines of "What's Happening?"

Mrs. Salmon W. Putman is there at the refreshment bar serving hot tea and coffee and soft cold drinks. She always manages to be there with a warming cup of coffee ready for any member of the cast or stage crew that needs a break.

"Oh Captain, My Captain" from a poem written after the Civil War, are the words heard at the doctors' rehearsals—no MASH-type office visits, just strictly concentration and effort applied to the learning of their routines led by their captain, Dainne Glines.

Doctors and other medical volunteers are donating some of their scarce free time to help make "What's Happening?" a fun show. All the fields of medicine seem to be covered—except for the orthopedic field. Winchester's specialists are involved in a medical convention right in the middle of rehearsal times.

Frank Muraco watches out for, and over the Victorian Town Hall as though it were the Museum of Fine Arts. He also manages to cheer on new acts, support nervous performers and chairmen alike, and probably could review the show for the New York Times if asked to do so.

Picture Lending Party Is Sunday

The final party for the 1972-73 Picture Lending Program will be held this Sunday from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Mouradian Rug Galleries, 40 Church st.

Joseph Pontone is president of the Winchester Art Association.

Mrs. Raymond Watts, chairman, reports that tickets for the new season which begins in May will be on sale at next Sunday's party for the convenience of the current members. Any tickets not sold by March 1 will be offered to the general public.

Ticket chairman for the new series of parties is Mrs. John R. Wiseman Jr., 12 Lockeland rd. and she may be contacted for further information.

The spring party which opens the new series will be held on May 20 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. Stockwell, 6 Ledgebrook rd. Hosts for the fall party will be Dr. and Mrs. Roy A. Johnson, 61 Arlington st. with September 16 as the scheduled date. The third party, which completes this series, will be held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Frank D. Bates, 336 Main st. on January 20, 1974.

The Picture Lending Program allows its patrons to borrow three pictures per year for a period of four months each, with the proceeds of the ticket sale going to the Winchester Art Association Scholarship Fund.

The money is used to give art scholarships each year to qualified Winchester High School students.

Paintings are loaned by professional artists and by accomplished local artists. Often, subscribers decide to purchase a painting they have borrowed in order to add to their own collections.

This year the Art Association is offering a new category of patron. Those who do not wish to borrow paintings but would like to give art students their help now may take this opportunity. Further information about this new program may be secured by calling either Mrs. Watts or Mrs. Wiseman.

Any member unable to attend this Sunday may designate a friend to come and make a selection in his stead.

Dolphins Overcome East Boston, 6-4

By Andy Twomey

Last week in a penalty-ridden game Winchester's semi-pro hockey team, the Dolphins, overcame the East Boston Mustangs by a score of 6 to 4.

The Dolphins struck first in this thriller as Jody Pedro burst through the Mustangs and went in alone for a score.

The East Boston team had some excellent chances in the first period but was held off by fine goal tending and excellent defense.

With four minutes left in the period Winchester scored again when McCormack put the puck past the Mustangs' goalie on a pass from Cesare.

The game's hard checking broke into a fight with :30 seconds showing on the clock. The officials let the combatants go for a minute, then broke it up and handed out the first 10 minutes in what would total 89 minutes of penalties.

The Mustangs came out flying in the second period, scoring in the first two minutes of play.

The second fight of the night broke out at 7:24 when two players took off the gloves at center ice. Teammates from both sides tried to help out but were restrained by the linesman.

The Dolphins moved out to a 3 to 1 lead to end the second period on a score by Christopher with assists to Jody Pedro and Fran Manzie.

To open the third McCormack got his second goal of the night going in alone and putting it past the goalie's glove.

When the goal light went on the gloves came off for a third time. Officials moved in to stop the fight quickly and no blood was drawn.

The Mustangs started to come alive after this and scored on Winchester, but 10 seconds later the Dolphins lit the lamp when Christopher picked up his second goal on a pass from Manzie.

But East Boston wasn't giving up yet, and when the Dolphins were short-handed they scored two goals, making it 5 to 4.

Then, with a minute left, Jody Pedro put the game out of reach, slamming home the insurance goal on a pass from Manzie, closing out the thriller at 6 to 4.

This Friday night the Dolphins meet the Waltham Habitanis at the USA rink. The games should be a great match with the Dolphins in top form. Two more players should beef up their scoring, Bob Nuttle, who is coming off a leg injury, and George Murphy, former Winchester High hockey star.

First Session Of Boots 'n' Blades Concludes At Rink

Boots 'n' Blades, the figure skating program conducted by the Winchester Wellesley Club at the Universal Sports Arena, Conant rd., concluded its first 10-week session recently with a lesson combining achievement testing for ribbons and certificates and games, relay races and prizes for all children enrolled.

Boots 'n' Blades was formed to provide an opportunity for children to improve their figure skating skills and as a benefit project for the Winchester Wellesley Club. Net proceeds will be divided between the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and Wellesley College.

The program, under the direction of Betty Lewis, former national pairs champion, member of the US World Figure Skating Team and experienced professional figure skating instructor, includes two consecutive 10-lesson sessions for elementary school children. The Saturday morning classes are limited to 140 enrollees equally divided between a junior session, grades 1-3, and a senior session, grades 4-8. The second session commenced last Saturday.

The lessons are conducted in accordance with USFSA guidelines. The teaching groups of 10 pupils or fewer per instructor are based on skill levels open to review, testing and progression to more advanced instruction levels throughout.

At the concluding class each child's achievements were evaluated with a ribbon for completion or certificate evaluating individual progress awarded to each.

Mrs. John Hamilton, chairman of the program, reports both sessions to have been oversubscribed. Assistants in organizing this initial year of the program are Mrs. Lane McGovern and Mrs. Molly Lisberger.

Other Wellesley Club members serving to make this year's program successful include: Mrs. K. Paul Chase, treasurer; Mrs. George Vrotsos, art work; Mrs. Alan Leland, clerical; and Mrs. Robert McIndoe, head of Saturday Volunteers. In-session volunteers include Mrs. John Russell, Mrs. Richard Swanson, Mrs. Stylianos Pazaris, Mrs. Ronald Sillman, Mrs. Gardner Bradley, Mrs. Robert Mirak, Mrs. A. A. Warren, Mrs. Joseph Twitchell, Mrs. Daniel Ahearn, and Mrs. John McClellan.

Soccer Players On 'All' Teams

Co-captain Peter Wakefield of the Sachem Booters has been selected as a member of the All Eastern Massachusetts soccer team. Together with all those selected from both sections of the state he will receive his award at a dinner to be held in Chicopee on Sunday.

Peter was also named to the Middlesex League all star team as was co-captain elect John Friberg. John led the league in scoring with 21 goals and was a unanimous selection.

Co-captain Al Sampson at wing, Keith McPhail at fullback and halfback Ken Abbott were included in the honorable mention group of the Middlesex League.

Mites Lose To Lexington, 6-2

The Mites of Winchester Youth Hockey lost to a strong Lexington Club 6-2 last weekend. An offense comprised of a goal by Co-Capt. Tony Celli on a pass from Tom Sullivan out in front and a Scotty Stillman blast from the right lane assisted by Tony Celli was the attack.

Goalie Patrick Falla, under constant pressure, played his best game of the season. Next Sunday the Mites go against Burlington.

St. Mary's Unbeaten

Mike Siegfried and Frank Ryan scored their first goals of the season and Gerard Kivney banged in two as St. Mary's defeated Walpole 4 to 2 to remain unbeaten and untied in recent CYO Hockey League play.

It took 8:28 for St. Mary's to score the game's first goal. The score game after Bill McLean checked a Walpole defenseman off the puck and Kivney picked up the loose disc and slid it under the Walpole goaltender before crashing into the left goalpost.

Frank Ryan, a former defenseman, moved to left wing, made it 2 to 0 for St. Mary's when he fired in an unassisted goal from a scramble in front of the Walpole net. Kivney scored what proved to be the game winner when he converted McLean's pass at 8:31 of the second period.

Siegfried finished the St. Mary's scoring when he picked up a rebound on Brian Flanagan's shot and put a 10-footer into the Walpole net.

Walpole came back with a breakaway goal at 7:17 of the final period and scored again with 21 seconds remaining.

Tracksters Win 1st Meet, 53-29

Coach Tom Kline's track team had two meets during the holidays and lost to Watertown 48-37, but upset newcomer Burlington by 53-29.

Some of the regulars were away during the holidays and the points which Keith Randelman, Glenn Wright and the others might have scored might well have made the record read two victories against two defeats for the season, instead of the current 1-3 standing.

Tip Macdonald took the shotput event in both of last week's meets. His top heave was 44 feet 8 1/2 inches. Rick Mullaney also was a double winner in the high jump. He took a first in the hurdles against Burlington and third in the Watertown affair.

Ted Trefon won the two mile against Burlington with Colin Mahon third, but Ed was unable to cope with the speedy John O'Laughlin of the Raiders, who turned in a 10:22.8 performance. Keith Leonard took a second in the dash in the Burlington meet. Paul Criscione was third in both meets. Steve Meahl and Peter Rigney were second and third respectively in the 300 in both meets.

Andy Samoiloff and Garvey were one, three against Burlington in the 600, and the former garnered second place in the same event against Watertown. Charlie Tatarian and Chase Rozelle were the first two finishers in the 1,000 yard run in both meets. Dave Burns took the mile against Burlington and was second with Colin Mahan finishing third against the Raiders.

Winchester relay group of Steve Meahl, Rick Mullaney, Peter Rigney and Charlie Tatarian ended both meets with a triumph for the Sachems.

Strong Teams

Melrose And Woburn
Trounce Sachem Six

By John F. Parrell

The Winchester hockey team met high flying Melrose and a surprisingly strong Woburn Tanager team last week, and in both cases were beaten quite convincingly.

The Raiders wasted little time in starting to amass their eight-goal total, as Tim Burke tallied after only six seconds had been played. The league leaders added another first period goal, scored twice in the second period and ended up with a four goal barrage in the final period. The Sachems fought back and set up several good scoring situations, but they just couldn't cage the puck.

Winchester picked up three first period penalties. In the time they were short handed Andy Benson netted the other first period score. Early in the second session Powers of Melrose was sent to the penalty box for interference, but only nine seconds later a Sachem was exiled to even the sides.

Brian Cook poked in the two Raider goals in the second period and had assists on four others to equal the production of his teammate Burke.

The visitors netted two more early in the final period as play continued at a fast pace. Near the half-way mark, two Sachems were sent off within five seconds of each other, but the remaining four struggled hard and held off the speedy Melrose crew. However, the pressure took its toll, and within a space of less than three minutes it was an 8-0 lead for the Raiders, which they held to the end.

The scoring:

First period: M Burke, assist for Cook, 0:06; M Benson, assisted by Burke and Cook, 5:03.

Second period: M Cook, assists for Leahy and Burke, 5:03; M Cook, assisted by Hughes and Leahy, 10:29.

Third period: M Hughes, assists for Cook and Burke, 1:35; M Hughes, assists for Cook and Burke, 2:40; M Burke, assist for Benson; 6:36; M Baier, assisted by Powers and Benson, 7:15.

The Saturday night game at Woburn turned out to be a much tougher one than could be guessed from looking at the standings. The Tanners have been playing well, and have one of the best schoolboy net minders. However, they have not been winning as frequently as might be expected.

But against the Winchester rivals they flashed all their speed and played hard-nosed defensive hockey to win handily by 6-1. The only Sachem goal came in the second period, when Charlie Evans scored with Mark Siegfried and Tom Brennan getting the assists.

The Tanners took a two goal lead in the first period as senior defense player Paul Dunn rushed down the left side and cut across in front of the goal. Tony Guarente moved to his right, and Dunn flipped the puck behind him into the cage.

This tally came after just over three minutes had been played. Two minutes later, Woburn had its second goal as Nick D'Arcangelo scored with assists for Kevin MacDonald and Bob Connolly.

Play continued to be fast, but also began to become rougher as the second period progressed. With the Tanners two men short on penalties, Charlie Evans brought Winchester back into contention just past the midpoint of the session. Then, with Winchester playing with only four skaters, Mike Ward regained the two-goal Woburn lead as McKeown and Lund assisted.

The third period saw a great deal of disorganized play as bump followed bump and penalty followed penalty. Sitting on a comfortable two-goal lead, the home team was able to coast along and hope for penalties on the Sachems. Three goals rattled into the nets for the Tanners as Dunn scored his second goal and Hunt and Connolly also dented the strings. During the third period Woburn bombarded Tony Guarente with fifteen shots, while Winchester had only five. The score might have gone even higher but for some superhuman work by Guarente.

The scoring:
First period: WO Dunn, unassisted, 3:25; WO D'Arcangelo, McKeown and Connolly.
Second period: WI Evans, assists for Siegfried and Brennan, 7:03; WO Ward, assisted by McKeown and Lund, 9:03.
Third period: WO Hunt, assists for Dunn and McKeown, 4:21; WO Dunn, unassisted, 9:30; WO Connolly, assisted by Smith and Gilgum, 10:18.

Board 16 from Section B, East-West vulnerable and West the dealer presents North with a problem. Please look at the North hand and decide what to bid after West's initial pass.

What did you choose? With a good eight-card suit, the hand has perfect shape for a pre-emptive 4S bid. However, South would expect a weaker hand, say seven instead of nine tricks.

It's too strong, however, for a 1S bid and with just 12 high-card points certainly doesn't have enough count for a standard opening 2S. (A system which opens with strong two-bids on hands having only four losers would fare well.)

Now assuming the 4S bid by North, would you respond with the South hand? Expecting seven sure tricks from North, South sees three in his hand to produce the game but two more? A pass by South seems called for.

One bonus in duplicate is checking a hand like this after the game, finding that all the 11 North-Souths played in spades, making six; only one pair, however, bid the slam—Ed Sullivan and Phil Cade. So you ask Ed how 'twas bid, and the problem is solved. North opened with 5S showing the pre-emptive shape and a stronger hand than expected, and South bid 6S.

HOME COMFORT TIPS

Correct Amount Of Humidity Indoors
Just As Important As Temperature Control

The old adage that "it isn't the heat, it's the humidity" just isn't true. Neither one alone is responsible. They're both in it together. In the summertime it's high humidity that makes temperature unbearable. But during the wintertime, it's indoor heating that causes the trouble and makes humidity act up.

We're talking about relative humidity, of course. And during the wintertime because warm air can hold more moisture than cold air, indoor heating increases air's capacity to hold moisture and quite naturally reduces relative humidity. And there's quite a reduction. Air that is brought inside the house from outside where it might be 70 to 80 percent relative humidity, can drop to only 5 percent relative humidity when it is heated to 70 degrees. And that's dry.

Furniture and wood trim dry out, become unglued and often require extensive repair. The delicate membranes in the nose and throat lose their natural moisture. As the warm "thirsty" air evaporates moisture from the skin there is a cooling effect ... requiring higher indoor temperatures to keep you warm and causing more fuel consumption.

There's only one solution to this dry air problem that we know. It's a humidifier.

The Aprilaire will help solve the problems we mentioned and will also help lower your fuel bills by keeping you warm at lower temperatures.

We'll be glad to offer you a free survey for either a furnace or a humidifier. Just call us for more information on either. Call today at 623-1815 - Federal Heating or Al LaPointe 728-5405.

RENTING OUT YOUR HOME
Your home becomes a business if you rent it out either for a year or some seasonal period such as the summer. The costs of running the property are subtracted from the rent to determine the net income from the operation -- just as would be done in any other business. Among the expenses that can be charged off are interest on the mortgage, maintenance and repairs, agent's fees, utilities if you pay them, insurance premiums, annual depreciation and improvements. If you sell a house you rented as against a home occupied by the owner -- there are important tax differences.

School Board Won't Give Up Unused Land

The Winchester School Committee gave formal approval to a previously voiced opinion that this school system would continue to host the Winchester-Lesley Summer School program in 1973 and to provide its own learning disabilities program to replace the cancelled program.

Superintendent of Schools William C. MacDonald reported recently that he had informed Dr. Henry Perry, director of the graduate school at Lesley College, that Winchester would continue to host the Lesley School enrichment summer program, but could not provide the estimated $4500-5000 additional funds for staff requested by the college for this summer. Dr. Perry had told the Committee at a November meeting that Lesley would be relocating its learning disabilities program from Winchester to Cambridge in 1973.

The local school system will now work on providing a learning disabilities program of its own, while Supt. MacDonald continues to discuss enrichment program problems with Lesley.

The recent session was opened with a moment of silence in recognition of the recent deaths of Mrs. John G. Chandler, a former School Committee member, and Mrs. Henry T. Knowlton, wife of physical education director Henry T. Knowlton.

Other opening business included the approval of the open and executive session meeting minutes of Dec. 28. The closed session minutes were placed in the private file. Committee members ended the evening with an executive session for the announced purpose of hearing negotiation reports from two persons and a personnel matter.

In a sense-of-the-meeting gesture the School Committee voiced its recommendation to the Board of Selectmen that Winchester continue to retain town owned lands adjacent to schools. The sale of these parcels of land is the subject of an article in the 1973 Annual Town Meeting Warrant. It was noted at that time that two of the sites mentioned in the article are no longer connected with the School Dept.

Committeeman Stephen R. Parkhurst said that it would be "short sighted" of the town to dispose of these properties since enrollment predictions are subject to such change. He also recommended that the cost of their maintenance be determined somehow from the Board of Selectmen's rental account.

An informational report on the 40-minute period, length of school day and credits needed for graduation in other schools in the Middlesex League was presented by WHS Principal Vincent E. Larocco. He will continue to work on these areas, projecting a recommendation possibly for September of 1974.

Most area schools, Mr. Larocco stated, are wrestling with these problems, particularly with that of credits. There is no widespread unit by which credits may be judged, he offered, therefore, it is ultimately colleges which must evaluate a student's work. While Winchester requires 90 credits for graduation, the principal cited the example of 380 seniors in 1972, 348 of which had accumulated 100 or more credits on their own toward graduation.

School Committee Will Meet Monday

Winchester School Committeemen will respond to members of other town boards on various matters when they meet this Monday night at 7:30 in Sanborn House, High st.

Provided that information on rental income is received, the committee will answer the Board of Selectmen on town-owned properties, and on the establishment of an environmental education aide position if data on possible federal funding can be obtained.

The Recreation Committee will be awaiting some response to its requests for the use of Ginn Field and the WHS tennis courts.

The Rev. Lias Will Be Ordained Saturday Morning

The Rev. J. W. Lias, assistant minister at the Parish of the Epiphany since last June, will be ordained to the priesthood this Saturday at 10:30 a.m. The Rt. Rev. Morris F. Arnold, Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts, will preside.

Participating in the service will be men who have been close to Mr. Lias during his preparation for the ministry as well as members of the parish. The Rev. Don F. Colenback, instructor in Christian ethics at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, will be the preacher. The Gospel will be the Rev. James H. Clark, rector of Grace Church, Amherst; the Epistole, Raimo A. Lias, brother of the Ordinand.

John W. Day, a member of St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, will read the Old Testament lesson, and Frederick L. Curtis, student assistant in the parish, will be the liturgist. The Rev. John J. Bishop, rector of the Epiphany, will serve as presenter. Joining in the laying-on-of-hands will be clergy of neighboring parishes. Choirs of the parish under the direction of Carl S. Fudge Jr. are presenting special music, and a committee of the Women of Epiphany, chaired by Mrs. Stephen W. Nichols, will provide a luncheon following the service.

Mr. Lias is a graduate of Amherst College and the Episcopal Theological School. As a seminary student, he served as an assistant at St. John's Church in Jamaica Plain and St. John's Church, Beverly Farms.

In the tradition of the Episcopal Church, ordination to the priesthood marks the completion of a preparation for Christian ministry that begins when a member first expresses his interest in studying for the ministry to his parish priest and then is enrolled by his bishop as a postulant for holy orders.

Having completed a formal course of study at one of the seminaries of the church, the candidate is required to pass canonical examinations as well as stand physical and psychiatric examinations before being presented to the bishop for ordination to the diaconate. Supporting this are recommendations from clergy and laity of his home parish. Ordination to the priesthood usually occurs six months to a year after the ordination to the diaconate.

Mrs. Anwandter To Speak Sunday

What a new concept of man can mean for a changing world will be brought out in a public lecture in Winchester this Sunday.

"The remarkable changes produced by advanced technology—computers, space travel, experimentation in genetics and unlimited possibilities in production—are heralding a new world, a new age for mankind," the lecturer will state.

Catherine H. Anwandter, C.S.B. of Santiago, Chile will speak in the Christian Science Church, 114 Church St., at 3:30 under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Johannes Spanjaard of 8 Dana Ave. will introduce the lecturer.

"Our urgent need," Mrs. Anwandter will say, "is to understand our great potentialities in order to face the coming changes in human life with fearless understanding and adaptability."

Active in the healing ministry of Christian Science for many years, she speaks four languages fluently. She has the distinction of being the first to teach Christian Science in the Spanish language.

"The Science of the New Man" is the subject of her local lecture which is open to the public without charge.

Mrs. Anwandter became a Christian Science teacher in 1961 and a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship in 1970. She became interested in Christian Science through a healing she experienced as a child. She will cite a number of examples of spiritual healings in her Winchester lecture.

Special Equipment Helped Stacey Gain Needed Pounds

Stacey Marie Davis

Stacey Marie Davis was no weight problem for the stork while he hovered over Winchester Hospital on Aug. 11. She only weighed 33½ oz. when she made her debut in the hospital's delivery room.

And, being a female, and weight conscious, over the next few days she proceeded to trim her weight down to a svelte 23 oz., to the apparent envy of her heavier companions in the nursery.

But her mother and father, her obstetrician and the maternity nurses all felt that they'd like to see her put on a little weight to round out her baby curves.

But, there was a problem. She was so young and so small that she had not yet developed the sucking instinct, an absolute requirement for all babies.

So her nurses employed the Gavage feeding method - a tube inserted through the mouth to the stomach - and fed her every three hours around the clock until she developed the sucking reflex - one month later.

And she had her own special sleeping quarters - an isolette that maintained a constant temperature and humidity and provided for oxygen if it were needed.

Her mattress was unique too. It had a special monitor that clicked every time she took a breath. If she forgot to breathe for as long as 20 seconds, a buzzer went off and a light went on to alert her nurses.

Once by ounce Stacey gained the needed weight until at the end of two months she tipped the scale at 4 lbs. 4 ozs.

Her doctor had decided he'd like to see her over the 5 lb. mark before letting her go home and on Oct. 24, three months and 13 days old, she gurgled with pleasure as the scale read 5 lbs. 6 ozs.

That was the day her mother and father took her home to Woburn.

By the time Christmas arrived she had fattened up to 11 lbs. Just big enough to enjoy the lights on her Christmas tree.

Survey

At the Jan. 8 meeting of the Committee for a Winchester Council on Aging, plans were made for a survey of Winchester's senior citizens to be conducted early in 1973. The object of the survey is to discover the needs and resources of Winchester's elderly population.

Members of the survey team include Mrs. Margaret Harrigan, Mrs. Ralph Hatch, Hilda Hope, Msgr. Joseph Lyons and Arthur Pratt. Winchester Jaycees under the direction of Dr. Richard Norberg are helping with the project.

Initially the survey, to be conducted by means of personal interviews, will sample 10 percent of the town's elderly population. Eventually all Winchester citizens over the age of 62 will be surveyed by the committee.

Youths Grab $25 In Holdup

A variety store on Cross street was robbed Tuesday night by an armed teenager and his companion, the fourth store robbery and the third armed holdup in Winchester in little over a month.

McDonald Variety Store at 105 Cross st. was the latest armed robbery scene. About $25 was taken by the youths who "were on something," according to proprietor Malcolm McDonald.

The small spa was entered at about 9 p.m. by the two youths, described by McDonald as a little over six feet tall and of light build, both white, one carrying a pistol with a long barrel.

McDonald, whose son, also Malcolm, was sitting in a room to the rear of the store watching television, said he was standing at the candy case arranging candy when one of the youths said:

"This is a stickup. This is a stickup." He ordered McDonald to the cash register and emptied the slot containing the money—mostly $5 bills. The robber didn't touch the $1 bills. There was no money of higher denomination. His son was unaware of the robbery. There were no customers in the store.

Shaken by the incident, McDonald, 69 years of age, said he was shocked by the incident. He didn't recognize his assailants, who he said, knocked him over at one point. He thought they fled on foot up dark Cross street.

$5-$6 Tax Increase Seen Possibility

An increase in the 1973 Winchester tax rate of $5 to $6 could be possible, Finance Committee Chairman Lawrence T. Smith told The Star this week.

"We're very close to getting some figures from (Town Comptroller) James Costello on projections on the rate," Smith said. "His main concern is reimbursements from the commonwealth."

How much the state will turn back to Winchester is a major question mark at this point.

Smith said the $5 to $6 increase would be the maximum hike on the town's $61 property tax rate, which is supposed to be 100 percent valuation.

"If there is enough favorable response from the things that are being investigated and applications of federal revenue sharing, we could bring it down a couple of dollars."

That would make the tax rate increase from $2 to $3.

"We can't be positive," Smith went on. "But if there are no more major surprises and the legislature doesn't change the formula on revenue sharing and if the town meeting supports the cuts the Finance Committee is making it might be possible to keep it in this area" ($2 to $3 increase).

Smith said his committee hasn't done enough work yet to predict an accurate rate hike, but said there will "be no major jump of $10 to $12 like many communities." He expects to have a formal announcement a week from Thursday.

Asked about drastic cuts in the Highway department budget, Smith said FinCom will meet with the Board of Selectmen Monday at 9 p.m. in an attempt to reconcile difference. Fire and police may also be discussed "so we can go into town meeting in a compromise situation."

FinCom will meet with the School Committee a week from today for the same purpose. Tentative action was taken on the school's budget of $10 million plus at Monday's FinCom meeting.

Smith said there were substantial enough cuts in the school budget to warrant a special reconciliation meeting. "If any cuts are unreasonable, we will reconsider them."

The chairman of FinCom also said that his committee wants to keep budget increases minimal during this transitional period when all Massachusetts communities enter a new 18-month budget system, beginning July of 1974.

Also to be discussed with the selectmen: a reduction in the snow and ice budget. Lack of snow this season has greatly reduced snow removal expenses.

If the 60 town budgets, FinCom has approved half. Many town department budgets are still waiting to be received.

Taxi Owners Angry Over Fare Issue

The president of a group of Winchester taxi company owners this week defended his organization's request for a 25-cent rate increase and said criticism of cab service has become "a political football."

Richard A. Terzian, president of the Winchester Taxi Owners' Association, representing five of the six town taxi companies, said he and the other owners feel several recent letters to the Board of Selectmen complaining of poor service may be the result of a "conspiracy" from others seeking taxi licenses.

Terzian said: "Everything's gone up. It's not fair for us to assume all the burden of cost increases." Anti-pollution devices on cars account for double gas consumption, he said, and new cars cost $200 more.

Winchester taxis have not had an increase in their basic rate of 75 cents for the first mile since 1968.

Asked if the companies could stay in business, he said, "It's a very bad situation. It costs us a lot of money to provide this service. The present rates are inadequate."

Terzian also said that no complaints about poor taxi service has been logged for a year, "then a few ridiculous complaints were made" when two other persons requested taxi licenses.

The selectmen, upset over a complaint that taxis are not meeting trains at night, refused to approve a 15-cent hike recommended by their executive secretary, Edward Donnelly.

Terzian feels the 15-cent hike is not enough because Winchester is a low taxi-use area. "Rates have to be based on need," he said. "Winchester Center is like a depressed area."

The selectmen are angry because they feel some who hold taxi licenses are not actively in business. Terzian said there is only one inactive license in town and there are no part-time owners.

"We do not want any more taxis on the road. There are already too many based on other cities and towns." He said reports that residents have to call out of town for taxis is inaccurate, that he and other companies are always available.

The board will write to all taxi owners in town to ask if their licenses are still active before making a decision on the rate increase request.

James T. Sullivan of 19 Ridgfield rd. requested the board to approve two taxi licenses. He said his new company would meet the demand for night service and would refuse no calls after 9 p.m.

Selectman John J. Sullivan said it's the policy of the board not to increase the number of licenses in order to "maintain the viability of the business." He said the number of licenses here compares with other towns and that if there were a surplus of licenses "we would end up with a lot of part-time people."

He also said the board is prepared to revoke the licenses of any cab that is not active.

The dog pound and dog van action came on approval of the dog officer's $25,000 18-month budget. Police Chief Edward F. Bowler said it would cost $4,500 to convert a building near the incinerator into a pound containing eight stalls for 16 dogs.

At a cost of $2 a day to the owners, the pound could pay for itself in two years.

Chief Bowler argued: "If the leash law is going to work, we're going to have to have a pound and a van." Though a referendum approved $5,100 for dog officer expenses, the town meeting had previously voted the money down. The selectmen, therefore, felt the meeting should have a chance to discuss the

Boys' Track

'How'd You Like To Be Beaten By A GIRL?'

By Susan Hagblom

Although the teasing runs to such comments as "all the useless members of the track team," the seven girls who participate in track at Winchester High School are generally satisfied with their status.

The girls, who join the daily after-school practice on an informal schedule, may compete against the boys on a junior varsity (jv) level for no points.

Three girls, Beverly Cade, Sandy Leonard and Janet Lovett, have each entered competition once. They are joined in the regimen of calisthenics and hallway sprints by Charlene Amico, Lydia DeSantis, Kate Griffin and Leslie Rae, as well as the male members of the team.

Attitudes toward their status in competition, reasons for running and feelings on testings themselves against boys are as varied among the seven as is their apparent unanimity concerning their position on the team and approval of WHS track team coach Thomas R. Kline.

While one feels that it would be easier to run against only other girls and that a school system takes a girl's running more seriously if she "has her own team," another vows that with time and attention girls could compete adequately against males.

A state headmaster's rule, Kline advises, stipulates that whenever a separate girls' team in a non-contact sport is not provided by a school system, girls may participate on the "boys' team." Once a person attains status, however, the girls note, the rules of competition "become equal for everyone." If she qualified, a girl could win a place at a meet.

When track started back in December approximately 15 girls attended. Speculation as to why the number dwindled down to seven runs from guesses that some found jobs, didn't like the teasing or decided that such exercises as running up and down a set of stairs 20 times was not particularly rewarding. And the girls have found that the myth that such work might slim down legs has been dispelled with the development of muscular calves and thighs.

Girls' sports teams draw such numbers as 30 each for varsity hockey, junior varsity hockey, basketball and gym in winter and 36 for softball and 24 for tennis, both in the spring.

Track will end on February 17 with the state finals. To the Winchester girls knowledge there is only one area town hosting a girls' track team, Stoneham. Persons can compete outside the Middlesex League, however.

So if a girl happens to be running against someone rather than for exercise, who's it? "I want to beat girls just as much as boys," "I would be nice to beat boys." "The only thing that matters is how good a person is on her own."

Taping

After all, the boys are taking some teasing, too. "How'd you like to be beaten by a GIRL?"

Wyman Pupils May Choose

Wyman sixth graders living in a section of Winchester described as Wildwood Corner will be allowed to attend Lynch Junior High School this fall. Under the original proposal distributing students to either Lynch or McCall, all Wyman pupils would have been assigned to McCall.

The change came about following a meeting between parents in this area and Superintendent of Schools William C. MacDonald. According to the proposal presented to the School Committee in December, the Ambrose, Noonan, Parkhurst and Vinson-Owen Elementary Schools would feed Lynch, while Lincoln, Muraco, Mystic, Washington and Wyman would supply students to McCall Junior High School.

Affected by this plan were Wyman students, since they had previously entered Lynch in the seventh grade. Parents of Wildwood Corner argued that students living there are approximately six-tenths of a mile from Lynch and a mile from McCall.

The streets composing Wildwood Corner are Wildwood, Woodside, part of Church, Cabot, Fletcher, Calumet, Lawrence, Copley, Warren, Ivy Circle, Harrison and Laurel streets.

MacDonald did not feel that there would be any other sections able to claim the same geographical advantage, though he admits it will be "inevitable that a few people will be unhappy." Several parents of Wyman students who were in the audience stated they had been unaware of this request for Wildwood corner, while the spokesman for parents submitting this alternative said that he knew of no "outright dissenters," but rather of those who were indifferent and would "go where the neighborhood went."

Lynch has a capacity of 596 students, while McCall will hold 800. Under the plan presented in December, 660 pupils would be at Lynch in September, 1973 and 777 at McCall, including students from St. Mary's School should that institution close. This academic year there are 713 at Lynch and 636 at McCall.

Projections show, MacDonald continued, that in the next few years the student population at Lynch will decline as it rises at McCall. Affected by the Wildwood Corner change are 26 children, so that under the plan approved Monday night, 686 students will

Hospital Growing, Wants More Space For Parking Cars

Winchester Hospital intends to expand its out-patient facilities and build a parking garage to handle the increase in automobile traffic.

These facts came to light this week after the announcement by the Board of Selectmen that they have scheduled a public hearing for Monday on Winchester Hospital's plans, as yet vague and unrevealed.

The hospital wants 200 more parking spaces for immediate use. Probable location would be on town-owned land on Highland avenue if the selectmen approve. An article may be inserted in the annual March town meeting for that purpose.

Hospital administrator Reese James told The Star there was no secrecy in the hospital's building expansion plans. Though he was quoted in the Nov. 2 issue of The Star as having said: "Our long-range plans do not provide for any future physical construction," he told a Star reporter Tuesday that the hospital definitely plans an addition to its out-patient department in the near future.

In conjunction with that, the hospital wants accessible parking facilities. The present parking lot on the left, facing the hospital from Highland avenue—would become the site of the future garage. It would be two floors and would be built this year.

During construction, there would be no alternative parking area. Thus the hospital request to the selectmen to use the town's Highland avenue land, several acres containing an old house and unused land.

Because the new out-patient facility would use some of the present parking area, the number of parking spaces within the hospital grounds would remain about the same, even with the new garage. The new building would increase parking demand.

The selectmen are on record as unfavorable to any hospital expansion request without neighborhood reaction. Since the hospital's plans still remain publicly unclear, the selectmen will wait until after Monday's hearing before making a decision.

Hospital administrator James was reluctant to discuss expansion, saying he had been misrepresented previously in The Star, but said: "We do anticipate some development of the hospital. We're not yet ready to discuss this. When we are we will furnish the paper with a written release."

Asked pointedly if the hospital plans any immediate physical plant expansion, he responded: "We are always trying to anticipate our future needs. We have to do something about off-street parking. The easiest and earliest approach would be to use the town-owned land" (on Highland avenue). He said the hospital is "continually going through the process" of planning for the future and adding that if plans fell enough

Possible Town May Drop Its Civil Defense System

A possibility the town may leave the civil defense system, partial action on the Noonan School safety problem and an optimistic prediction on the opening of a new pool in June were subjects discussed by the Board of Selectmen Monday.

Though Beeton is now prepared to abandon civil defense and the Winchester selectmen have been seriously considering such action recently, Town Counsel Leonard J. Mullen thinks the town might run into a legal problem over certain state requirements under civil defense.

Civil defense director John T. Blanchard recently resigned his unpaid post because he said it took too much time, prompting the selectmen to consider turning his duties over to someone else, abandoning the system or hiring a replacement.

The civil defense director is responsible for coordinating town emergency services in case of disaster. While civil defense keeps equipment like stretchers on hand, it has no regular day-to-day duties.

The selectmen feel civil defense responsibilities could be better run by a full-time town employee, perhaps the police or fire chief or one of their subordinates.

"There is not a single layman in town who could do the job as well as one of the chiefs," said Selectman John H. Sullivan. The fire and police chiefs are being asked for their recommendations.

The long-delayed solution to the Noonan School's request for a school traffic guard was partially resolved with approval of police safety officer's recommendations that no parking be permitted on one side of Canal street from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Not approved was a recommendation that Canal street be made one-way. A full review of the situation will be made in May.

Selectmen urged the Leonard Pool Study Subcommittee to push their architect to come up with figures on cost of construction of the new pool in time for the annual March town meeting so the pool could open by summer. The pool is being replaced because "the water level is decreasing every year," according to the study.

800 Postcards Picked Up On Revitalization

"Unqualified success" is how Nancy Dressler and Abraham Curewitz of the Winchester Business Association term the group's efforts to arouse citizen interest in revitalizing Winchester Center.

More than 800 of the 1,000 printed post cards calling on the Board of Selectmen to support re-zoning the business area have been picked up at several locations in the center. The cards have been available five weeks.

"The deterioration of the business district and the sick appearance of the town center are viewed with alarm by increasing numbers of citizens who must be concerned with property values and by high school students who feel their future is involved," said Mrs. Dressler and Curewitz in a statement.

Mrs. Dressler is owner of Topsy Turvy, Curewitz of Homestead Upholsterers.

"As an adjunct to the attention being focused on the center by the WBA, several other local organizations, such as the Environmental Protection Association, the

During World War I he served in the US Naval Reserve as an ensign at Great Lakes, Ill., and as a captain in the US Army for a three-year South Pacific tour of duty during World War II.

His business career comprised years in industrial real estate with the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company and with the Boston firm of James D. Henderson and Son. In more recent years Mr. Gendron served as treasurer of the C. F. Eddy Company in West Newton for 10 years prior to retirement in 1964.

He held over 50 year memberships in the Winchester Country Club and the Harvard Club of Boston. For many of the years since 1912 he had been a summer resident of Lords Hill, Effingham, N.H.

Funeral services were private. Burial was in Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

More Candidates Announce; 3rd Runs For School Board

A third candidate for School Committee, five more for assessor, one for Planning Board and another candidate for the Winchester Housing Authority were among those taking out papers for the March annual town election.

Today is the deadline for taking out papers.

Those who this week took out papers to obtain 50 signatures to make them eligible for candidacy are:

Assessor (one-year vacancy): Joseph J. Scottle of 25 Robinhood rd., Kenneth F. D'Arcy of 8 Plymouth rd. and Sherman R. Josephson of 41 Salisbury st. George L.

Ryerson Runs For Park Commission

William T. Ryerson of 10 Ardley rd. has announced his candidacy for the office of Park Commissioner.

Ryerson, a life-long resident, has had an active interest in town government for several years. He has served as a town meeting member from Precinct 5, having been elected three times.

He is a town constable, presently in his fourth elected term, and serves Precinct 6 as a town meeting member elected by the precinct members to represent his area in the newly re-aligned precinct.

The candidate is a professional photographer on the staff of New England's largest newspaper, has previously owned his own photography business, was staff photographer for The Winchester Star for 17 years and has been associated with The Woburn Daily Times.

The three Ryerson children, Karen, Nancy and Billy Jr., are the fifth generation of Ryersons to live in Winchester. Mrs. Ryerson, the former Beverly Smith, is a real estate broker with the firm of James T. Trefrey, Inc.

Ryerson looks forward to the March election and if elected he plans to "serve an active role in the directing of the maintenance and embellishment of our park lands and recreation areas" and hopes to develop expansion of services and further the beautification projects of town parks, ponds, school properties, beaches, rivers and sports areas.

Andersen previously took out papers for this post.

For assessor (one three-year vacancy), Werner A. Carlson and Ralph C. Powers have already announced.

Planning Board (one five-year vacancy): Joseph F. Geary, Jr. of 366 Cambridge st. Edward F. Haddad's post has expired. Chairman Otto F. Schaefer's seat does not expire until next year. There are no other candidates so far other than Geary.

School Committee (two three-year vacancies): Richard L. Pharo of 6 Ivy cir. Two other men previously announced: Stephen Parkhurst, the incumbent, and Vincent Galvin of 45 Calumet rd. Committeeman Lane McGovern is not running for reelection.

Winchester Housing Authority (one five-year vacancy): John R. Pasillo of 1 Parker rd. John L. Doherty, incumbent, previously announced.

Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational District School Representative (one four-year vacancy): Gerard P. Donahoe of 34 Glen rd. There is no other candidate so far.

Other uncontested offices so far are:

Town Meeting Moderator: Incumbent Raymond J. Kenney running for that one slot. Constable: Robert G. Heltz running for reelection.

Water-Sewer Board: Ernest J. Phillips Jr., incumbent, running for the three-year vacancy.

All legal residents, 18 years of age or older, are eligible for candidacy.

Moderator Kenney Announces Candidacy

Town Moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr. has announced his candidacy for re-election to that post.

Kenney is a graduate of Boston College and Boston College Law School and is an Army veteran. He lives with his wife, Claire, and four children, Marianne, 14, Raymond, 12, Stephen, 10, and John, 6, at 5 Salisbury st. Kenney is a former chairman of the Finance Committee and served as the town's representative on the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and as a town meeting member from Precincts 1 and 5.

He is a trial attorney, a partner in the firm of Martin, Magnuson, McCarthy and Kenney, with offices in Boston and is a member of the board of delegates of the Massachusetts Bar Association, an associate editor of the Massachusetts Law Quarterly and serves on several committees of the Bar Association.

In announcing his candidacy, Kenney observed that in these times "of conflict, confusion and controversy, it is imperative that we redouble our efforts to preserve perhaps the most basic form of self-government, the town meeting. However, this opportunity for the citizens to be heard will accomplish its purposes effectively only as long as we strive constantly to maintain its efficiency, particularly as our society and its needs grow more complex."

Kenney said he has undertaken efforts to reactivate precinct organizations as a means of disseminating information and continually will attempt "to ensure that the procedures at town meeting fulfill the needs of the meeting. All suggestions to that end will be welcomed at any time."

Jaycees Evaluate

The Winchester Chapter of Jaycees is currently evaluating the need of a townwide survey similar to the survey it conducted last year.

In March of 1972, the Winchester Jaycees completed a comprehensive survey of 5 percent of the households in Winchester compiling responses to questions submitted by the Board of Selectmen, Police Chief Edward F. Bowler, Fire Chief I. Francis Amico and the Jaycee Chapter.

Commenting on the reason for a pre-survey evaluation, Jaycee representative Ronald Milauskas said, "Since a survey of the town which involves a minimum 5 percent sampling requires an extensive commitment of manpower, the chapter wants assurance that the results compiled from the survey will be effectively utilized."

"Therefore, we are requesting any town or community organization that has defined needs of such a survey to notify us outlining their areas of special interest."

The Winchester Jaycees will provide all financial and manpower requirements of the survey if sufficient need for a survey can be demonstrated. Details of the extent and format of questions will be arranged following a decision to conduct the survey. Inquiries should be addressed to Winchester Jaycees, P.O. Box 284, Winchester.

The Winchester Jaycees, Milauskas noted, will conduct a specialized survey exclusively for the Winchester Council on Aging this year independent of the current evaluation of a general survey need.

Candidates' Night Set For Feb. 15

The local candidates' night has been scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 15, by the Winchester League of Women Voters. The meeting will be held in the new senior high school.

From 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. there will be town meeting member coffees in different sections of the cafeteria. This will give voters in each precinct a chance to meet and talk with candidates running for town meeting.

At 8:30 p.m. the auditorium will be open for the general candidates' meeting. Here all candidates for contested townwide offices will have an opportunity to present themselves and their views. There will be time allotted for questions from the audience. Edward Hicks will serve as moderator.

All voters may attend this meeting to get acquainted with the candidates and their positions on issues facing Winchester in the coming year.

Carlson Candidate For Assessors Bd.

Werner A. Carlson has announced his candidacy for the Board of Assessors.

In making his announcement, Carlson stressed the need to relieve the property owner of his huge tax bill. "Winchester homeowners are taxed too high for what they are receiving in benefits," he said.

As the "homeowners' candidate," Carlson will be discussing changes in assessing practices to help the homeowner.

Carlson was born in Winchester, attended the Winchester schools, after which he graduated from Northeastern University with a bachelor of science in business management, majoring in real estate.

He moved to a neighboring town where he was a town meeting member for eight years with a perfect attendance record. He also served as chairman of the Permanent Building Committee, Chairman of the Junior High Building Committee and served on the School Survey Committee.

Carlson has been a PTA treasurer and precinct chairman for the United Fund and received a certificate of merit in citizenship from the Jaycees.

He is a builder, real estate appraiser and has lectured at Northeastern University in appraising.

Carlson would like the opportunity "to use his qualifications and experience in education, business and government to serve as your assessor. If you would like to help elect Carlson as your assessor or should have any questions on assessing please call him."

League Plans Study Of State Judiciary

The League of Women Voters will continue its study of the state judiciary system in the next set of discussion units taking place Jan. 30 through Feb. 1.

Members of the study committee, headed by Mrs. Roger Baumann, will be present at each group meeting to give information about the Bail Reform Act of 1971, the provision of legal counsel for the poor and standards necessary for an effective probation system. Last year the league examined the structure, administration and financing of the courts as well as the selection and tenure of judges.

The meetings are scheduled as follows: Tuesday, 7:45 p.m. Hostess, Mr. Frederick Holahan, 3 Bacon st. Discussion leader, Mrs. Abraham Goldin.

Wednesday, 1 p.m. Hostess, Mrs. Robert Oppenheimer, 67 Thornberry rd. Discussion leader, Mrs. Theodore Wood.

Thursday, Feb. 1, 9:15 a.m. Hostess, Mrs. Winfield Knopf, 233 Main st. Discussion leader, Mrs. William Fallon.

Non-members interested in joining one of these discussion groups are asked to contact Mrs. Baumann, of 26 Everett ave.

Ungentlemanly Style Reason She Won't Run

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In recent weeks many people have asked me to run for the office of selectman and I appreciate their confidence and enthusiasm. It would be a privilege and honor to sit as your first woman selectman and fulfill the dream of two respected women of our town, Mrs. Elizabeth MacDonald and Mrs. Lorence Woodside.

The Star has stated my "unequivocal" stand not to run for this office and I believe this deserves some explanation.

The prerequisite for seeking election to the Board of Selectmen is a desire to serve the town in the manner which others, greater than I, have served. It would be necessary to have the respect and understanding of all other members of the board.

Mr. Dunbar and Mr. Giarizzo have not shown, during their terms, an inclination to conduct themselves in a courteous and gentlemanly manner. It is my opinion that they could not rise from their uncouth behaviour to a level of respect and equality that would be necessary to conduct the affairs of the town.

I believe the townspeople would not wish me to be subject to that personal humiliation. The retiring chairman, Mr. Amico, has not been too far behind. In a telephone conversation a few short months ago in response to certain observations and suggestions I made, as an interested citizen, Mr. Amico replied, "If you don't like the way we're running things you could run for the office."

When Mr. Amico first took office some of the major problems facing us were revitalization of the business center, traffic situations on Holton street and at the Cross street bridge, excessive costs of the incinerator operation, etc. These problems are yet to be resolved. The other above mentioned selectmen are, in my opinion, ill equipped to make any decisions.

In any contest, political or otherwise, we are told we must be good losers. By the same token should we not expect respectful winners? I feel I have been a good loser. I have continued to stand up and speak out on problems of concern to the citizens and taxpayers, both at town meeting and at various board and committee meetings.

In the pattern of election to the board I cannot envision any relief or return to better government at least in the next two years. Therefore I will not be a candidate for the office of selectman but will continue to encourage greater participation of the taxpayers through the town meeting.

The selectmen are careless and spendthrift as in the recently awarded salt contract. Selectmen accepted a bid of $15.40 per ton and rejected a bid of $14 per ton. Additional cost to taxpayers—$7,000. Above bid accepted with board's full knowledge that said bidder did not meet the specifications of the bid. When I spoke of this to the board I was greeted with silence and even the town counsel sat mute. Weeks later the same salt company made a deal with the City of Malden for a lesser amount of salt at $12 per ton, which would have been an additional $2 per ton or $10,000 saving to our taxpayers. We lost $17,000 because of the ineptness of our board and their unwillingness to accept my suggestion to reconsider.

By vote we, the town meeting, can cut these budgets and with proper amendments can restrict and limit allowable department expenditures.

I think the time has come for the town meeting to direct the Town Government Study Committee to bring forth a plan for total reorganization of the town and in view of the thousands of dollars already expended by this committee I would recommend no additional funds for consultants be appropriated.

Noting the happenings in the past year, only a few of which I have mentioned, I have concluded that my election to this board would be a total waste of my time and effort. I, no doubt, would spend most of that time speaking to that blank wall which, by the way, was supposed to be finished (artistically) to depict the town, three years ago.

Clara M. Hewis
91 Swanton st.

P.S. For an unbiased confirmation of the above statement I would refer your readers to the Jan. 10 issue of The Star, pg. 3: "Much Ado About Nothing..." The Star reporter observed a four-hour meeting of the Board of Selectmen where no final action was taken on anything, not even on the placing of a street light between two houses.

Swans Have Home; About Elephants...

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We recently visited the Stoneham Zoo for the first time. We felt such joy at seeing the beautiful birds and we were especially glad to discover that Winchester's black swans have a good winter home.

All of our enjoyment was shattered, however, when we stepped into the Elephant House. We were horrified by the state in which we found the poor elephant. We wish to protest as strongly as we can against the cruelty being done to this animal by caging him in such a manner that he cannot take two steps without running into a cement wall. How can he maintain his sanity and health under such circumstances?

With all the progress that has been made in preventing cruelty to animals, why must Stoneham persist in barbaric ways? If Stoneham cannot afford to house animals correctly, it should not house them at all. I strongly suggest and plead that you visit

Mrs. VerPlanck Says Town Should Hide Head In Shame

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was pleased that Mrs. Anne Southworth in her letter to the editor of The Star last week said, "We have some responsibility to stop pouring salt into our neighbors' drinking water." Amen. Not only is Winchester dumping salt on the Sucker Brook area but we propose to dump even more by constructing new roads for the Moss apartments unless they somehow choose not to salt at any time in the future the very hilly roads this area will necessitate. I have not read a proposal to this effect. Sucker Brook is a vital feeder brook to Horn Pond from where the City of Woburn gets its water.

Mrs. Southworth also stated that Woburn's water supply from Horn Pond has the second highest level of salt contamination for the surface water supplies in the state. If you add to the salt contamination the fertilizer runoff from the proposed lawns and the surely to be augmented dog and cat and people pollution plus the erosion all this great disturbance will cause, Winchester should hide its head in shame.

Woburn City Alderman Thomas Guthrie said at a Woburn Conservation Meeting at the Woburn City Council Chamber on Jan. 9 that he had pleaded before the Winchester Board of Appeals to no avail since he felt this added source of pollution was just too much.

Already the Woburn Golf and Ski Authority with their well fertilized lawns causes heavy concentrations of nitrates to turn the whole pond green (1971). Mr. William Ginevicz, Chairman of the Recreation Commission showed colored aerial slides of this. The city of Woburn again against the wishes of Supt. of Public Works, Albert Wall, dumps salt laden snow at two places along the side of Horn Pond. It is safe to say that with Winchester placing added strains to this terrible drinking water pollution, Woburn residents will have to move out just to survive.

There are many who weep over eutrophic Lake Erie. Why not weep over eutrophic Horn Pond? Have we already forgotten how Woburn had to close several wells in 1972? We are all too familiar with the effect of salt on our old people.

Nitrates added to water in concentrations of over 66 parts per million can kill infants. Is Winchester playing a subtle form of population control?

I shudder to think of the hue and cry Winchester would extend towards neighboring towns should their water supply be thus threatened, and yet we blithely go right ahead and do this to a whole city! I think the whole plan of building on our vital wetlands should be reviewed for the environmental impact caused to the detriment of so many.

Miracle Restored Eyesight Of Baptist Church Founder

Winchester Historical Society

The picture in The Winchester Star (Jan. 4) of the old Washington School on Cross street prompted all kinds of response from Winchester citizens. It has poignant memories for so many. This Cross street area was where the majority of Winchester's black population migrated to, primarily from Halifax County in Virginia after the Civil War.

The following information was received from Mrs. Jessie Anthony, 87 years old and recipient of birthday congratulations from President Nixon recently. I shall attempt to retell her fascinating life story and memories of the town as she fondly remembers them.

These distinctive factors in the life of Mrs. Anthony make her story unique: she was born blind, the 20th of 20 children in a family whose parents were slaves.

She was a founder of the New Hope Baptist Church in Winchester. She recalls that her paternal grandparents were herded on a slave ship in Africa. Her grandfather is believed to have been thrown overboard on the terrible voyage to Virginia. Her father was safely strapped to his mother's back, and miraculously the two survived this terrifying ordeal.

In Virginia her father assumed the name of Powell. Both of Mrs. Anthony's parents suffered disfigurements rendered by their masters to distinguish them as their rightful property. Her father had a great scar over one eye and her mother was minus a thumb.

Mrs. Anthony remembers that as she sat in her Virginia farmyard doorstep at three of four years of age a miracle blessed her young life. This she attributes to the goodness of God. A sound of chickens rustling somehow turned into fantastic, beautiful music. She had a feeling her eyes were being tenderly massaged. Incredibly she saw her mother for the first time and cried out in great joy, "I can see, I can see."

Her mother, unconvinced by this sudden event, made Jessie prove she could see by asking her what kind of a dress she was wearing. Jessie was able to trace the stripes. Testing her daughter further she asked Jessie what she was holding in her hand. Jessie rightly responded that she was holding a cup and was about to put it on a saucer, whereupon Jessie was hugged and tossed into the air again and again by her father, who had sped on his horse back to the barnyard at a gallop when he heard the news, in unbelieving joy. The whole countryside came from far and wide to witness this remarkable event.

From this experience, Jessie gained a profound faith in God, the scriptures and the great Negro spirituals, which were to play an important part in her life. In the 1890's her mother and father and remaining seven living children moved to Winchester, where her mother and sisters worked as maids and her brothers as coachmen.

When Jessie Powell came to Winchester, she recalls, there were only four Negro families. The Squires, tree cutters, had been the first family to come. They were followed by the Barksdales. (According to Dr. Harry L. Benson of 409 Main st., there were later about 50 black families in the area of Harvard and Irving streets.) Jessie Powell Anthony remembers that many of these black families came from Halifax County, Virginia. They brought with them to Winchester their religion. The women worked as maids; the men farmed or worked as coachmen, hostlers, and skimmers (in the tanneries).

The white Congregationalists and the Baptists were cordial to the growing black population and after a few years of meeting in both those churches the Negroes decided they wanted their own church. Winchester "Highlanders" decided they no longer needed the old Washington School building. Ceremonies following the remodeling of the school into the New Hope Baptist Church were attended by prominent members of the white population, who sprinkled $100 bills at the grand opening to help defray the costs. Jessie Powell Anthony was one of the founders of the church.

For forty years Rev. Smith stood out as the significant and longstanding minister to serve this church. Many student ministers served also. Mrs. Anthony became a leader of the spiritual singing and evangelistic work and still at 87 sings to reveal the emotional and deep significance this religious revival singing brought to her and her people. The New Hope Baptist Church at the apex of its use had over 200 members. Mrs. Anthony remembers the great generosity of the Parkhurst family in paying off the mortgage.

One of the highlights in Mrs. Anthony's life was "singing to the king." Ailing King George V of England went to Canada to visit at the resort home of his sister, Lady Carter. Mrs. Anthony recalls the king's great pleasure at renditions of the gospel songs. She sang for him several times.

Mrs. Anthony attended the Chapin School and then the Wadleigh here in Winchester. Discrimination must have caused her much discomfort, for she vividly remembers having a white classmate stand up to tell his teacher he thought blacks were dirty and immoral. The teacher granted Jessie a rebuttal. Jessie reminded her white classmates that the white man's stealing of the blacks from Africa was surely not moral and she told them of the then current news of a newborn white baby found floating in the Charles River.

"Was that clean or moral?" she asked. Because of her great distress caused by such attitudes she decided to attend Hampton College in the south rather than Winchester High School. At Hampton College things seemed so strange she ran away, back to Winchester, with a new husband.

She worked primarily as a maid and recalls her sister waiting upon John D. Rockefeller. At the time of her youth she believed Winchester to be the wealthiest town in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Anthony's husband was a brass cutter and died early in life as a result of inhaling brass cuttings. (Safety campaigns in factories were unheard of.) Their daughter and only child was the first black girl born in Winchester to graduate from Winchester High School. She graduated from Howard University and attended Boston University graduate school. Mrs. Anthony has a grandchild and three lovely great-grandchildren, the oldest of which has had open heart surgery. She is anxious to find a scholarship for this bright child. Mrs. Anthony moved very recently to Dorchester, where she lives in a home for the elderly.

BOOK REVIEW

by Ann M. Smith

I KNOW WHAT I WANT, BUT I CAN'T FIND IT

The card catalogs of any library are the connecting link between what you think you want, be it title, author or subject, and what the library actually owns.

At the Winchester Public Library the catalog is a divided catalog which means that there are two separate sections to it—one for authors and titles and the other for subjects. If you are looking for a specific book and you know either the author or the title, you would use the first of these catalogs to locate the book.

The author-title catalog is very straightforward. Authors and titles are interfiled alphabetically by word. In other words "Magic mountain: comes before Magical clown." Or as one library aide put it: Nothing before something. There are only a few tricks for using this file.

First, remember that the word used as the name of a person precedes the word used in a title. Therefore "Smith, Ann" comes before "The Smith and the Shoemaker." Disregard A, AN, and THE when they are the first words of the title. Spell out abbreviations and numerals. M', Mc and Mac are all alphabetized as if spelled Mac. If in doubt, ask for help.

The subject catalog, on the other hand, is more complicated. The headings which are used do conform to a pattern, but they may not always correspond to the terminology you are using in considering your topic. In general try the most specific word that describes your subject first.

If you are interested in bridges go directly to "Bridges," not "Civil Engineering." Single nouns are the preferred form of entry. The singular form is used to denote the general aspects of the subject (Painting: the art) while the plural refers to specific aspects of it (Paintings: the objects). A few subject headings may seem strange at first and take a little getting used to. "Cookery" is a good example. It is the general subject entry for cook-books.

History books appear in many different places. Subjects may be subdivided with the word history as in "Art-History." Periods in history which are not restricted to any given geographical area may be listed under history. History, Ancient; History, Modern. However, there are exceptions as in "Middle Ages-History." The history of a country or other geographical area will follow the general entries for that subject. History subdivisions are listed chronologically and not alphabetically. The Civil War comes after the Revolutionary War under "United States-History."

The master lists of subject headings have evolved throughout library history and they often seem cumbersome when viewed from a late 20th century perspective. However, we do continue to live with somewhat out-moded expressions and terms. An outstanding example of this type of problem is presented by the two world wars. World War I is listed in the subject catalog under "European War, 1914-1918." World War II, however, is under "World War, 1939-1945."

Occasionally it is necessary to use more than one word for a subject. When adjectives are combined with nouns the regular word order is preferred, but it may be inverted in an attempt to keep related subjects together. For example, "American literature," "American drama," "American poetry" are used, but "Authors, American," and "Authors, French" are also used.

A trick for finding the proper subject heading is to examine the author card for a book you have already found on the same subject. At the bottom of the card are tracings designed to tell librarians where other copies of that card are filed. By using the subjects listed you will probably be able to find other books of similar subject content.

If you still cannot find a subject, try the next broader subject. If this library has nothing on oranges, try "Citrus fruit." If you are looking for books about an author or about a book, use the subject catalog and look under the name of the author. Biographies are listed in the subject catalog under the name of the person that the book is about.

These are but a few facts and hints that may help you to find what you are looking for at the Winchester Public Library. If you have trouble, ask for help at the Reference desk—just beyond the doors in the Reading Room.

HOUSEBREAK

The Winchester Police Department was awarded two grants from the Massachusetts Committee on Law Enforcement totaling $39,000. Since October of 1970 study and implementation phases of the project, "Comprehensive Attacks on Burglary," have been progressing within the town. In connection with this heightened focus on burglary, the Department will present "Housebreak," a column suggesting ways in which Winchester residents may assist these efforts against crime, in weeks to come through The Star. Look for it.....follow it.....it's for you.

Record the Police Department's telephone number, even if you know it. You, a family member or friend may draw a memory blank in an emergency. Suckers are available free at the station, planning and safety office, courtesy of the Winchester Jaycees and Jayceettes.

Other stickers "warning" burglars that your house is protected through the Homeowners' Engraving Identification Program are also obtainable at the station.

Town's Lottery Money

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was very happy to read that Winchester is to be the recipient of a windfall of $50,180.32 from the state lottery apportionment.

I'm certain that there are many pressing areas where this money can be utilized, and I want to recommend that part of the funds be set aside for the purchase of books for the High School library.

Mr. LaRocco has estimated that $13,000 would be needed to bring the library up to the high standard he feels it deserves. Anyone visiting the High School would be shocked to see the bare shelves in the library.

I feel this is an excellent opportunity to accomplish this necessary purchase without adding an additional burden to the already burdened taxpayers of Winchester.

Mrs. Richard (Barbara) Marks
26 Rangeley rd.

describing the harmless yet completely effective product they use. We tried some ourselves and just one application, costing only a few cents, has been completely effective for over five years!

When we learned that Winchester was planning on poisoning birds at the railroad overpasses, I sent all the information from London to them, along with other articles which proved scientifically that pigeons were not a health menace.

I tried to persuade them to use the effective, harmless and inexpensive products used in London but I didn't even get the courtesy of a reply.

The overpasses should be thoroughly cleaned of this malicious poison and a harmless repellent used for the safety and health of us all.

Samoiloff Announces
Library Candidacy

Dudley D. B. Samoiloff of 3 Grove st. has taken out nomination papers for the Public Library Board of Trustees.

He was appointed by the trustees in June to fill the unexpired term of a trustee who resigned. He was elected secretary of the Board of Trustees in June, 1972, and has served in that capacity since.

A US Army veteran and a Tufts University graduate, Samoiloff entered the publishing business in 1960 and is presently with Little, Brown and Company of Boston.

Born and brought up in Winchester and a graduate of Winchester High School, he lived in Seattle, Wash., Connecticut and Michigan before returning to Winchester three years ago. He is married to Cynthia Lawson Samoiloff of New Britain, Conn., and has four children, three of which are in Mystic School.

Samoiloff believes his service since June as a trustee demonstrates his "capability to perform the duties of trustee well and responsibly." He notes that the library is "a credit to the town and that its staff serves the town ably."

The candidate intends to "represent the taxpayers forcefully in achieving the best library service for all the townspeople."

Stephen Parkhurst
Runs For Reelection

The following is the statement of candidacy issued by Stephen Parkhurst, seeking reelection to the School Committee:

The present School Committee has accomplished much during the last three years. The problem of the superintendency has been resolved, our building plans have been finalized and advances have been made in our entire educational program.

"Although much has been done, there remains more to do such as conversion of the 18-month budget and opening the renovated junior high and McCall elementary schools. And perhaps most important, we need to retain the confidence of the townspeople that the School Committee is providing a sound educational program and spending its tax dollars wisely.

"I am looking forward to continued service to the town in order to attain these objectives."

Galvin Runs For School Committee

Vincent Galvin of 45 Calumet rd., a resident of Winchester for 18 years and father of five children, four of school age, has taken out nomination papers for School Committee.

He issued the following statement: Galvin is a practicing attorney in Boston and is a graduate of Boston University, College of Business Administration, receiving a bachelor of science in business administration in 1951; and Boston University School of Law, receiving an LL.B. in 1953.

In addition, Galvin has attended Boston College Law School and Suffolk Law School post-graduate courses. He has served as volunteer counsel for the Somerville Catholic Charitable Bureau and is a former member of the Lowell Technological Institute Building Authority. Galvin is presently Chairman of Special Gifts, 1973 Heart Fund.

He was formerly an assistant to Congressman F. Bradford Morse and was a candidate for the Republican Nomination for Congress of the Seventh Congressional District this past summer.

Galvin has taken out nomination papers for the office of School Committee because he believes that the schools should not be used as an instrument for restructuring society, but rather the schools should be used to educate youngsters to prepare them for their participation in society upon their graduation.

He believes that the local school committee should have as its sole source of power and persuasion the parents of the students in the local community and should not assume the position of a satellite of the state Board of Education.

Galvin stated: "Money alone cannot buy an education and, if I am elected to the School Committee, I will not be looking for ways in which to spend money for education, but rather for ways to improve the education of our youth."

IT PAYS TO REHABILITATE.

It pays to rehabilitate the handicapped and disadvantaged. For every dollar spent on rehabilitation, at Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries, $35 is returned to the community in tax dollars. Rather than take money for welfare and V.A. benefits off tax rolls, the worker employed at Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries returns over a thousand dollars to the community in taxes and goods purchased.

Poison Kills Pigeons

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We have become thoroughly revolted and disgusted with having to watch the beautiful pigeons who live on this house die in agony in our yard from the poison they pick up at the railroad overpasses in town.

Four have died this way since summer, and their death is cruel beyond belief.

Although they live here, there is no way to prevent them from flying elsewhere during the day. Just a short visit to the overpass is all it takes for any bird to pick up this devilish stuff on its feet and bleed to death internally as a result.

Three of our pigeons were rescued from near death several years ago—one from an unknown illness, one with an infected wing seen wandering, unable to fly, in and out of stores on West st., Boston, and one bowled over by a speeding car on Cambridge.

Dr. Margaret Petrak, the world-famous bird expert at Angell Memorial Hospital, Boston, treated the latter two (the stories of our efforts to get in there with the birds would fill a comical book), and the one with the badly broken wing was the recipient of her rarest surgical skill—really unbelievable work.

Following her care, we devoted a whole summer to caring for each of these birds.

We didn't band any of them, so I don't know which one it was that was discovered, fatally ill, by one of our dogs, last week, but I have an awful feeling that it was the one Dr. Petrak spent so much of her talent on several years ago judging from the way it held its wing—only slightly higher than the other.

To see this lovely clean bird, whom we brought in to the house on the doctor's advice after emergency medical care try dazedly to eat, go into convulsions, then die, with blood pouring from its beak, came as a terrible sight for my family and me.

Who can say whether a hungry dog or cat or some other animal, or even carnivorous birds like hawks and crows, won't catch one of these helpless dying birds and eat it? They don't die right at the overpass, but go home to die, wherever that may be.

A recent writer to The Star wondered about the lack of bluejays this year. We have wondered just how many birds have alighted on these poisoned areas over the past few years, only to die. Maybe that's what has happened to the bluejays. Who knows?

Several years ago when the city of Boston mistakenly decided to poison thousands of harmless pigeons, I wrote to the British Ministry of Public Buildings and Works, in London, for information about the pigeon repellent they use on the magnificent buildings there, buildings which are far more important than our ugly overpass. I might add.

In two weeks, I received a letter

Miss O'Connell, R. H. Donohue Are Married In Nuptial Mass

On Saturday, Dec. 30, at noon at Goddard Chapel, Tufts University, Consuelo Maria O'Connell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. O'Connell of 5 Onelda rd., became the bride of Richard Hayden Donohue, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Donohue of 28 Lloyd st.

The Rev. Austin Nagle, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Weymouth, celebrated the nuptial mass and the bride's cousins, Lawrence Nagle and James Nagle, both of Framingham, served as altar boys. A reception followed at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

father, wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin fashioned with long sleeves, a yoke of Brussels lace and a full skirt which flowed into a cathedral-length train. A satin pillbox was worn beneath an heirloom Brussels lace veil which fell below her waist. Her bouquet was made up of white sweetheart roses and carnations.

Maid of honor was Martha Nowell of Winchester. Kathleen Donohue of Winchester, sister of the bridegroom, served as a bridesmaid and Catherine Nagle and Barbara Nagle, both of Framingham, cousins of the bride, were flower girls.

The attendants wore old-fashioned type gowns and carried Victorian bouquets of pale pink and white roses and carnations. The maid of honor selected a burgundy velvet gown with an ivory satin ruffle bordering the neckline. The bridesmaid's pink A-line gown had a high neck and full-length sleeves. The flower girls were attired in emerald green velvet gowns which had high necklines bordered with ivory lace.

The bridegroom's brother, John Donohue of Winchester, had the honor of serving as best man. Lawrence G. O'Connell, brother of the bride, David Donohue, brother of the bridegroom, Frank Grabiec and E. Neal Benshimol, all of Winchester, served as ushers.

The mother of the bride chose a turquoise gown of silk chiffon with sequined bodice and long sleeves. For her selection, the bridegroom's mother wore a pale green gown with lace bodice and long sleeves.

The bride is a graduate of Nazareth Academy and is a student in the nursing program at Atlantic Union College. Mr. Donohue is a student at Northeastern University.

The couple are making their home in Clinton.

'Little Sweep' For 3rd To 6th Graders

"The Little Sweep," a children's opera by Benjamin Britten, will be performed in Winchester on Feb. 6 at 1:30 p.m. in McCall Auditorium. Newton Wayland, director, composer for television's "Zoom," pianist with the Boston Symphony and Rockefeller artist-in-residence, has adapted "The Little Sweep" with particular attention given to children in grades three through six. The opera appeals to all school-age children, however, and all Winchester children are welcome to attend the performance, to be given on an early release afternoon.

The performance will include participation by the audience from their seats in the form of a Greek Chorus, and will represent a joint effort from the public school music teachers who have taught the children the music.

Winchester is hosting Adventures in Music for the first time.

"The Little Sweep" deals with a small boy's attempts to escape from two mean chimney sweeps in 19th-century England. It will represent the combined talent of David Bartholomew, opera director for the Boston Conservatory, the St. Paul's Choir School, mezzo soprano Jan Curtis, young student Edward Kelley and members of the Boston Conservatory.

Tickets will be given out on Jan. 31 through the schools. Other tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Andrew Nichols.

Candlelight Service Held For Miss Murphy, Mr. Occhinto Jr.

Jo-Ann Louise Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Murphy of Stoneham, became the bride of Peter Francis Occhinto Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter F. Occhinto of 8 Alden lane, on Saturday, Jan. 6, at St. James Methodist Church in Stoneham.

The Rev. Bruce Berry officiated at the double ring ceremony by candlelight held at 6:30 in the evening. A reception followed the ceremony at Marconi Hall in Stoneham, where the happy couple greeted friends and relatives, some of whom came from Maine, Rhode Island and Arizona.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a high necked empire-style gown with A-line skirt, bishop sleeves and detachable chapel-length train of peau-de-soie appliqued with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her shoulder-length illusion veil was attached to a crown of Alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of lacy poms and red roses.

Dorothy Galipeau, her maid of honor, and Theresa Harmon, her bridesmaid, both of Stoneham, wore identical gowns of red velvet trimmed in white and hats of white fur. They carried bouquets of red roses surrounded by holly and held with green velvet ribbons.

Dominic Addario Jr. of Woburn was best man for his cousin, S-Sgt. Joseph Eshleman of Tucson, Ariz., brother-in-law of the bride, served as usher.

The bride's mother wore a gown of brown velvet with chiffon sleeves, gold accessories and a beige cymbidium corsage. The bridegroom's mother selected a blue chiffon gown, silver accessories and pink cymbidium corsage.

Mrs. Jane Eshleman of Tucson, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book.

Mr. Occhinto is a graduate of Winchester High School, class of 1967, and is employed at Cablevision in Malden. His bride was graduated from Stoneham High School in 1970.

'Outstanding' Award To Ambrose Teacher

Mrs. Margaret Matson, first grade teacher at the Ambrose Elementary School, has been selected an outstanding elementary school teacher of America for 1972, according to Robert G. Forest, principal of the Ambrose School.

Nominated by the school principal, Mrs. Matson was selected for this national honor on the basis of her professional and civic achievements.

Outstanding elementary teachers of America is an annual program honoring the men and women who have distinguished themselves by their service and leadership in the field of elementary education. Each year, the biographies of those honored are featured in an awards volume.

Guidelines for selection include a teacher's talents in the classroom, civic service and professional recognition.

Mrs. Matson has been a teacher at the Ambrose School since it opened three years ago. She taught in other Winchester elementary schools. She lives with her husband and family in Woburn.

Selection

Organizing the books on cart she wheels around Winchester Hospital as part of the Public Library's program to reach patients is Mrs. Katrine Laban.

Hospital Stay Can Lead To An Interest In Reading

By Ann Landau

This is another in a series of articles on the many programs of Winchester Public Library.

"Would you like a book?"

"Oh, yes! What do you have?"

This exchange is often heard as Mrs. Katrine Laban of the Winchester Public Library wheels a cart of library books into the rooms of Winchester Hospital patients each Monday morning.

The service, originated in 1940 by Corinne Meade, then head of the Public Library, brings current books and personal reader advisory service to bedridden patients.

For many years the EnKa Society has contributed funds for book purchases. With rising costs the society's contribution today is about half what is spent each year. The Public Library supplies the additional funds and Mrs. Laban handles the selection and processing of the books.

While the books remain in the hospital, they are the property of the Public Library and, conveniently, may be returned at the main library downtown by the patient or his family.

"Word of mouth is most effective in getting people to read here," says Mrs. Laban. Nurses and the EnKa volunteers who take the book cart to rooms on Wednesdays often stimulate patients to read. Patients who are readers welcome the chance to keep up with the new books. Those who are not regular readers often surprise themselves and others with an interest in books while at the hospital.

Mrs. Laban recalls one such instance. "Once there was a foreign-born patient here, a woman, who said she had not read a book since school days. I gave her a well-written story for young people with a World War II background. Her family was so surprised when she read the book and she herself was delighted."

Mysteries and Gothic novels are high on the popularity list, but oddly, so is the "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" and other "heavy" books. Mrs. Laban guesses a long hospital stay can be the chance to read those books one always puts off. Animal stories such as a series about Siamese cats and the Joy Adamson books about lions also circulate constantly.

"It's important to know the books. You can sell a book if you know its contents," Mrs. Laban states. On a typical Monday tour, she suggested to a mystery fan a book about a middle-aged housewife spy for the CIA and a Gothic novel with a special twist to another.

Both Mrs. Laban and many of the staff are firm believers in the therapeutic value of reading for patients. Mrs. Laban also feels the hospital staff needs the book service. It is used regularly by doctors and nurses, especially those who have long stretches of night duty. Favorite topics among the doctors include psychic experiences, extra-sensory perception and unidentified flying objects while serious books on medical practice such as those by Dr. William Nolan are popular with nurses.

Special requests for books will be filled by Mrs. Laban. She recalls bringing citizenship materials for a staff member, for another studying for advancement exams she supplied medical books.

"I had a hard time keeping up with one of the heart patients. She read eight to 10 mysteries a week and I could hardly keep her supplied," Mrs. Laban relates.

The book service is available for all adults in the hospital. According to Mrs. Laban, the children's wing is well supplied with gift books.

Winchester Hospital assistant administrator Jack Hunter cooperates with the Public Library on book storage facilities at the hospital. He has recently installed attractive book return bins and has on order book shelves for the patient lounge on the second floor.

One of the book carts is placed near the elevator on the third floor where ambulatory patients sit in comfortable chairs. Patients just sign their names for a book and there is no time limit. The first and fourth floors each have a book cart at the end of the hall.

Mrs. Laban, in addition to taking books to the rooms on Mondays, uses part of her time to add a fresh supply of books to all the carts and straighten the shelves. A simplified shelving system is used with M for mystery and MS, not for liberated women but mystery-spy tales. SF for science fiction and NF for non-fiction.

Approximately 1,000 volumes are in the Public Library collection at the hospital at a given moment. About 500 books are purchased annually, Mrs. Laban states.

Book loss is not apparently higher than for regular public library circulation although Mrs. Laban finds it wiser not to stock large picture books or Ogden Nash. "It's a funny thing. Ogden Nash disappears every time," she says.

issue and recommended the budget—including money for van ($1,600) and pound—be approved for town meeting action.

The budget also includes $300 for a tranquilizer gun and $750 for a two-way radio. Dog Officer Domenic Molea said, "Eventually we may need a part-time man"—to watch the pound. "We have to play it by ear."

In other business, the board set Jan. 29 to meet with the Cemetery Commission to fill a vacancy on that board. John W. Lane 3rd has requested he be appointed. No other requests have been received. Sullivan requested persons interested in filling the seat, which expires in March, to notify the selectmen.

A police report recommended restricting parking on streets in the area of the new USA rink off Cross street. The board went along with no parking Dec. to Feb. on one side of Pine Grove Park and Highland avenue.

They voted against restricting parking on both sides of Cross street from River street to Adams road.

A request for renewal of a license from Lafayette Motors, 1026 Main st., to sell second hand cars was approved. The attorney for owners John L. Drugash and V. Michael Bradley submitted a document maintaining his clients do not have dealer plates, have not sold vehicles from any location other than 1026 Main st. and are still in business.

It was voted by the selectmen that when the license comes up for renewal next year that the Police and Fire Departments "advise of any hazard which might cause the board to deny the renewal."

enter Lynch in the fall and 751 will start at McCall. According to projections and this change there will be a student enrollment of 600 at Lynch by 1976 and 788 at McCall.

Staffing is not expected to be a problem, MacDonald reasons, since the 26 students represent approximately one class. Therefore, instead of the two teachers originally to be transferred from Lynch to McCall, there will be only one removed.

School Committeemen also tackled the problem of sending children to the new McCall kindergarten-through-grade six school, which will occupy the former high school building. Further research will be done by MacDonald involving Noonan and Wyman students who might feed McCall elementary. The results will be presented at the next meeting.

Questions arose over the three schools which will be supplying parts of the McCall elementary population. Mystic is expected to give 118, Wyman 48 and Noonan 26. Principals at these schools had been asked to nominate the streets from which students would be transferred.

Committeemen were specifically concerned about the 11 Symmes rd. children who would have to walk past Mystic to McCall each day and about those living on Salem and Clark sts.

Also deferred by the committee for investigation was a response to the Board of Selectmen on town-owned properties, the subject of an article in the 1973 annual town meeting warrant. Assistant Superintendent for administrative affairs William F. Clark reiterated that two of the properties mentioned, 14 Reservoir st. and 484 Washington sts. do not belong to the School Department.

Some Children To Be Needed

The Winchester school system will comply with a 1967 state statute which requires immunization against measles for all children attending public schools. The penalty for being susceptible to this disease is exclusion from school.

Reporting on the communication received from the state Board of Education Department of and Public Health in December, director of pupil services W. Howard Niblock said the state is mandating compliance this winter for all local schools except the high school.

As of Monday night's School Committee meeting it was not known how many Winchester children had not been immunized, though one school's records alone presently show 117 in this position. Also unknown was the number of cases of measles existing in the school system.

In question Monday night was the method of enforcement and the date of compliance. Administrators will be working toward March 5, or an alternate of a week after an immunization clinic after March 5 can be held in this town. Following this time students will be excluded from classes if they have not been immunized or can not show accepted evidence of being immune to measles.

What will be taken by the state as proof that a child is immune to this communicable disease is also unknown. Whether the word of a parent that a child has had measles will be acceptable, or whether a doctor's certificate will be required will be Niblock's inquiry to the state.

The vagueness of a mandatory date was based upon the question of what is a reasonable amount of time in which to expect parents to be able to comply with immunization or locate records.

Residents Lauded For Calls Through Burglary Program

"Help Us Help You!" has been the motto of the Winchester Police Department's burglary prevention program. Weekly tips are given through the medium of the local press, by direct mailing, handouts, lectures and demonstrations and every other method that will arouse the public's participation.

"It has begun to pay off," states Lieutenant Andrew Crawford, director of the department's federally funded burglary project. In the past three weeks four housebreaks have been solved and six persons arrested by the police aided by calls from householders.

Observant citizens noting the presence of suspicious persons or vehicles in their neighborhoods have dialed the police number - 729-1212 - and alerted officers who quickly apprehended the culprits, he notes.

Lt. Crawford speaks highly of the public service rendered by the callers, and of the co-operation received from the local press.

WHS Curriculum Will See Changes

At a recent meeting of the Winchester School Committee discussion was given to changes in the high school curriculum for the coming academic year. The three major changes involve social studies, reinstatement of a power mechanics course and offering of a "highly individualized" chemistry course.

Alterations in the mid-year exam schedule at this institution will mean the shortening of the exam period to three half-days. The morning will be made of two long periods either for exams or for such courses as physical education, shop which will conduct classes rather than exams. The third period will be used for lunch, while 4, 5, and 6 will be held as regular.

In reporting on the initial days of the elementary school lunch program, Supt. MacDonald stated that its operation to this point "is far from perfect, but much better than I expected." The administration will react to requests for changes in the program the problem voiced most often at this point being a need for supervision.

An interim report on the Rules and Regulations Policy Book revision was given by Committee member Mrs. Harriet Dieterich. Meeting almost every week the committee working on this project has reviewed the content of the policy book. Following editing and a look at which non-existing policies might be desired, the committee will be ready for the final stages before approval.

Harriet Nelson, home economics coordinator for 7-12, presented her case for the offering of a child development course in 1973-1974. Following her statement Mrs. Mary Mears, chairman of the Committee, said that "the idea is great, but I don't know if it's feasible" regarding financial restrictions. The purpose of the proposed course is to aid education students and to promote better parents. The first part covers broad information, while part two of the course deals with practical experience with children, centering on nutrition. An estimated two-fifths of a teacher would be needed.

Miss Nelson also announced that Sue Parkhurst, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Parkhurst of 5 Hawthorne rd., had recently won a wool fashion and tailoring contest among 50 contestants with a suit made in tailoring class. She will now enter the competition in Washington, D.C., and travel to New York City to meet 10 top designers.

Andy Twomey of the Student Advisory Committee took this opportunity to inform members that the student group had filed a law in the State legislature asking that it be left to the discretion of individual school committees as to whether sports participants may be excused from regularly scheduled gym classes.

A letter was also presented to Committee members from the executive board of the McCall parents association requesting more staff at this location. Supt. MacDonald informed his audience that seven and three-fifths teachers had been budgeted for McCall, a number which is expected to take care of any St. Mary's students. This does not include the two teachers from Lynch who will be transferred with 50 Lynch students to McCall.

The resignation of Judith A. Hession as of March 1, 1973 or sooner was accepted. Miss Hession, who will be living abroad, is an English teacher at WHS.

Committee members reviewed a letter from the Board of Selectmen regarding the provision of an environmental education aide for the school system. It was not believed to be financially feasible, though the committee agreed to investigate the possibility of federal funds for the position.

Chemistry Grading Meeting Scheduled

Vincent E. Larocco, principal of Winchester High School, said this week that an informational meeting on new grading procedures for the self-paced chemistry course at the school will be Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the science lecture hall on the third floor of the school. All parents and interested townspeople are invited.

Francis X. Flinigan, director of science of the Winchester schools, said the meeting is to make parents aware of changes in the grading system. "In our efforts to adapt our programs to offer science students the finest possible education we have developed this year a self-paced independent study multi-level chemistry course at the high school," he said.

When the students elected chemistry last year, they did so with an understanding that it was a college preparatory course, he explained. As the year progresses, and in line with the philosophy of the program, "we see the further necessity of adopting a grading system that clearly spells out to the student and to the colleges the level of achievement in relation to the ability and interest of the student."

Property Taken In Local Breaks

Investigation of breaking and enterings at local residences and businesses continues to occupy the time of Winchester police.

A camera, lens, and unknown quantity of silver dollars were the choice of the intruder (s) at the residence of the Clifford M. Hamel's, 40 Westland ave. According to the report of Officer Richard W. Fisher for last Tuesday, entrance had been gained by forcing a side door. Ransacking took place upstairs.

On Sunday an entry at 6 Central st., the home of the Michael Koplow's, was discovered. Officer John R. Oliver was informed of the disappearance of a coin collection and piggy bank.

After entering Winchester Roofing, 27 Shore rd. by breaking a front door glass, the intruder(s) attempted to gain access to the Winchester Ambulance Service, 25 Shore rd. There was nothing reported missing to Officer Charles T. Culhane on that Monday.

At 26 Cabot st., the home of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Hersey, the bedrooms were apparently ransacked and a woman's gold watch taken. The shattered glass on the rear door was discovered Monday.

A small amount of meat and cheese was said to be stolen from Nemo's Market, 32 Swanton st. after a wood framed door was pried open. Investigating Tuesday morning were Officers John H. Morgan and Andrew Saroco.

Entering attempts were also reported at the Unitarian Church and Fife and Drum Donut Pantry, 295 Washington st.

Police were also informed of several larcenies from motor vehicles, including a pocketbook with about $3, license and registration on George rd., purse containing approximately $32 and five credit cards on Central Green (later found with cards only), and a tape deck and two speakers on Aberjona dr.

Vandalism

Reports of vandalism during the recent week to local police include five BB holes in the front window of Winchester Jewelers, 35 Thompson st. and broken glass in a rear window of a car parked on Swanton st. and in a van truck as it was being operated on Main st. A precinct box was also found on the ground on Waterfield rd.

Winton Club Enters Final Rehearsals

By Suzanne Armstrong

In this final rehearsal week of "What's Happening?" members of the cast are practicing dance steps and coordinating exits and entrances mornings and evenings at Winchester Town Hall. Notwithstanding the London flu, exams in colleges and the coming junior prom, everyone seems to be in their place at the right time.

This year's show opens with bright splashes of action from all corners of Town Hall. The opening scene winds up with Vincent Carr playing the part of the stage manager, casting numbers and starting rehearsals.

Carr has appeared in previous Winton Club shows in almost every type of role. He has ogled dance hall girls, donned disks to basso profundo "Asleep in the Deep" and in 1972 was the shady preacher leading the Sallies and their tambourines.

He is always a professional in his approach to any part. His enthusiasm and sincere humor make him a welcome addition to any theatre production. A special note: he commutes from North Andover.

Other showtime commuters are Dianne E. Glines, soloist, from Arlington; soloist "Buttons" vonRosenvinge, Wellesley; Jan and Chuck Cooper and Fred Lee of Andover; Dianne and Ed Carter of Harvard. The three out-of-town elementary principals—George Flynn, Washington School; Andy Allan, Parkhurst; and Robert Forest, Ambrose—are also commuting. Mardi Broadhurst and Jack Gannon, both formerly of Winchester, are also commuting. Jane Olivadotti, formerly of Winchester, now of Essex, is leaving DJ's Docksides show nights to be in "What's Happening?" She has the best backup stage crew anyone could ask for. Early morning rehearsals are scheduled for the Winton Club Drill which traditionally closes the first act.

Around 10:30 the provocative Raquel Welch type chorus of roller skaters takes over. The members of this scene not only stand up in buckle-on-skates, but execute a complete dance routine.

Innovations are scattered through this year's show—a blackout butterfly ballet, a kick line that will surprise everyone, including the kickers' husbands. The principals, coping with the new lunches in school, muddy playgrounds, lost lunch boxes, and show business, not only dance, but sing up a storm.

The Winton Club Cabaret is a community effort, proud of what it accomplishes for the community and its hospital. The show runs Tuesday, Jan. 30, through Feb. 3. There is parking at the lot across from Town Hall. Reservations for tickets may be made in advance. Tickets will also be available each night at the door.

I doesn't matter if you can't sing. Just remember the slogan "Come to the Cabaret!" and find out "What's Happening?"

Lynch Auction Is On March 23

The Lynch Junior High School Auction will be held on Friday evening, March 23, in the Lynch auditorium.

Any contributions of furniture, glassware, books, antiques, and other household items will be received.

Walter Czary has consented to be auctioneer again this year. The proceeds of this year's auction will be towards establishing a comfortable library reading area for the school.

Better Services For The Elderly Is Series Theme

Three Winchester residents will be speakers at two sessions in a 10-session training course on providing better services for the elderly.

The Rev. Joseph W. Lyons of St. Eulalia's Church and the Rev. Jack D. Zoerheide of the Winchester Unitarian Church will speak on the spiritual needs of older persons on Friday, and Margaret Harrigan will speak on techniques of leadership on April 27.

This 20-hour series is sponsored by the Mystic Valley Area Committee for Better Services for the Elderly through Education.

As members of the committee for a Winchester Council On Aging, these other Winchester residents will attend the sessions: Janet Blumberg, Beryl Hagen, Hilda Hope, Arthur Pratt, Leonor M. Rich and Patricia Wells.

In addition to the talks mentioned, the 10 two-hour lectures will include sessions on the sociology of aging; the psychology and physiology of aging; helping to choose living arrangements: alone, family, public housing, nursing homes; finding and serving the hard to reach; surveys, questionnaires, training outreach workers; organizing an effective council on aging; human support systems: family and community; the role of the leader: group dynamics, group process; nutrition-eating better, Medicare-Medicaid and other questions people ask; and the legislative process in support of aging, the importance of advocacy.

Tickets Available For Masterworks

On Feb. 3 at 8:30 p.m. at Sanders Theatre, Cambridge, the Masterworks Choral, conducted by Allen Lannom, will present the New England premiere of Rossini's "Petite Messe Solennelle."

The soloists will be four singers from New York City: Barbara Shuttleworth, soprano; Mary Gayle Dowson, contralto; Carl Olsen, tenor; and Jay Hilburn, bass. Dr. and Mrs. Richard A. Kingsbury of Ginn rd. are members of the chorus. Tickets may be purchased from them.

Natural Resources' Goals Are Outlined

At a recent meeting of the Committee of Safety Chapter, DAR, held at the home of Mrs. Maxwell McCreery of 4 Curtis st., members heard a lecture on all phases of conservation.

The speaker was Joel Lerner of the Division of Conservation Services in the Department of Natural Resources of Massachusetts. His job is the administration of the Massachusetts self-help financial program for conservation projects undertaken by the Conservation Commissions of the cities and towns of the Commonwealth. Lerner is one of 30 people in the Division of Conservation Services, most of whom have a scientific background in botany, forestry, zoology or ecology. The division also has the services of some lawyers.

Lerner gave an all-inclusive picture of the problems of ecology in the state and possible solutions, beginning with the legislation passed during the last decade, including the Hatch Act, the Wetlands Protection Act and the Conservation Restriction Act of 1969.

He next outlined the goals of the Dept. of Natural Resources as:

- 1) Acquiring new lands for the purpose of creating parks and recreational areas;
- 2) Building new skating rinks and swimming pools for the public;
- 3) Aiding the Dept. of Marine Fisheries to protect the fishing industry;
- 4) Administering funds for conservation projects handled by the cities and towns of Massachusetts;
- 5) Caring for state parks, forests and ocean beaches outside MDC jurisdiction;
- 6) Researching the water pollution problem and checking the need for adequate water reservoirs;
- 7) Working on preserving the mineral resources of the state.

Looking to the future, Lerner spoke of several projects the state is planning—acquiring some 13 Boston Harbor islands to be used as a recreational area with a ferry system, developing a better source of reservoir water for the cities and towns by "skimming the flood water" off the Connecticut and Merrimack Rivers during the spring of the year and establishing better water pollution control and enforcement against the pollutants.

Woburn Man, 48, Receives A Year, Suspended In Case

A Woburn man received one year in the House of Correction, suspended for two years on a charge of larceny from the person in a case stemming from a robbery at a Waterfield rd. business on Dec. 26. The case was in Fourth District Court, Woburn on Monday morning.

According to Lieutenant William T. Haggerty of the Winchester Police Department, a charge of armed robbery on a second man who had waited outside of this store during the event were dropped when no probable cause was found.

Harry E. Nelson, 48, of Woburn was apprehended in Woburn several hours after the incident at the Black Horse Bottery, 38 Waterfield rd. at the request of local police. He had originally been arraigned and his case continued on a charge of armed robbery.

According to the police report of Dec. 26, at about 2:55 p.m. Officers Kevin P. Mawn and Thomas E. Faulkner responded to the alarm. They were informed by the two clerks that a man had entered the shop five minutes earlier and asked for the owner who was not present at the time.

After selecting a skirt and blouse, the man charged the merchandise, giving his name and address. At this point, the clerk informed police, she saw a gun and complied with a demand for the money in the cash register, about $20. The man then left the store and the area in an automobile driven by a second man.

Based upon the information on the sales slip, a physical description and the vehicle registration number, the defendant was located and the stolen property recovered.

At that time Chief of Police Edward F.

Bowler stated that the man in the car, also of Woburn, may have been an "innocent victim" of the incident and may have had no knowledge of the event.

Other officers participating in the case were Lieutenant Andrew Crawford and Officers Franklin P. R. Bartlett, Richard W. Beaton and Anthony Pronski.

WBA Installing Its New Officers

The installation of new officers of the Winchester Business Association will take place Feb. 6 at 6 p.m. at the Kernwood in Lynnfield where a dinner meeting will combine this function with a drive for new members.

Tickets are available for any interested business people at Chitel's Mens Shop. Retiring President James Olivier Jr. will act as master of ceremonies.

The WBA represents many local businesses and has been active in the past two years seeking ways "to reverse the declining trend in the center of town."

It has held numerous open meetings with architects, planners and developers regarding ways to improve and revitalize the business district, and has repeatedly urged the selectmen and the Planning Board to "take the necessary steps toward these goals."

Officers to be installed are: President Nancy Dressler (Topsy Turvy); Executive vice-president, Abraham Curewitz (Homestead Shops); secretary, Kenneth Henderson (Star Stationary) and treasurer, William Sullivan (Winchester National Bank).

Medicare Columnist Speaks To Nurses

Medicare columnist Wendell H. Coltin told a recent meeting of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association that income benefits have not kept up with the rise in prices, though he feels Medicare is a good program.

The Boston Herald American columnist, who started reporting at 14, also said new Medicare amendments now pending will give better service with financial help for extended care and home health care.

Coltin stated there is a need for better cooperation and coordination in Medicare. There are great differences between hospital and nursing home care, he said. The latter is cheaper and could keep hospitals from being overcrowded, he said. The new idea for pre-hospital home care could also lower costs, he said.

The original social security, to provide old age pensions, started in 1936, but today services for participants and their dependents have brought the plan far beyond the original idea, he said. But the new proposed national health program will be a large tax burden to all, he contends.

Medicare does not belong to the elderly alone, he reminded.

The high flying Spartans were without their big center, Phil McLaughlin, who was riding the bench because of a school suspension. They missed his size in rebounding and his point production, but they were able to hold off the Sachems due to the superb rebounding of Brian O'Donnell, who came up with 18 rebounds and Joe Donahue, who gathered in another 10.

The latter also was the top scorer of the game as he poured in a total of 29 points. The work of this duo was particularly strong on the offensive boards. Whoever grabbed the ball fed it to Donahue, who took soft and deadly shots to keep Winchester always on the short end of the score.

It was a 26-17 ball game at half time, and the home team pulled out in front by 36-26

before a flurry by Winchester brought the tally to 36-31. But the Spartans then put on a strong burst to pull out by 42-31 as the third period ended. The first part of the final session found the teams battling evenly. Half way through the quarter it was Stoneham leading 49-36. The Sachems kept on battling right down to the end, but, although they closed the gap, Stoneham prevailed by 57-49.

Coach Paul Mulloy's junior varsity hoopers took a 22-20 lead in the first half as they hustled to the front on good rebounding and shooting and played sound defense to keep the Spartan team in check. But the second half was a far different game, and the home team pulled away to a big lead as a result of a hectic third period during which they outscored Winchester, 22-4.

The Spartans applied a tight press which pinned the Sachems in their own end of the court. As a result there were many forced turnovers and offensive and defensive lapses which enabled the home team to build a big lead of 42-26. Winchester moved back into contention in the fourth period as the team settled down to play the type of game of which they are capable. But even though they outscored the Spartans over the final eight minutes by 18-11, it was Stoneham's game by a final tally of 57-49.

Swim Team Is Kept Moving

The Winchester High school boys' swimming team, working out under Coach Vin Palumbo for the past several weeks, has had several pre-season meets including one prior to the opening of their league divisional schedule in which they defeated Boston College High. They lost close meets to Waltham and Lexington.

In their first divisional meet they were surprised by the Belmont Marauders, who turned out to be a very strong group, and edged the Sachems by 53-42. Belmont performed last year in a different division, and at the moment is co-leader with undefeated Medford.

The Marauders took control of the meet in the early stages, taking the medley relay in 1:57, near record time. First place winners for Winchester included co-captain Vin Palumbo in the individual medley, Steve Blasi in the 100-yard backstroke, and promising sophomore Steve Armstrong in the 200 and 400 yard free style events.

Other Sachem scorers included co-captain Phil Gouzele, 4 points; Roy Palumbo, 3; Brian Conley, 2; Chip Vickroy, Peter Cresce, Curt Westlake, and Scott Bradley, 1½ each; and Jay Williams, 1.

Winchester trounced Matignon quite handsly, winning by 73-21. The Sachems dominated the first place scoring with co-captain Phil Gouzele taking the 50 yard free style, co-captain Vin Palumbo in the 200 yard individual medley and the 100 yard breast stroke, Steve Armstrong in the 200 and 400 yard free style, Steve Blasi in the 100 yard backstroke, Chip Vickroy in the diving and Roy Palumbo in the 100 yard butterfly.

Other scorers included Peter Cresce, 2½ points; Curt Westlake, 2¼; Brian Conley, 4;

Mark Laughlin, 6; Jay Williams, 3; Scott Bradley, 4½; and Mike Cox, 1. Other boys who are showing good promise and development include Eric Enge, Mike Goodwin, David Karp, Bob Burns, Martin Kent, Mike Hughes, John Kohr, Joe Ciccio, Bob Bruhy and Brad Scott.

This week's meets will be league divisional ones with Danvers and Lynn Classical, as the Sachems try to keep pace with the league leaders, Belmont and the Medford Mustangs.

Pee Wee All-Stars

St. Eulalia Pee Wee All-Stars lost two games in three days, as Randolph won both contests by scores of 6-2 at Randolph and 5-0 at the USA rink in Winchester.

The road game for the Pee Wees had little to cheer about as they fell behind 5-0 with one period to play. Third period saw the Lions roar back with two goals only to lose 6-2. A great exhibition of positional play was demonstrated by Randolph.

The return match on Saturday night home ice witnessed a more evenly matched contest although the 5-0 score would not indicate this. The Eulalia Lions skated with the Randy's for three periods. Even with great scoring bids they were thwarted by the outstanding goal tending of Randolph. The Lions had nothing to be ashamed of in losing this one as over 200 spectators applauded the action.

Curling

Americans Win Mixed Bonspiel

The rink from Weston won the Farnsworth Trophy, the prized first event, at the 16th annual invitational mixed bonspiel curling at the Winchester Country Club.

The Weston rink was skipped by Bud Gelman, Barbara Shannon at No. 3, Tom Shannon at No. 2 and Bee Gelman playing lead. The trophy was presented by Mrs. Farnsworth. The opponents were Riverside No. 3 skipped by Tom Foster from Ontario, Canada.

Winchester rink No. 1 won the second event of the Neiley Trophy by defeating Hamilton Thistle in a match that had to go an extra end. Winchester rink was skipped by Richard Pettingill with Margaret Pettingill at No. 3, Ronald Stillman at No. 2 and Marilyn Stillman at lead position. The trophy was presented to the winners by Mrs. Neiley.

The Winchester rink had the distinction of attaining an 8-end, which is to the curling field what a hole-in-one is to a golfer. This match was in the semi-finals on Saturday against Brae Burn No. 2.

The third event of the Barton Trophy was won by the rink of Baie D'Urfe Curling Club of Quebec, Canada, who were winners of the first event last year. The trophy this year was presented by Arthur Bird, co-chairman of curling. The skip was George Flemming, Joan Fry at No. 3, Ted Fry at No. 2 and Stephanie Schmader of the host club who filled in at the lead position.

There were 24 rinks in competition from the United States and Canada and each rink played three or four games during the four-day bonspiel.

In keeping with the usual tradition of the occasion the finalists were piped onto the ice by three bagpipers and a drummer. The bonspiel was under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitten as co-chairmen.

Members of Winchester Rink No. 1 had the distinction of an eight-end during one of their matches at the Mixed Bonspiel, whose enthusiasts say an eight-end is

Wrestling Team Defeats Medford

Hard work and recently gained experience by a more or less novice team led the Winchester High School wrestling squad to its first victory of the season recently with a 46-27 defeat over Medford High School.

For the first time in several years, the Winchester wrestling team has experienced sufficient growth to form an active squad—enough students to fill the 13 weight divisions, thus enabling the team to avoid forfeiting team points. With its expanded growth and gained experience, development is promising.

The starting line-up consists of five veteran wrestlers and eight inexperienced wrestlers, mostly sophomores. Team experience led to the 1-3 season's record with losses to Malden, Reading and Wakefield. Veteran wrestlers on the Sachem squad, especially team captain Larry McHugh (3-1) and co-captain Pat Lee (4-0), are having fine individual records.

Promising sophomore to date are Jay McGrath (2-2), Steve Johns (2-2) and George McHugh (2-2). About a dozen ninth grade students have also joined the team this year.

RESULTS:

98 lbs. Ed Neves, lost by a fall, 6;

Puck Chasers In Losing Streak

By John F. Parrell

Try as they will, Coach Ted Kelley's Sachem puck chasers have not been able to come up with a victory over the past several weeks. They opened the season auspiciously by handing a 5-4 defeat to the capable Lexington Minutemen in the opening game at the new USA rink.

They followed up with victories over the Belmont Marauders and the Red Raiders of Watertown. But although they played their hearts out against a fast and aggressive Burlington team, they dropped a one-goal decision.

From then on, the roof fell in, and the team has now made almost a complete circuit of the league, with loss following loss. Yesterday afternoon they met winless Watertown and it was hoped, and expected, that they might finally chalk up victory number four. The accompanying standing shows how the league members rated at the start of this week's action.

Melrose is running away with the race, and may well finish undefeated, although there are many teams capable of upsetting them. For many of the others it is a case of who will finish second in order to qualify for the eastern state tournament.

It appears doubtful that any of the other contenders could meet the 75 percent win and tie requirement, as six losses automatically eliminates a team. At the rate that they are beating each other it looks like a wide open race for second among six contenders.

Winchester played much better hockey in last week's game at the well appointed Lexington rink, but John Fontas sent the home team out front with an early goal. Battling hard, the Sachems countered with an equalizer, as Pete Sandford netted the puck with assists for Phil O'Connell and Kevin Pierce.

The second period saw fast and furious action, with both teams playing hard, fast, hockey. The Sachem defense was at its best since the opening game with the Minutemen. Tony Guarente had several good saves in the Sachem net, but Riley at the other end of the rink had an easier time.

It seemed that once Winchester was in the Lexington zone the players kept on trying to get close up shots, and ignored the points—in the clear on several occasions. Fontas put the game out of reach midway through the final period as he scored the third goal on an assist from McDuff.

Tom Brennan tallied two first period goals against Belmont for an early 2-1 lead. Peter Frongillo, who has been watching most of the games from the bench, started the Belmont game, and the sophomore net minder turned in a commendable performance even though Winchester emerged on the short end of a 4-2 score.

Two of the Marauder markers came with the local team playing short handed as a result of penalties, and the goalie was victimized when his teammates could not cover well.

One shot was a deflection off the skate of a Winchester defense player. All in all, it was a good performance for an inexperienced goalie, and gives good hopes for the Sachem ice teams of the next two seasons.

Although Reading had Nick Heineck, who stands 6 feet 8 inches, to work in the rebounding phase of the game, Winchester did quite well in this department as they succeeded in matching the Rockets and thus gained control of the ball.

Sandy Bigelow with seven and Tim Porter with 14 had their best nights of the season in this respect. They also helped out with the scoring as Tim was top man with 16 points and Sandy had a dozen. These points, added to the usual good output from the Heffernan brothers, enabled the Sachems to walk off with a fairly easy 72-56 victory.

The home team playing in the new Hawkes gymnasium, was guilty of 25 turnovers, and these coupled with their inability to control the boards spelled defeat for the Rockets. Winchester broke out fast, and rang up 22 first period points to only 10 for Reading.

They went on to build up a 47-29 half-time lead. Reading rallied in the third period as they dropped in 17 points while limiting Winchester to only eight. The Sachems regained their touch in the final quarter, and the final score read: Winchester, 72, Reading, 56.

Bigelow Called Valuable Player

Winchester's Bob Bigelow continues to be one of the more valuable sophomores playing for Penn, stepping into key situations, making use of his agility and quickness for a 6-7 performer. Early in the year, Bigelow started at guard, playing the role of team quarterback. Later in December the former all-state performer guarded St. Joseph's All-American Mike Bantom for most of the evening while Penn was winning 54-53.

Bigelow is playing both guard and forward for Penn, stepping into key situations, making use of his agility and quickness for a 6-7 performer. Early in the year, Bigelow started at guard, playing the role of team quarterback. Later in December the former all-state performer guarded St. Joseph's All-American Mike Bantom for most of the evening while Penn was winning 54-53.

Bigelow is steadily improving in his consistency and seems bound to play even more in the future.

Mites Defeat Burlington, 4-1

The Winchester Youth Hockey Mites scored a 4-to-1 victory over Burlington in weekend action. Chris Parker led the way with two first period goals, both when his team was short handed.

He combined twice with Tony Celli, first from out in front on a "short pop" and then on a breakout pass off the right boards from which he beat the goalie in the upper corner.

Tony Celli broke down the middle in the third period to slam one in the lower corner unassisted for the locals' third goal. Mike Gorrasi put it out of reach later when he took a pass from Mike Surabian in the slot and fired a real "string popper" in the upper corner on the short side.

GOODWILL TAKES ALL

Unique donations of all shapes and colors are received daily by Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries in its collection boxes or picked up by Goodwill trucks, but one of the more unusual items was received recently. Over 72,000 new ladies' girdles and garter belts were donated by a Boston underwear manufacturer. Anything, but everything may be found at Goodwill Thrift Stores.

Winchester Wins Cup Competitions

At the 38th annual Douglas Cup competition at St. Andrews Country Club in New York recently Stanley Neill's Winchester rink won the event.

This marked the second time in history that it was won two consecutive years by the same skip.

With Neill were Malcolm Burroughs, Bill Adams and Jim Jefferson.

At the 25th annual Worcester Cup competition recently held at The Country Club the winners were from the Winchester Country Club skipped by Bob Thorson and included John Kosowski, Fred Richard and Everett Tisdale.

St. Mary's Wins 100th Game, 3-0

It took 13 years to do it but St. Mary's CYO hockey team won its 100th game Sunday, blanking fourth place St. Anthony's, Allston, 3 to 0.

The win put St. Mary's three points ahead of second place St. Catherine's, Norwood, which played to a 1-to-1 tie with third place Milton. With two games remaining before playoffs St. Mary's needs only a tie to clinch a divisional title.

St. Mary's is undefeated and untied in eight games this season and 11 games dating back to the 1972 playoffs.

Goaltenders Peter Scopa and Cliff Falla combined for their second shutout of the year. St. Mary's has scored 32 goals this season while allowing only 9.

The game puck—traditionally awarded by the captains to the player making the most important contribution to a win—was given instead to St. Mary's hockey director John Falla, who founded the team in 1960 and coached it through 11 seasons.

St. Mary's next faces St. Peter's, Dorchester, at noon, Saturday, at McHugh Forum, Boston College.

★ Hospital

Skating at the small pond across from Town Hall was another subject under consideration. Recreation Director Donald L. Spinney wants to use the area for horseshow playing. The selectmen feel both horseshoes and ice skating can take place in their seasons. A recommendation to that effect went to Recreation.

In a final matter, the board sent to the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association a note of their "concern and desire that they hold the line" on expenses "as we are doing in the town."

Winchester is one of five communities in the association. The Mystic budget has risen 45 percent in the last year.

★ Civil Defense

shortly the hospital will make an announcement on its out-patient expansion plans.

The hospital is on five acres located between Highland ave., Maple rd. and Valley rd. The hospital is acquiring privately owned land in an area bounded by Valley rd., Maple rd. Highland ave. and Forest st. Five acres is involved here.

James has said that his institution has been acquiring houses as they become available on Valley rd. and Highland ter. Purpose: offstreet parking for employees. The hospital has 200 spaces and James has said needs 300 more.

The selectmen have offered James 22 Highland ave., which would provide spaces for at least 100 cars.

ON THE ROAD AGAIN

A dozen used automobiles donated to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries this fall are on the road again. The tax deductible donations were received in response to an appeal for vehicles needed to train auto-mechanics enrolled in training programs at Goodwill Centers. The autos were repaired, refurbished, then resold at the Goodwill garage on East Berkeley st.

★ Revitalization

League of Women Voters and the Church Women United, are taking up the center as a topic of concern in 1973 "the statement read."

"The 'post cards from citizens' idea was one more attempt to urge the selectmen and the Planning Board to recognize the urgency of the situation." The selectmen's office reports that about 220 of the cards have been turned in.

The Planning Board is on record as favoring re-zoning the center to allow construction of apartments. WBA also favors apartments in the center as a means of encouraging activity there.

The selectmen, however, have taken no stance on the matter.

Planning Board chairman Otto E. Schaeffer Jr. said re-zoning the center "is our first priority." He said the board is asking for a warrant article for the annual town meeting to appoint a committee to see how the town could create an architectural review commission.

The Planning Board has met with WBA and one of its board members has attended every WBA meeting pertaining to the center, he said. "We think we've maintained pretty close contact with them and hope to do something."

Ambrose Students Taught Boat Safety

Every Wednesday during the month of January the fifth and sixth graders at the Ambrose Elementary School will spend part of their day learning about boating safety from the United States Coast Guard. The boating safety detachment covers all facets of boating safety, including classes of boats, fire extinguishers, fueling, lights, warnings, anchoring and rendering assistance as well as accident reports and common mistakes.

During the boating season the detachments travel throughout the New England area conducting water safety patrols and examining small boats for federal requirements.

Steven Sacharczyk, bosun's mate, is conducting the course at the Ambrose School and states that the goal is to give the students exposure to the fundamentals in boating and what to do in emergency situations.

Bosun's mate Steven Sacharczyk of the U.S. Coast Guard tells Ambrose students about boating safety.

TAX TIPS WHEN YOU BUY A HOME

When you buy a home, your tax status changes the minute you write the check. Property taxes paid at the settlement can be deducted on the tax return for that year. Usually, these taxes are pro-rated between the buyer and seller. You can include your share plus any taxes you may be required to pay in advance.

The other settlement expenses generally are not deductible, however, most of them can be added to the cost of the house when you sell it. The effect will be to reduce the profit subject to income tax. Among these are: lawyers' fees, properly surveys, title search and title insurance,

It should be noted that, what the IRS calls "basis" is quite important to establish. It is the purchase price of the house which includes your down payment, mortgages, and those non-deductible settlement costs. The basis determines what your profit or loss will be when you sell.

If you have any questions on this subject or on any other aspect of Real Estate, please feel free to call or drop in at JAMES T. TREFREY, INC., REALTORS, 27 Waterfield Road, Winchester - Tel. 729-6100.

Home Ec Students Host Fashion Show

Students modeling were Donna Crisafi, Debbie Loftus, Donna Julian, Mary O'Donnell, Nancy Bemis, Ellen Mooney, Joan Cantillon, Katherine Raleigh, Beth Roche, Mary Bannister, Donald Williams, Linda Britton, Janet Helndel, Dottie Clark and Sue Parkhurst.

Donna Crisafi served as commentator for the program. Laura Lee Downs provided the background music and Leslie Wilson made the background winter mural in pastels.

Refreshments were served by the students in the living room-dining room area of the department.

Peter Reid of the audio-visual department was the official photographer for the evening and took a colored Polaroid picture of each student. The students also did a taping of the show in the television studio with students in the contemporary living and clothing and fashion classes for a closed circuit program to be given at the school on Friday.

Two From Town At Peace Parley, Visit Congressmen

The American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker group, had a religious convocation and Congressional visitation for peace in Washington, D.C., recently with about 500 persons from Massachusetts attending along with a Winchester delegation.

Frank Hurley and Mrs. Jack Medzorian from Winchester joined the group of 6,000 from across the United States which gathered in Washington to once again express "concern and outrage at the continued devastation of the people of Indochina."

The following account was given to The Star by Mrs. Medzorian.

The ecumenical convocation took place at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Program chairman was Rev. William Sloane Coffin. Among the dignitaries were Rev. Michael Allen, asst. chaplain of Yale Univ., who was an eyewitness to the carpet bombing by B-52's which took place in North Vietnam just before Christmas; Rev. Phillip Berrigan and Joan Baez.

Major speaker was former Attorney General Ramsey Clark. Clark announced a campaign to rebuild the Bach Mai Hospital in Hanoi. He said Bach Mai, largest civilian hospital in North Vietnam, was leveled by B-52 attacks Dec. 19 and 22.

The 950-bed facility had extensive clinical laboratories and the auxiliary services required for a major teaching facility, he said. Twenty-five doctors and nurses and an unknown number of patients were killed in the raids, the former Attorney General state.

The destruction of the hospital was confirmed in a written statement by Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor. Taylor, chief U.S. prosecutor at the Nuremberg War Crimes Trials after World War II, said Bach Mai had been "blown to bits, completely destroyed, and hit more than once on successive days."

A fund will provide supplies for the North Vietnamese underground medical facilities until the war is finally over and there is no chance of the hospital being attacked again.

Following the service the participants walked to the White House through a drizzling rain carrying lit candles to protest the continuing war.

The next day delegations lobbied their Congressmen. It was a diverse group of middle America. There were clergy, housewives, businessmen and businesswomen, grandparents and some students. A number of these were first time participants.

Last Thursday a bi-partisan coalition introduced an end the war bill. Senators Edward Brooke and Alan Cranston introduced legislation to restrict funding for U.S. military activities in Indochina and require total withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia within 60 days.

Dog Licenses Up

By Kay Cardin

Many Winchester dog owners are getting the message, reports Dog Officer Dominic Molea. There are at present 500 more dog licenses on the town books than there were at this time last year.

But if you are one of those pet owners who has not yet obtained a license, please do so at once, Molea urges. Not only will you be obeying the law and avoiding a possible fine, but should your dog become lost, your chances of getting him back are increased by about 90 percent if he wears a license.

A word of caution: make sure the license tag is fastened securely to the dog's collar and that he wears it at all times. Although there has been a January thaw, heavy snow is sure to return and when that happens animals become confused and have trouble sniffing their way home.

Incidentally, a dog should be licensed at three months of age. Don't wait until the animal is six months old, as some people believe is proper.

Once again, if you have lost your dog, feel free to call Officer Molea at 729-7990 or 5530.
